SURRENDER OF PORT ARTHUR TO THE JAPS WAS UNNECESSARY

There Were 31,000 Effective Men Still In the Big Fortress.

Japanese Troops Take Formal Possession of Captured City.

Headquarters of the Third Japanese Army at Port Arthur, Jan. 14, via Tien Tsin, Jan. 16.—The victorious Japanese army yesterday formally entered Port Arthur, Gen. Nogi, with his staff, entered first through the old town and took his stand in the public square of the new town. The army was represented by one regiment from each brigade. The procession, which was five miles long, was three hours passing the saluting base, after which the troops passed out of the city through the new town. The correspondents then visited the captured city for the first time. The old town buildings were badly damaged by shell fire, the damage being practically useless owing to the injuries they had sustained by shells.

All the shipping in the harbor was badly damaged by shell fire, the damage being practically useless owing to the injuries they had sustained by shells.

Proceedings for the surrender of Port Arthur were first made Dec. 28, at a council of war. Gen. Stoessel was in favor of surrender, but some of his general officers were bitterly opposed to it. The general officers and the troops were not consulted.

The first news they had of the surrender was Jan. 1, after Gen. Stoessel had communicated with the Japanese. The terms following the surrender were disgraceful. The Japanese soldiers filled the streets and refused to obey their officers. Many of them destroyed the guns upon the positions when they had defended and came into the city without permission. The Japanese had been given away. They threw their rifles and ammunition into the harbor and proceeded to break into the houses and loot the city.

SENATOR BURTON CASE REMANDED FOR NEW TRIAL

Washington, Jan. 16.—The case of Senator Burton was remanded by the supreme court of the United States today, dismissing the writ of certiorari to the circuit court of appeals for the Eighth circuit and reversing the verdict of the district court for the eastern district of Missouri, on the ground that the payments to Burton were made in Washington.

BOOKS SHOULD BE EXAMINED

To Discover When the Railroads Granted Rebates.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The senate committee on interstate commerce gave a hearing today on the Cooper-Quinn bill, conferring great power on the interstate commerce commission. The bill, which is now in the hands of the committee, is designed to enforce the provisions of the act. It is essential, he said, that the books of the railroad companies be open not only to inspection but to examination by the interstate commerce commission. The bill would not only give the commission the right to examine the books of the railroad companies, but it would also give it the right to examine the books of the companies themselves. The bill would also give the commission the right to examine the books of the companies themselves.

INDIAN AGENTS WARNED TO BE CAUTIOUS WITH DRUGS

Fatal Result To An Indian and Almost Fatal Ending Of Two Others Who Were Given Aconite In Mistake For Arnica.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Indian Commissioner Leupp has caused a circular to be issued to all Indian agents and bonded school superintendents ordering them to see to it that greater caution is maintained in the sale of deadly drugs to the Indians. This order was brought about through the fatal result upon at least one Indian and almost fatal ending of two others who through error were given a small vial of aconite which the post-trader supposed contained arnica.

The department withholds the precise penalty where this poison was sold but gives the essential points. It appears that Spotted Tail called at the post-trader's establishment and complained of a stiffness in his limbs and wanted "great medicine." The post-trader sized him up and took from his shelves a bottle which he says he thought contained arnica and cautioned Spotted Tail that it was for external application. With many grunts of approval and nods that he understood how the medicine should be applied he explained his misery and showed them the bottle which he had purchased for his relief.

AN AGED HEBREW FOOLS THE PROMOTERS OF NEW CEMETERY

New York, Jan. 16.—Levi Rous, of Passaic, N. J., has celebrated what he claims as his 115th birthday.

Rous has resided in Passaic for twelve years, having been taken there from New York, by local Hebrew leaders. The latter had secured ground on the outskirts of Passaic for a new cemetery, and to follow on an ancient tradition, buried in the new cemetery are now resting there themselves.

DR. KOCH TESTIFIES AS TO HIS MOVEMENTS ON NIGHT OF MURDER

JUDGE SAYS UTAH IS AS MORAL AS NEW YORK OR WASHINGTON CITY

It Will Soon Be the Best State In the Whole Union.

He Says Polygamy Is Dying Out Very Rapidly.

Testifies To the Good Character of Senator Smoot.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Judge James A. Miner, of Salt Lake, formerly of the supreme court of Utah, was recalled today as a witness in the Smoot investigation, before the senate committee on privileges and elections. He testified as to Mr. Smoot's good character and to his prominence politically in 1890 when Judge Miner went to Utah. He said that Mr. Smoot was regarded as one of the coming men and one who had always stood for the enforcement of the laws. Polygamy is decreasing so rapidly, said the witness, that he believed Utah would be better in ten years than any state in the Union. "There is no more polygamous or unlawful cohabitation in Utah than there is in New York or the District of Columbia," he added. Chairman Burrows questioned Judge Miner concerning the extent to which polygamy is practiced among the heads of the church. He said it was not generally understood before this investigation that they were continuing the practice of polygamy. A resolution was adopted declaring that the Smoot investigation should be continued until the subject was fully cleared up.

ATTEMPT TO KILL GEN. TREPOFF FAILS.

Moscow, Jan. 16.—The man who attempted last night to shoot General Treppoff (recently removed as chief of police) was seized by the railway station hands and quickly incarcerated. He refused to reveal his identity, or to make any statement.

FIRE CAUSES A HEAVY LOSS IN BEEF WAREHOUSE

Chicago, Jan. 16.—The fire which started in the beef storage warehouse of Schwartzkopf & Sulzberger, at the corner of Third and Ashland streets last night, was still burning today, although under control. The firemen cut holes in the sides and roof of the building, a six-story structure, in their efforts to find the fire and although the volume of smoke and steam and ammonia fumes poured out of there, there were no flames visible. The fire was in the sawdust which was packed between the double walls of the building. Fourteen firemen were overcome by the ammonia and were carried out by their companions. All will recover. The loss is estimated at $150,000.

PORTLAND EXPOSITION WILL BE OPEN SUNDAY.

Portland, Ore., Jan. 16.—It has been decided to throw open the gates and all exhibit buildings at the Lewis and Clark exposition on Sundays. The management will endeavor to emphasize the educational features as much as possible. A local organization headed by ministers, educators, philanthropists and students of advanced thought will work in conjunction with the management of the fair in the matter of Sunday congresses and the plan is to have the gatherings in the exposition auditorium devoted to discussions and addresses upon education, religion, principles of government, charities, corrections, humanitarism, etc.

NIXON AT NAPLES.

Naples, Italy, Jan. 16.—The American liner Deutschland from New York, with Mr. Nixon on board, arrived here yesterday on board the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland from New York. Mr. Nixon is proceeding on a tour of the world, and will hold a conference with a Russian agent regarding torpedo boats.

DOGS BRING MAIL.

Martha's Vineyard, Jan. 16.—The first winter mail from Nikolaievsk, island of Sakhalin, arrived here today. It consisted of twenty-eight sledges drawn by 50 dogs and crossed the frozen straits in the middle of December.

PRESIDENT HINES OF LUMBER CARRIERS

EDWARD HINES, president of the Lumber Carriers' association, is one of the best-known business men in the Northwest and a frequent visitor to Duluth. Mr. Hines began life as a tally boy at $4 a week and when 27 years of age organized the company of which he is now the head. That was in 1892. Mr. Hines, as president of the Carriers' association, is at the head of an organization that controls 90 per cent of the lumber tonnage of the great lakes.

NOT SERIOUS. Are Differences Between Congregational Mission Bodies.

New York, Jan. 16.—A conference of delegates representing the auxiliary Congregational Home Missionary society in the Northern states with a committee representing the National or Parent society, has been held in this city to discuss their differences. A resolution was adopted declaring that the Smoot investigation should be continued until the subject was fully cleared up.

Takes the Stand Without Slightest Trace of Excitement.

Gives No Sign of Nervousness Under Gaze of Court and Jury.

He Tells In Detail Every Step Taken on the Fatal Evening.

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—A special to the Dispatch from New Ulm, Minn., says: In the Koch trial today Paul Hippauf, a student boarder at the Koch home, corroborated the testimony of several witnesses that the murder hammer was not a part of the Koch tool kit.

Miss Emma Koch testified that Dr. Koch came home to dinner during the last week in October, except Friday. He was at that time in Hanska. The state attempted to show that the poison box was mailed in Hanska at the time Dr. Koch was there.

Miss Lydia Schapakhoff testified that the box was received through the latter part of the week, about Wednesday, she thought. Her testimony did not definitely fix the time.

Dr. Reinecke testified that he first saw the box Saturday previously to the homicide. Adolph Wagner, superintendent of the light company, located on the gram the electric lights near the Koch home. He made a test recently and found that the place where George was a relative of the defendant he answered: "Not directly. A brother of his father married my stepmother."

The testimony of Professor Adolph Reim, professor of chemistry at the Lutheran college, New Ulm, was the subject of a lively talk between the attorneys. Professor Reim testified that yesterday he experimented by igniting alcohol on his hand. The alcohol ignited. "Yes, if you had the back of your hand turned down the gases would be wrapped around the hand and if ignited would burn it."

At 4:30 this morning the defense placed the accused man on the stand. When called, Dr. Koch walked briskly to the stand, held up his right hand, without hesitation or excitement, and then sat down and crossed his legs easily. He changed his hands in his lap without a tremor, with the eyes of the entire court upon him. He answered the preliminary questions put at him by Attorney Abbott in a clear voice.

The first question related to his past life, family, education, and his entrance into the law. During the examination he shifted his position several times, but gave no sign of nervousness which the magnitude of the stake would have justified. Dr. Koch said he had known Dr. Gebhardt six years and had always been friendly. They had operated upon each other's teeth, making no charge, and so far as knew there were no grudges between them. Dr. Koch had two places of business, one at Lafayette and the other at Hanska. During the examination of Koch the jurors leaned forward in their chairs, following every word and scanning the defendant's face and every movement of his hands.

Dr. Koch said that he had opened the branch offices for the purpose of getting acquainted, and he had discontinued the one at Lafayette and was about to terminate the one at Hanska during October. The closing of his office was hastened by Dr. Wood's announcement that he was about to change his office to a private residence on a side street. He was there last, Thursday, Oct. 28.

"Did you ever mail this bottle and box to Dr. Gebhardt?" asked Abbott. "No, sir."

"Did you ever see them before you saw them in court?" "No, sir."

The attorney then questioned him as to his movements. "I ate supper at home and then left the house. I went to my office, arriving about 7:15. I talked with Dr. Vogel and then went down the street. That was about 7:20. I should judge. I took a package containing some perfume when I walked down Minnesota street to the Peterson residence, where Miss Fitzpatrick boards. I left there about 8:05 or 8:10, returning to my office. I arrived at my office about 8:15 or 8:20. Dr. Vogel said: 'It's a wonder you would not stay here when you make appointments.'"

I telephoned to Charles Stuebe and then I went into Holdack & Siemon's office. Brooks, Siemon, Holdack and Dr. Vogel were there. I sat down beside Dr. Vogel. I left about 9 o'clock. About the same time Vogel left. He went into his office and I went down stairs."

Dr. Koch was here asked to describe the clothing so often described by other witnesses. "I met Miss Crane and Miss Neumann on Minnesota street. I talked with them for a minute. Then I walked diagonally across to Blanchard's barn. Then I remembered that my light was burning. I turned back, walked along diagonally across to Blanchard's barn. I met Higgs, Dr. Vogel and Shonlau. I went up stairs and found the door locked. The light was on the room were out and the light was burning in my laboratory. I put out the light. I had not thought of the light when I went out. When I went down I met Higgs, Amundson and Shonlau and exchanged remarks about the weather. I left them and walked down the street. When I passed the hardware store I saw Schilling and another man. I walked down the street I met Heinze and asked him if Tom Kretsch had left the store. I knew he was going to sleep. I went to take a position in the bank. I asked if Stamm was in the barber shop. He said yes, and Siemon and Pfeiffer were there too. I went in. As I entered, Stamm said: 'Here is a man that says Dr. Strickler is going to vote for Johnson. I said if Strickler did, many others would too. I asked for Stamm, because we had a discussion, and I thought he would want to bet. We talked for a few minutes. As I went by I saw Herbert Raitrusch working in the Revolver office."

"Where did you go then?" "I went home."

A recess was then taken and during the interim Dr. Koch chatted with his sisters and several cousins, who had come up from Mankato to listen to his testimony. The news that he was on the stand attracted a large crowd. Resuming his testimony, Dr. Koch said:

"When I passed the Revolver office I went to Hausman's corner, and turned on to Center street. I walked along the north side to State street, where I crossed over to the south side. I walked along Center street to the road below the Herman monument. I turned and went through the park. This is the road I usually take in this fall."

Dr. Koch pointed out on the plat the road he followed and continued: (Continued on page 2, first column.)

In Accepting Money From Brewers and Crediting It To Himself.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 16.—The house committee appointed to investigate political contributions reported by Chairman T. K. Niedringhaus, of the Republican state committee and caucus nominee for United States senator, did not prepare its report in time for the opening of the session of the house today as the transcript had not reached here from St. Louis.

It is stated that the majority report being prepared by the committee, will hold Mr. Niedringhaus culpable in accepting money from St. Louis brewers and then crediting an amount, including that represented by the brewers' contribution to himself in his sworn statement of the Republican state committee receipts.

CRIMINAL CASES

Trials Begin In Judge Caut's Room In District Court.

Gus Maki Charged With Assaulting Victor Maki.

Trial of criminal actions on the January term calendar were begun in district court, this morning, before Judge Caut. The first case to be taken up is that of Gus Maki, a Finlander saloonkeeper of Buhl, indicted for assault in the first degree.

The complaining witness, Victor Maki, another Finlander and no relation to the accused, is claimed to have been shot by the bartender at a Saturday evening session in the Buhl saloon of booze, last month.

The information, as outlined to the jury by County Attorney McCulloch, was as follows: After leaving up to the fighting point with a brand of revolver, Maki, in company with another man, entered the saloon of Gus Maki. Victor Maki was carrying a lighted cigar in his mouth, and Maki, but none of the several occupants of the saloon were aching for trouble as they put him off. Finally Victor Maki, seized one of the men and, in a scuffle, threw him down, but no blows were struck. Victor then turned his attention to Gus Maki, the bartender, who was sitting by the stove. The latter, not desiring a scuffle, pushed Victor away and went around behind the bar where he picked up a revolver and told Victor, who had by this time come up in front of the bar, to behave himself or get shot.

Victor Maki is said to have continued his demonstrations over the bar and Gus Maki finally made good his threat, pulling the trigger three times.

Only one cartridge is said to have exploded, the bullet entering Victor Maki's side above the thigh bone, and without hitting any vital part of a bone, producing a way through muscular tissue until it finally lodged in a muscle of the back, up against the spine.

After the shot was fired, Victor Maki stood either against the bar or against the wall for a few minutes, seeming to have been somewhat sobered. Nothing was said, and Gus Maki, putting the revolver in his pocket, walked back to his seat by the stove. Shortly afterward Victor Maki, without saying anything about his wound, in fact about the state of his mind, seemed to have been somewhat sobered. After the shot was fired, Victor Maki stood either against the bar or against the wall for a few minutes, seeming to have been somewhat sobered. Nothing was said, and Gus Maki, putting the revolver in his pocket, walked back to his seat by the stove. Shortly afterward Victor Maki, without saying anything about his wound, in fact about the state of his mind, seemed to have been somewhat sobered.

Only one cartridge is said to have exploded, the bullet entering Victor Maki's side above the thigh bone, and without hitting any vital part of a bone, producing a way through muscular tissue until it finally lodged in a muscle of the back, up against the spine.

then I went up stairs to eat an apple. I took a book Hippocrit had given me. I went to bed with William. The next morning Willie told me that Gebhardt had been murdered. I had heard nothing of it until then. The next morning I walked down town with my sister Ida. I wore the same clothes I had on the night before. I went down town, and when I got to the alley back of the Gebhardt office I met Dr. Reim. We went into the alley. We met Mr. Brooks and walked around the building to get into Gebhardt's office. From there we went to my office.

"Did you have any injuries on your hands after the homicide?"

"I did."

"What did you get them?"

"I got a wound on the knuckle of the third finger of my right hand while duck hunting with Willie and John Miska Oct. 25. I tried to take off the seat of the buggy. My hands are naturally tender as I do no hard work."

The skin was knocked off. I had an other wound, a scratch on my left hand and one on my cheek. I got them from the blows while driving with Miss Fitzpatrick."

Dr. Koch said he had got out of the buggy to shoot some quail. The horse became frightened and reared. Miss Fitzpatrick screamed and he ran to her aid. As he ran he tripped and fell and scratched his hand on the ground. He filled a small bottle from a bottle belonging to Dr. Vogel.

"It was dark a crown, and as I got down the blow pipe I hit the small bottle on the bottom with my fingers. The bottle upset and the acid spilled upon the knuckle of my fingers. I went down to Alvin's drug store, about 11:30, and got a rubber cap for my finger."

He got the cap from "Steve Frederick. He showed me where the drawer was. I paid Frederick 5 cents for the cap. I got it Thursday. Friday, I went to another. I went to the drawer myself and he came up while I was getting it. I took two that day. One I put in my finger and the other I put in my neck."

I got the caps because the scab came partly off when I was fixing my hands, and the cap on the neck was torn. He told of treating several patients in his office Wednesday following the homicide. He was further questioned as to the time he left the office and his movements that night. He wore the off-described clothing. Koch then told of the examination for the Gebhardt murder with other members of the club.

"I sang at the Zeile residence and attended at the Congregational church."

Koch was informed at Stenon's office, where he went after the funeral, that he was under suspicion.

"What did you say?"

"I said nothing."

"What did you think about it?"

"I did not think much of it at first. 'Did you think of it afterwards?'"

"Well, when I heard that some of my friends were killed about the Gebhardt murder, I thought about it."

Koch told of the examination of his hands at the office and how he put on the clothing which he had worn on the night the homicide took place. He might inspect it."

"On Friday, Kyell came to my office and asked for an interview. I was giving him the statement when Mr. Somerville forbade it. I was about to leave the statement, but Somerville refused."

"Now, we have heard some talk about what you said to Mr. Holsdale about the Zeile murder. You may tell what occurred there."

"We were talking in my laboratory about the part of the Zeile murder against me and I made the remark, but it was not about Gebhardt."

"What was about?"

"Alfred Pfander, who is sitting across the table with the prosecutor."

Dr. Koch related how he burned his hand and asked for an interview. I was giving him the statement when Mr. Somerville forbade it. I was about to leave the statement, but Somerville refused."

"Let us understand this," said Somerville. "You satuate your hand with alcohol, and I want to know if you had a rabbit in the cow yard near the cabin before I entered the house."

Dr. Koch then stood in front of the jury and pointed out the various buildings, especially the corn crib, near which he saw a rabbit. Shortly after the shot was fired, he said: "I went into the old dwelling house where we kept an old time gauge gun. I went around the premises. There are usually some shells there. They were not there, so I went into the granary where we used to keep some shells. I saw a scuffling. I struck a match, but I could not find any shells. I returned to the house."

"Do you remember where your father and sister were sitting?"

"Yes, sir, my sister was sitting at the east end of the table and my father at his usual place at the north end of the table. I stood near my sister and read the Fortschritt and another paper for about ten minutes. Then I went down stairs to my room. Paul Hippocrit was there. I stood there a few minutes and

IMPORTANT EVENT

The Courthouse Site Mass Meeting Will Be a Hummer.

A Commissioner Predicts There Will Be Standing Room Only.

"If all the people attend the public meeting to discuss courthouse site tomorrow afternoon, that have given me their private opinion, that the site should be changed, there will be a 'standing room only' sign out on the city hall steps mighty early," declared one of the county commissioners this morning.

The county commissioners have determined an effort to get the taxpayers out to a public meeting that so much of the taxpayers' interest in the proposed courthouse site for the new building that will be erected within the next few years and the other side of the majority of the taxpayers, which is certainly indicated to be for a down site, is not fulfilled, it will very likely be in not appearing at the meeting and giving voice to their opinions.

The county commissioners to whom the choice of a courthouse site is very likely to fall, unless the legislature and appoints a courthouse commission, are the paid servants of the taxpayers, and they have all of them, at one time or another, in the past year, particularly the old members, expressed their intention of voting on the site proposition as the majority of their constituency shall decide.

This decision is looked upon as a perfectly fair one by both those opposed to a change of site and those who desire the change made. It is claimed to remove the responsibility of selecting the site from the shoulders of the commissioners and resting it with the people, who will have to pay for the building—the taxpayers. If the taxpayers are so sure that the old site is better, they will vote for it, and if they are not so sure, they will vote for a new site. The chances are certainly good, of getting a building there."

The statement of Commissioner Kugler that 75 per cent of his constituency is in favor of the retention of the present site is generally commented upon as an assertion easy to make, but an opinion based on East End cars and a resident said this morning:

"If Mr. Kugler asserts that seventy-five per cent of even fifty per cent of the people in the First ward are for the present site, he has more assurance than I think. If the expression of opinion based on East End cars and I know no better way to get at First ward sentiment, are taken ninety per cent of the ward is for change. Furthermore I do not believe that the whole Second ward is for it. The people who live near the jail would gladly see it moved, because of the moral effect on their children. Mr. Kugler has been of the opinion that he now holds on to the old site, but he does not like to change his mind, though he knows the public sentiment is for it."

It is pointed out, too, that all this talk of sacrificing $100,000 by deserting the old site is premature for the reason that nobody knows yet whether the new site is better or not. One of the county commissioners declared this morning that the board will take action at its next meeting to find out why the case has not been pushed forward and prepared for a decision long ago.

"If this board had known definitely two years ago that the county has not an absolute title to the courthouse site, it would have been a different story," said another commissioner, this morning, who could have bought the site for less money than we can get on for now."

TRAFFIC IN DULUTH-SUPERIOR HARBOR DECREASED LAST YEAR

Annual Statistical Report of Duluth-Superior Harbor.

Prepared By Maj. Potter, Engineer of This District.

Decrease of More Than Eight Per Cent From 1903.

The annual statistical report of Maj. Charles L. Potter, engineer in charge of the Lake Superior harbor, for 1904, shows that while the freight tonnage increased 433 per cent over that of 1900, there was a decrease of 8.1 per cent as compared with the amount of freight moved in 1903.

This decrease is accounted for by the fact that there was no freight moving on the lakes in April and May last and that the movement of lake freight was not normal for June. The strike was not settled until some time in June and from that time on until the close of the season the freight movement, compared by months, was greater than for corresponding months in 1903.

No comparison is given of the relative marine commerce of the lake and ocean ports for, as these are based on custom house records, they might be incorrect and misleading. The navigation season for this harbor is only about eight months of the year, while navigation is carried on for twelve months at the ocean ports. Considering the mean monthly freight movement, however, Maj. Potter says the Duluth-Superior harbor practically stands next to New York harbor.

The total amount of freight received and shipped in 1904 was 1,366,738 tons; that for 1903 was 1,491,017 tons.

The following remarks on the commerce of the harbor for 1904 are given: Cargo received, 657,008 tons of cargo were received through the Duluth canal, and 5,119,900 tons through the Wisconsin entry. Of the latter amount 102,416 tons were loaded at Duluth.

Hard coal shows a decrease of 10,855 tons under 1903. Soft coal shows a decrease of 15,820 tons under 1903.

Wheat and other grains show a decrease of 34,024 bushels, with a deduction of $50,820 more than in 1903.

Iron ore, a decrease of 528,490 tons under 1903.

The total freight traffic of 1,366,738 tons shows a decrease of 130,279 tons under 1903, with a valuation of $20,361,000 less than in 1903.

The total number of passengers arriving and departing was 2,578, a decrease of 18,250 under 1903, and an increase of 36,775 over 1902. A part of the large number of passengers is due to the local excursion business.

Vessels recorded at Duluth canal were: Entering, 342; departing, 340. Total tonnage of vessels entering, 5,441,692; not registered tonnage of vessels entering and departing, 632; total tonnage of vessels entering and departing, 6,073,692.

Vessels recorded at Wisconsin entry were: Entering, 906; departing, 906. Total tonnage of vessels entering and departing, 10,241,616; not registered tonnage of vessels entering and departing, 2,677,896; total tonnage of vessels entering and departing, 12,919,512.

Average number of tons of cargo received per day from Duluth and Superior, 1904.

The navigation season covered a period of 217 days. It is calculated from the first departure or arrival to the last departure or arrival.

Large Sum Subscribed For Work on a Drainage Plan.

Dublin, Jan. 11.—A fresh menace is now caused by the phenomenal movement of the great tract of bog in the county of Roscommon. The people of the region around the village of Cloonshivers, which is engulfed, have settled down after the exciting events of the migration, but there has come a new terror in the form of a great lake that is now existing in the wake of the bog. This lake has again forced the bog into action, but this time it threatens the thriving town of Castlebar. It is feared that the pressure of the water may use the mass of peat in the direction of the town and engulf it, as it did the village of Cloonshivers.

At a meeting of the townspeople, presided over by the O'Connor Don, a large sum was subscribed to begin work of drainage on a plan that may relieve the situation.

An Irish college, i. e., a college in which the language is Irish and the studies appertaining to Ireland—will be opened in May next in the Mountains, in Partry. Father James Corbett is parish priest. He is, by the way, a member of the family with which the former American heavy-weight champion is related. Father Corbett is a fluent Irish speaker, and so are all his parishioners. Dr. Douglas Hyde, Edward Martyn, Archbishop Healy of Tuam and J. A. Glynn, chairman of the Galway county council, are the founders of this college, the inception of which will, it is hoped by Gaelic leaguers, mark a crowning point in the movement for the revival of the Irish language in Connacht.

John Foster, ex-constable of the royal constabulary, was charged before the court magistrates with the murder of William Regan, ex-soldier in the American army and a veteran of the civil war. The evidence, which is significant, showed that the prisoner was seen in company with the murdered man near the place where the body was discovered, that he had in his possession a blunt instrument which could have inflicted the wounds, and that subsequent to the murder he attempted to pawn the victim's gold watch and chain.

The prisoner, who reserved his defense, was remanded.

Capt. Nicholas Weldon, master of the Concorde, the vessel in which James Stephens, the famous organizer and head center of the Fenians, sailed to France after escaping from Skibbereen in 1865, died on Thursday last. Stephens was captured by the government in September of that year and imprisoned in Richmond jail, Dublin, whence he escaped one night by the aid of Breslin and Byrne, two warlike associates, and a body of Fenians outside.

Although $10,000 was offered by the British for his capture, Stephens lived in Dublin for four months after his escape, until Weldon, who was the captain of a small brigantine, arranged to take him to France disguised as a sailor. Weldon, after running the gauntlet of the British revenue boats, fled to the coast, where he was forced by stress of weather to put into a Scotch port, whence the Fenian leader made his way to the south of England and crossed, unrecognized, to France. Capt. Weldon's funeral was attended on Saturday by a great concourse.

Michael Breslin, who was the chief factor in the rescue of Stephens, is now in New York city, a prominent factor in every movement having for its aim the benefit of Ireland.

Opening the box he extracted a wounded pigeon. He explained that the bird was a great pet of his family and a valuable carrier with a long record to boot, and that it had been shot by a naughty boy with a pop gun.

He begged the physician to save the bird's broken wing and the man left the hospital smiling.

RIKSDAG OPENS. Stockholm, Jan. 15.—The Riksdag was opened today, occupying the new parliament house for the first time. King Oscar re-appointed the presidents and vice-presidents of both chambers.

BROKEN WING. Of Pigeon Dressed at a Philadelphia Hospital.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 15.—The other day Dr. Musson was in his room on the upper floor of the Children's Hospital when he received a hurried call from a nurse on the ground floor. Summoning a couple of nurses he hurried downstairs expecting to find the victim of some dire catastrophe. He found a man with a single leg in his hands. Dr. Musson asked the man what was the matter. Opening the box he extracted a wounded pigeon. He explained that the bird was a great pet of his family and a valuable carrier with a long record to boot, and that it had been shot by a naughty boy with a pop gun.

He begged the physician to save the bird's broken wing and the man left the hospital smiling.

Recent Extensions of the Great Northern System Being Exploited.

Will Campaign For Settlers Merchants' Excursions Next Summer.

New extensions of the Great Northern are affording the advertising department a chance to show the development of the system and the possibilities of development by settlers.

The first one of these is the Thief River Falls addition, which runs due north from Thief River Falls, Minn., passing through a portion of Red Lake county, the entire width of Marshall county, and continuing into Roseau county. Its present terminus is known as Bush, all within the state of Minnesota.

From the last named point a line has been surveyed to Roseau, located about twelve miles from the Canadian boundary. The land along this line is mostly agricultural land of good quality.

The second one to which attention is called is the new extension of the Lakota branch from Edmore to Minnehaha, and is wholly within Ramsey and Cavalier counties. The branch is in North Dakota, where the country is agricultural.

A third addition is the Granville-Mohall extension, from Granville, on the main line, to Sherwood, N. D., near the international boundary, which brings tributary to it a section of the country that is as large as Vermont and Rhode Island combined, the greater portion of this line is in Ward county and is known as the Mouse River loop. This section is expected to be especially good for the raising of grain and flax. Some believe that the Mouse River country will be more densely settled and developed more rapidly than the Red River country.

A new main line of the system is the Columbia Falls addition, which runs from Columbia Falls, Mont., to Great Falls, Mont., and again connects with the old main line. The building of this line opened a rich country, situated entirely within the state of Montana.

Max Bass, general immigration agent of the company, who is located in Chicago, has issued a pamphlet on the subject of the new extensions, which goes into details of the country, the land, the climate, and the well planned maps, just what the new settlers and the country they take in. The company has issued also four bulletins on different states of the system—Washington, North Dakota, Montana and Northern Minnesota.

Railroad Notes.

Merchants' excursions will be run as usual the coming summer under the auspices of the Great Northern. Secretary H. V. Eya has already taken up correspondence with the railroads on the matter to leave their inclination about the subject. No doubt each of the roads will run excursions from all branches within the usual radius of the railroad.

McFadden, city passenger and ticket agent, was at his office today after a week of duty, having been excused from duty at the South Shore, where he was on duty at the office, but awaiting the pleasure of the court.

President F. P. House, of the Duluth and Iron Range road, has gone to New York.

President W. A. McGonagle, of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, has returned from St. Paul.

PEERS ARE IN WINE DEALS

Noblemen Declared to Be Interested in Wine Sales.

New York, Jan. 15.—A London cable to the Herald says: "Wanted—A peer to represent a firm of wine merchants. Must be a nobleman, and devote his whole time to pushing sales."

This advertisement has not appeared, but reading it one cannot help but be cast out by the London and Dublin wine associations. It is a bold and casting such a possibility in some of the best of England holding forth on a suburban doorstep on the merits of the wine.

George M. Smith's Comment on Game In Copper Country.

Excursion May Be Run To Big Game at Houghton.

Martin Adson, general agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, is in communication with George W. Hilbard, the general passenger agent at Marquette, on the subject of running an excursion to Houghton late in the week for the hockey game which is to take place there next Saturday night and the probability is that a rate of less than one fare for the round trip will be named.

Good going from Duluth and Superior Friday night, and returning Saturday and Sunday nights. If the game should prove a fast one, there is no doubt that the auditorium will be filled in time to get the train back Saturday night, which leaves Houghton at 10:15 a. m.

JANUARY CLEARING SALE!

First—We're getting ready to take count of stock. Second—Stocks must be reduced by many thousands of dollars in the next two weeks. Third—Changes, removals and enlargement of departments compel us to almost close out some of the present stocks. Fourth—Room must be made for new departments. All this must be accomplished in the next two weeks and there's only one way to do it—the Glass Block low price way.

PANTON &amp; WHITE CO.

Thousands and thousands of dollars worth of clean, fresh merchandise will be put into the bargain griddle and priced so low that no sensible woman or man will try to resist the temptation to buy. We have dug up some odds and ends, also, of good stuff that some of you will want and these lots will go so cheap you'll agree there was never anything like it before. Some of the goods will go so cheap it will pay to buy them now even if you won't use the goods for six months. We need the room—you need the goods. The price doesn't stand in the way, so come to this sale and let us get together.

West Duluth

The story of how a West Duluth young man, a member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, was initiated into the local branch of the Daughters of Erin last Friday night, is current along Central avenue.

The Daughters of Erin held an initiation of officers on the night in question. It was not a public installation, but the Hibernian did not know that. He did not feel sure on this point, however, so, before entering the hall, took the precaution to make inquiries for the subject. The women were not averse to having a little fun at the visitor's expense, so informed him that the ceremony was not a private affair and that it would be followed by dancing.

On entering the hall the man was not a little surprised to find that he was the only one of his sex represented as against thirty women. This fact was somewhat disconcerting, but he determined to see the thing to a finish, as long as he had gotten into it so far. During the business session the auditor was given a chair at the head of the hall, where he could observe everything that was going on. He was paid considerable attention, and decided that he was going to have a good time after all. Finally all the business of the evening was transacted, and it was announced that there would be dancing. The man kindly consented to act as caller, but this did not entirely satisfy the ladies. He was, however, a good caller, and after a few minutes a waltz was proposed. There was a rush for the man, and in a short time he was out on the floor, enjoying himself to the fullest extent.

While the waltz was in progress a small carpet was placed from an adjoining room, and as soon as the music commenced the Hibernian, one against thirty, was rushed to the carpet and thrown upon it. The "cross the blanket" act followed and the man was given such a jumping about as he had never received before, to the amusement and laughter of the ladies.

FORE ARE CANADIAN CAUGHT MILLS

Three Saloonkeepers Are Stirred By This Country
Added to the Grinding Grain In List. Bond.

Five Warrants Yet to Be Served—No Raid
Yesterday. Growers Expected to Oppose Retaliation By the Dominion.

Three more saloonkeepers were arraigned in the municipal court this morning and Saturday afternoon on the charge of keeping their places of business open on Sunday, and five more warrants are still in the hands of the city attorney waiting to be served.

John Traw was brought in this morning, and Hans Juveland and William Erickson Saturday afternoon. All three of the prisoners pleaded not guilty and their hearing was set for January 19, with the other nine who were arraigned last week. Twenty cases are now awaiting trial next Friday and Saturday and five more will probably be added to the list before the time for the hearing arrives.

Owing to the fact that the city attorney has demanded a deposit of $5 for each case from the complaining witnesses to cover the court expenses, the serving of the warrants has been delayed.

On a recent occasion a West End man swore out warrants for about a dozen saloonkeepers, but the cases never came to trial, owing to the failure of the complaining witness to appear and prosecute them. The city was out the costs of amounting to some $100. In order to insure the appearance of the complaining witnesses in the present cases a deposit has been demanded, and furnished by the women.

The proprietors of the saloons along Superior street, kept a close watch yesterday for a repetition of the raid. Most of the saloons had sentries posted and it was impossible to gain admittance to them without running the gauntlet of at least one employee of the place. In some of the saloons only persons who were known to the proprietors were admitted. The women and Mr. Holt did not make their appearance, however, and the cases will be confined for the present to those whose places were raided a week ago yesterday. The city will be out the costs of the result of the campaign of the women, if convictions are secured. The minimum figure of $30 would amount to $450 in addition to the costs. The women are not expected to be content to remain passive and pay out this amount for the sake of a license. They will contribute to a common fund to pay attorneys' expenses and will doubtless make the case as unpleasant for the women as possible. Pledge of a similar nature was given by a team of their own, from Redoubt by the posting of sentries, and a system of posing along the sidewalks to catch out the saloonkeepers. It is known to be out on a tour of investigation.

ORGANIZE HOCKEY CLUB

Mass Meeting Will Be Held For That Purpose.

At a meeting to be held this evening in the St. Louis hotel, a hockey club will be organized. The meeting will be called by several local players who are interested in the game, and a large turnout is hoped for. The club is meant to include all players in the central part of the city. The high school players and the team of their own, and the Paramount team includes most of the players in Duluth. On the program of the evening there is no club for the men in the central part of the city.

Arrangements are now being made to secure a rink on which to practice, and it will be known whether or not the West Duluth Curling club can be secured. If it can, regular night games will be chosen for practice, and the club will endeavor to get games with the other two teams in the city.

Jack Foreman, who organized the lacrosse club, is one of the prime movers in the effort to get the hockey players together. He has seen a number of old players and secured their promise to turn out if the club is organized. The meeting this evening is open to anyone who is interested in the game of hockey, whether they are players or not. The men who are behind the movement hope to work up enough interest in the game to secure a large covered rink by next winter.

MRS. DUKE ILL.

Will Be Taken From Hotel To Hospital.

New York, Jan. 15.—Mrs. Brodie L. Duke, whose recent marriage to a half brother of the president of the American Tobacco company, was followed by the sending of her husband to a sanitarium for inquiry into his mental condition, was said to be ill at her hotel today. A physician visited Mrs. Duke's apartments early in the day, and it was later reported that she would be taken to a hospital. There was no evidence at the hotel today that Mrs. Duke was under surveillance. No money, either public or private, were seen at the hotel people said they knew of no one stationed there to watch Mrs. Duke.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 16.—The recent announcement by Secretary Shaw that the Washington government probably will allow United States mills not only to grind Canadian wheat in bond, but also to mix it with American wheat, is causing considerable speculation among Canadian grain men as to its probable effect upon the wheat and flour trade. It is felt by the majority of grain forwarders in Montreal that the drawback will prove beneficial to Canadian grain growers, and any action which the Canadian government should meditate in retaliation would meet with strong opposition on the part of the agricultural community.

The objections to the scheme from a Canadian standpoint are that work now performed by the local milling companies will go to the United States. In addition the American mills are advertising the mixture as Manitoba flour, and are offering it on the British markets at a lower rate than the Canadian article, however superior its quality may be. It is believed, also, that the American miller will be able virtually to import wheat in bond, and, as the regulations are not expected to be very severe on the exportation of a similar amount of American lower grade wheat, the bonds will be released and the Canadian milled product will find its way into the United States market.

While all this means increased demand for the Canadian wheat and will work to the advantage of the Canadian farmer, nevertheless the Canadian milling companies are bound to suffer. Canadian farmers, however, will no longer be at the mercy of the domestic milling companies, but will have two markets to go to hereafter. The effect will be to relieve the farmer of the necessity of holding his wheat for months in the Western elevator. He will have a ready market right at his door in such large milling centers as Minneapolis and other points in the Western states. It is generally believed that the Canadian government will put an export tax on wheat in favor of Canadian millers, and in the meantime the eyes of Canadian brokers, forwarders and millers are turned toward the United States looking for developments.

The question of lumber duties is likely to be made the subject for an important discussion at the present session of the Dominion parliament. The people of British Columbia have determined that the existing advantages enjoyed by American lumbermen, in cutting into the trade of the Northwest, must be swept away, and it was upon this issue that they elected in the recent Dominion elections a solid delegation to parliament to support the Laurier government.

The industrial outlook is a gloomy one in British Columbia at present, mainly on account of the great depression in lumbering. With but one exception, all the sawmills of the Pacific province are closed and thousands of men are out of work, while the output for 1905 will be only half that of the year just closed. Unemployment competition flooded the Canadian prairie provinces with 14,000,000 feet of lumber during the same season.

It is pointed out, also, that Canadian lumbermen are under the serious handicap of paying the long haul in machinery from the East as well as duty. They pay $15 a mile ground rent and fifty cents per thousand in dues, and there is an export duty of five cents a thousand on lumber going into the United States. Now, while people of British Columbia obtain their lumber from the prairie provinces, these latter spend the money received from the coast in buying lumber from across the border, and at the same time, pre-empt timber claims and merging into a company, the lumbermen are fresh from rentals and, at the same time, can send their products into Canada duty free, and thus they have slaughtered the market.

But what the West wants in the way of a duty Ontario lumbermen do not want, and over this matter there is the smoke of war. Ontario men claim that the West-erners should properly seek relief by pounding down the tariff on lumber. The railways will naturally endeavor to steer the discussion clear of themselves and center it on the imposition of an export duty.

TO DISPEL FOG.

Briton To Drive Fog From New York.

New York, Jan. 16.—An attempt will be made soon to dissipate fog in New York harbor by shooting a 250,000-volt electric bolt into the air. This is the method which Sir Oliver Lodge has adopted in his wonderfully successful fog-dispelling experiments at Birmingham university, England. Authentic particulars of the British nobleman's achievement and the electrical mechanism he employed have just been received in New York.

The experiments here will probably be conducted off the quarantine station, Staten Island, or at Governor's Island, at both of which high masts or poles will be available. The fogs in New York harbor have been unusually dense and prolonged this winter.

Sir Oliver asserts he can dissipate and cause the deposition of dust, smoke, fog and mist. Incidentally, he produces rain. These are arranged in groups of four, or multiples of four, in such a way that, instead of the continuous pulses of the alternating current supply being suppressed or non-existent as at present, they are redressed to form the positive and negative discharging streams. The electrical current is kept up in the fog through barbed wires. The current

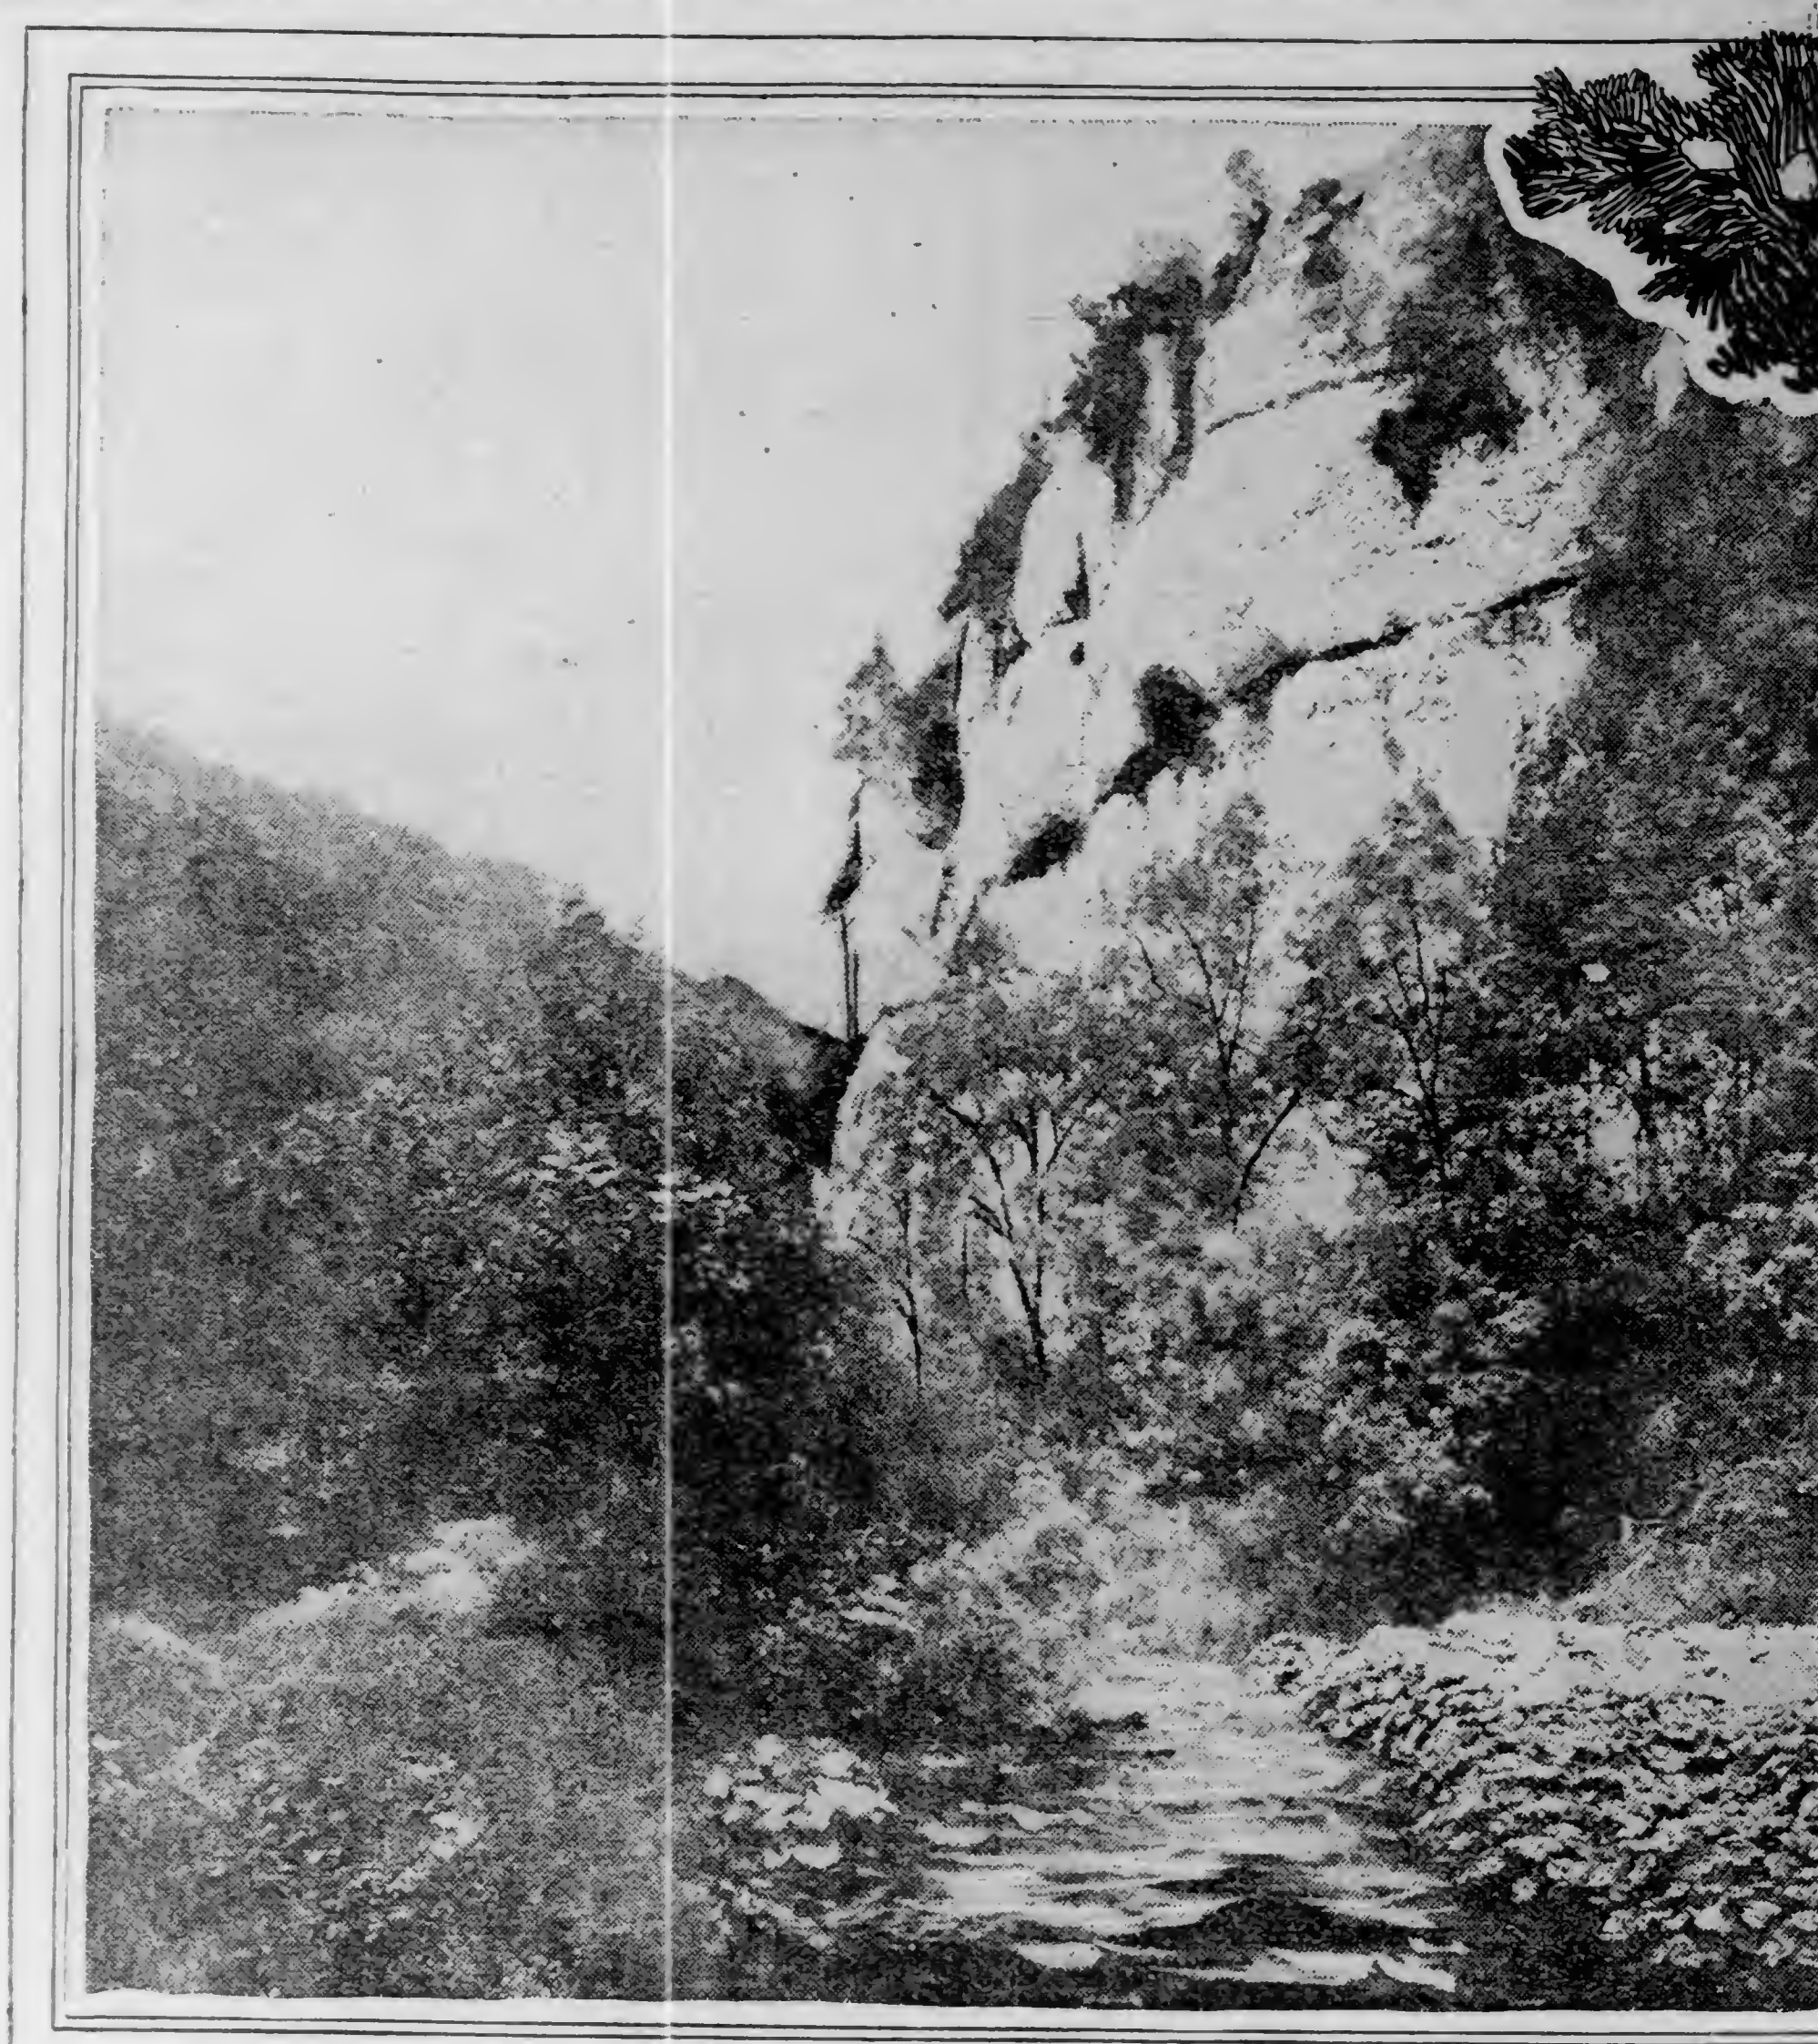

NATURAL RESERVOIR ON BLUE NILE FIFTEEN MILES OUT FROM LAKE TSANA

The Sudan, where the English hero Gordon waited in vain for the relief that Mr. Gladstone never sent—an error, by the way, that caused Mr. Gladstone to change from prime minister of the British Empire to a retired country gentleman in the neighborhood of Folkestone, Suffolk—is about to undergo a transformation from barren, shifting sands, more treacherous and less hospitable than the waves of the North Sea, to a veritable garden. A succession of harvests and pleasant reaches of cultivated fields will greet the traveler along that railway which Kitchener pushed from the junction of the Blue and the White Niles, straight across the sands to Khartoum, and there avenged the death of Gordon. In the Sudan, when it rains, the solid Mohammedans fall on their knees and pray. Such events are told and retold from one generation to another. In other words, scientists calculate that it rains in the Sudan proper about once in every 100 years.

The transformation of the Sudan from an arid, sand-blasted desert to one of the most fertile countries of the world, it is expected, will require five years of hard labor, about $20,000,000, and a force of some 30,000 European engineers and overseers, and probably from 20,000 to 40,000 fellahs. The tremendous change in the prosperity of Egypt is owing to the marvelous engineering which has enabled the British to dam the Nile in several places and by the construction of regulators to make it possible for the Valley of the Nile to secure a regular and certain irrigation. This means that the famines which enabled Joseph to gain the favor of the Pharaoh by his true Jewish forethought and commercial ability are now a thing of the past in Egypt. The lean and fat kine have been replaced in modern Egypt under the sagacious ruling of Lord Cromer, who, in the name of the Khedive, rules Egypt as a benevolent despot. The Egyptian fellah has been able to pay more than the interest of the bonds and stocks issued to secure the funds of the irrigation in Egypt proper.

But the Sudan, which is separated from Egypt by the lofty cliffs of the Nile Mountains, and which is really a strong depression which leads up to the slightly higher desert of the Sahara, presents a problem in irrigation far more difficult. Nevertheless, the engineers, who for years have been studying the possibilities of the Blue Nile in connection with irrigating the Sudan, have solved the question. Sir William Garstin, who is at the head of the department of irrigation in Egypt under Lord Cromer, after studying the reports made to him by Engineers C. E. Dupuis and E. M. Tottenham, has grouped the various engineering and scientific problems in connection with irrigating the Sudan under the following heads:

Open dam near Wad Medani, on the Blue Nile.
Dam and storage reservoir near Rasafsa, on the Blue Nile.
River Gash irrigation.
Dam and storage reservoir near Khass-el-Girba, on the Atbara River.
Storage reservoirs on the Dinder and Rahad Rivers.

WHERE THE WATER COMES FROM.
The water, which it is proposed to store and gradually let drip down during the dry season in the bed of the Blue Nile, actually descends from the heavens over a large section of Abyssinia. As a result the British fertilization of the Sudan practically and potentially depends upon the consent of Emperor Menelik, the most potent barometer and altogether crafty ruler of Abyssinia. Menelik withheld his consent for some time. In the first place, the Sudan was the natural and providential guarantee against his future absorption into the maw of the British lion. With a cultivated and consequently populous and more or less civilized Sudan, Abyssinia would occupy the now historical and traditional post in British diplomacy of being the next natural and inevitable addition to the British Empire. However, Menelik has been worked on and bribed and lied to so thoroughly and so skillfully that his counter-irrigation of the French Foreign Office. The key to the whole situation is Lake Tsana.

DERBER AFRICA JUNCTION OF BLUE AND WHITE NILES

Lake Tsana is about the size of Lake Ontario and is the largest body of fresh water in North Africa. While not the chief source of the Blue Nile, which gushes through the Sudan five months in the year, and is merely a succession of shallow puddles the remaining time. It is the only possible hope of Sudan irrigation. And yet, now that it has been arranged with Abyssinia, the problem of irrigating the Sudan is in many ways an easy one. The Blue Nile has none of the terrific falls which plagued the engineers who arranged for the construction of the Nile.

When calculating what the possibilities of Lake Tsana as a storage reservoir may be, it will be as well to note what the natural discharges of the Blue Nile are, and what supplementing they will require at certain seasons.

The flood discharge varies from 10,000 to 120,000 gallons a second, sufficient for all land will in reach. If the Sudan absorbs so considerable a quantity of the flood as to affect the levels of the Nile in Egypt materially, this will be a matter of no consequence, when all Egypt is converted to perennial irrigation. If it is not so converted, then Egypt must meet the situation by making dams to produce artificially the levels required, as the volume of the flood will be always more than sufficient. In high floods the reduction of the flood levels will be a relief to Egypt. It is, therefore, evident that the Nile supply is equal to all requirements, since a discharge of 30,000 gallons a second would fill 1,000,000 acres of basin in 30 days; though what the possible basin may become is one of those things which is not yet determined.

In winter the Blue Nile discharge shrinks from 4,000 to 2,000 gallons a second, or, in other words, from 250,000,000 to 125,000,000 gallons a day, sufficient for a million acres if the minimum discharge is used as determining the area, or for 1,500,000 acres if the average discharge is taken.

In summer the Blue Nile discharge at Khartoum may be anything between 2,000 gallons a second and nothing. In 1903 it fell to nothing. So that, without storage of water, summer crops cannot be grown by irrigation from the Blue Nile. And so comes the consideration of the advantages offered by Lake Tsana as a reservoir.

The area of Lake Tsana itself is 3,000 square miles, and its catchment, exclusive of the lake area, is 14,000 square miles. The rainfall is three feet each year, falling almost wholly in the four months of June, July, August and September. The proportion of the rainfall that reaches the lake is 25 per cent. The outflow from the lake is calculated to be 25,000,000 gallons a day, an average for the year.

Calculating in the same way in the case of the White Nile lakes, we have the following:

	Gallons
Quantity entering the lake.....	15,725,000,000
Quantity discharged.....	25,240,000,000

Quantity evaporated..... 26,490,000,000

From the foregoing calculations it is evident that the effective reservoir capacity of the lake is 20,000,000,000 gallons, and it may fall to 20,000,000,000 in a year of scanty rainfall and rise to 50,000,000,000 in a year of abundant rain. Sir W. Garstin accepts the figures of 20,000,000,000 as probably obtainable. If, now, this total available volume is concentrated in the outflow of 100 days—a regulator, to be built at the outfall, being kept closed for the remainder of the year—the discharge obtainable would be 200,000,000 gallons a day, sufficient—allowing for loss on the way—for about 2,000,000 acres of land under perennial irrigation. But perennially irrigated lands should, for the sake of rotation of crops, have a supply of water available at all seasons. Now the natural winter discharge of the Blue Nile is, at its lowest, sufficient for 1,000,000 acres only. If then we make allowance for keeping up the Blue Nile discharge in winter to 2,000 gallons a second, so as to provide sufficient for a gross area of 1,500,000 acres, the quantity available for storage to use during the 100 days of summer will be reduced to 20,000 gallons and the gross area of land under perennial irrigation to about 1,500,000 acres, and this is, apparently, the maximum that the Sudan can expect from the Blue Nile and Lake Tsana. There may be other reservoir sites besides Lake Tsana still to be discovered on the Blue Nile itself or on its tributaries, but if favorable sites are found there is still to be solved the problem of filling them and at the same time of avoiding mud deposit in the reservoir.

WORK ON LAKE TSANA.

As regards the work necessary to convert Lake Tsana into a reservoir to store 20,000,000,000 gallons a regulator should be built on the outflow channel about 15 miles distant from the lake. The regulator would have a series of openings of nine feet each, with its floor sunk 12 feet below the high-water level in the lake. It would be capable of passing 200,000,000 gallons a day and would have to hold up six feet head of water. The rock bed above and below the regulator would have to be cut down for some distance to form a channel of approach and discharge. Were such a reservoir made, a dam near Wad Medani would also be necessary to provide for the distribution of the summer water to the lands lying between the Sudan and Khartoum, between the White and Blue Niles, and the lands on the right of the Blue Nile.

One of the great advantages of the system of basin irrigation, which is being built now in the Sudan, is that large areas can be cultivated with a very few laborers, and as the Sudan is one of the most sparsely populated portions of the earth, that will be a big point gained. The two great systems of irrigation are known as basin and channel irrigation. Basin irrigation is where the water is run off into basins some seven or eight miles apart, and from each basin some 40 or 50 square miles of territory are supplied with water, while in the channel irrigation the water simply runs down into little ditches or channels at the will of the farmer. The basin irrigation is more easily controlled and is under more even distribution, owing to its centralized method of handling the water, and in a decidedly lawless territory, such as the Sudan, the basin irrigation is far more practicable. At the same time both these systems can be carried on in the same territory. The basin system is more expensive, but the British engineers consider it the best for the Sudan for at least a century to come.

Immediately to the south of Khartoum a large number of basins are now being erected, which should irrigate about 1,000,000 acres on that side of the river, and also feed the flood channels of 1,000,000 acres which will be embanked and inundated every year in the upper Egypt basin system. These basins lie between Wad Medani, Shendi and Berber. The Blue Nile will be relieved of a portion of its labor after it reaches the Maroe Islands, where the Atbara River joins the Blue Nile and relieves somewhat the demand on the main stream of the Sudan.

The true agricultural future of the Sudan, however, lies in the direction of summer irrigation, rather than in the development of those crops which can be ripened during the summer months. The soil of the Gherizeh and of a large portion of the lands lying to the east of the Nile is wanting, viz: a winter rainfall. With this, winter crops cannot be raised, except in comparatively small areas adjacent to the river. Canal or basin irrigation must then be supplied as a substitute for the absence of rain in winter. Were this project the Province of Sennar and the southern portion of the Province of Khartoum might become one of the finest wheat-producing areas in the world.

Water in Winter Needed.

The winter discharge of the Blue Nile falls in January or February. The rainy season is from 170,000,000 gallons a day, Sir W. Garstin reckons that such a declares that, managed in the same fashion as the irrigation of Egypt proper, at the end of 10 years the revenues derived from the Sudan irrigation should pay a little over 10% per cent. on the investment, thus leaving a clear 6 per cent. to be poured into the sinking funds under Lord Cromer's control. The working out of these irrigation projects in Egypt have been the financial and human salvation of the country. Under Ismail Pasha the financial condition of Egypt could not have been worse.

What We Will Do in the West.

The American people have a somewhat similar problem for them in the great West, which has already assumed the attitude of a national question, both the recent political platforms having declared in favor of prompt aid for the arid lands in the West. Humanity in general has become so accustomed to considering that what the farmer does best that it is difficult to convince the average American that farming where irrigation is intelligently applied is far more profitable and less laborious. The arid lands of the West, when properly irrigated will undoubtedly form the garden spot of the continent. The taxes for the water can be absolutely relied on to be less than the losses from drought or too heavy rainfall or from frost and hail in territories which depend on a natural water supply.

The first great undertaking in the irrigation line in the Sudan proper was, of course, the construction of the first dam, 16 miles south of where the Blue Nile flows out of Lake Tsana. At this point the Blue Nile is slightly over a mile and a half in width, and just after it leaves the body of the lake it has a very heavy fall and for a greater portion of its course a rocky bed. This means that the engineering difficulty should not be as severe as in the main Nile, where the great dam had to be constructed on a softer bottom, entailing deep excavations for a proper bed. Moreover, the sides of the dam near Lake Tsana are formed of strong rock, ribbed strata, which saves an immense amount of concrete and granite construction. The loss of water, therefore, will be comparatively small, leakage being almost out of the question, and when the system of locks is finally constructed in the river bed between Khartoum and Khartoum the canals will carry off the water on either side. Thus a summer irrigation of Gherizeh and of the eastern provinces will be easily and simply effected. Supplementary storage reservoirs will be built wherever the small rivers of the Sudan flow into the Blue Nile. The Atbara situation has already been explained. Similar reservoirs are being built for the Dinder and Rahad rivers.

TO BE COMPLETE BY 1913.

By 1913, then, at the latest, the fields of the Sudan should be green with millet and corn, while the most important crop is expected to prove the fine Egyptian cotton, which excels the American product, and may yet make Egypt one of the wealthiest countries in the world. France now realizes more bitterly than ever the importance of the Sudan, and the restriction of her African influence to that almost worthless strip of land edging the Southern Mediterranean coast. With an irrigated Sudan one finds inevitably an irritated France, but while France may prove irritable, she will hardly prove intractable.

The spending of what will total $50,000,000 in forcing the waters of Lake Tsana to hold their dashing forces and to gently ripple as the need arises over the sands of the Sudan is undoubtedly a political triumph for Great Britain, yet to the world at large and the Sudan in particular the constant encroachment of Great Britain, however prompted by a selfish absorption of territory, can only prove an unalloyed blessing. The triumph of the Briton in Africa is merely a case of the survival of the fittest. A study of British methods in Egypt is now already being made by several of our finest engineers, under the direction of the State Department at Washington.

In British hands the spade and ploughshare inevitably succeed the sabre and the rifle. The picture of the undaunted and abandoned Gordon holding his mud-walled citadel in Khartoum in 1898, dying finally upon the savage spears of the Mahdi's Arab horsemen, is slowly but surely fading to give place to a Sudanese landscape of rose gardens and fields ripe for the harvest. Certainly the fairy tales of the future are those created by that modern magician—the engineer; those engineers who now boldly attack a continent and change the face of nature as moulded thousands of years ago.

Wintry Winds and Blizzards Can't Hold Back the Selling!

January with its Clearance of Garments—Furs and other wearables for Women and Children—the White Wear Sale with its piles of new, fresh and beautiful white wear—the new arrivals of Shirt Waists of linen, lawn and other materials—and the new arrivals of Infants' and Children's white and colored Dresses—will make a busy place of the store during these wintry days—and we invite you to come!

The Garment Clearance!

We are not allowing the slightest decrease of interest in this clearance of women's garments. They must be sold!

Prices of Suits and Costumes average less than half value.

"I have been everywhere," said a customer last week, "and I have seen nothing that equals these suits in style, general dressiness and at such low prices." Prices seem ridiculously low, 'tis true, but success is never ridiculous. We began this clearance with the intention of making it the most remarkable occasion of its kind in Rochester, the matter of cost not being taken into consideration. What we do consider, and what gratifies us, is the great number of absolutely new customers we have made.

There's a profit in good will which dollars cannot compute.

Our way of serving the public has been selling honest, through-and-through garments, at fair prices during the regular season, and a handsome slice off these fair prices at the season's end.

Half price and less than half price, which means half and less than half value here. Reductions genuinely generous.

That's what makes this reduction sale such a remarkable occasion and which will accomplish our desire: That of closing out all our winter stock to make way for the next that's new.

Tailored Suits and Costumes--

$37.50 for Costumes that were $75.00.
$25.00 for Costumes that were $50.00.
$35.00 for Suits that were $67.00.
$25.00 for Suits that were $45.00.
$25.00 for Suits that were $48.50.
$15.00 for Suits that were $38.50.
$12.50 for Suits that were $25.00.
$10.00 for Suits that were $20.00.
$7.50 for Suits that were $15.00.
$25.00 for Velvet Suits that were $47.50.
$35.00 for Velvet Suits that were $62.50.
$42.50 for Velvet Suits that were $85.00.

We urge you to think of these reductions in connection with the character of the garments of which our stock is composed. Or better still, come to the store and see the goods themselves with the mark-down figures before you.

The fact that we are giving the best garment values in the city is the reason that people are patronizing this sale so overwhelmingly.

Big and Little Girls' Coats in the Clearance.

The assortment is still very good and the reductions a half and a third off. Divided into two ranges.

More Fur Lined Coats at Great Savings.

$49.50 for $75.00 kinds.
$39.50 for $57.50 kinds.

Another small shipment came to us from the same maker that shipped those few that went so fast the other day.

All 50 inches long—finest broadcloth and lined with Siberian squirrel.

Those with shawl storm collars of mink and Persian lamb, $49.50.

Our Finest Furs--At Radical Reductions

A coincidence. Cold January, February and even March days, when furs are the most comfortable as well as the most beautiful of outer wraps to wear.

Our finest Fur pieces offered at the deepest sort of price cuts.

Various reasons prevail—all of which are of but vague interest to you. The obvious one—that we wish to make a clean sweep of our furs, while their usefulness is at its height, and so start the next season quite unhampered by a carried-over stock, finds its result in the stirring offerings of Fur Coats, Fur-lined Wraps, and the smaller pieces, which we present herewith:

SEVERAL HANDSOME MINK SCARFS—from the short to the real long in single, double, or triple stripe—at reductions of a third to close to a half.

SEVERAL HANDSOME ISABELLA AND SABLE FOX SCARFS and sets—running from 60 inches to 120 inches in length, with or without muffs to match—all handsomely selected skins.

A HANDSOME HUDSON BAY SABLE SET—trimmed with real Ermine tails—one of the most beautiful fur sets ever shown in the city—regularly $250.00—at $150.

NECK PIECES—of Mink, Persian Lamb, Krimmer—and various combinations—$8.00 to $35.00.

At reductions of a third to a half.

COATS OF NEARSEAL—SABLE SQUIRREL—KRIMMER—BEAVER, ETC.—plain or trimmed—$65.00 Coats for $47.50—$55.00 Coats for $37.50—$45.00 Coats for $27.50.

A HANDSOME BEAVER SET—in very latest style neck scarf and muff—regularly $75—at $47.50.

Fur Coats.

Finest Alaska Seal at $250—from $350.
Persian Lamb, trimmed with Ermine collars and cuffs, regularly $200—at $100.

The Skirt Clearance.

$35.00 Voile Over Silk Skirts—$25.00.

These fashionable voile skirts are a necessary part of every woman's wardrobe, and when we concede a reduction of this sort on skirts of this sort it should bring plenty of buyers Saturday.

$22.50 for $35.00 Skirts is one instance—We will also include in this sale of handsome dress skirts tomorrow—all of fine imported voiles over silk drops.

$47.50 Ones at $37.50! $42.50 Skirts at $32.50!

We will also place on sale tomorrow our entire lines of Dress Skirts at One-third off! The materials are Panamas, Chevots and Serges!

Walk'g Length Skirts at decided reductions

The balance of our winter stock, consisting of chevots, mixtures and Panama cloths, at one-third off—

$7.50 Skirts at $5.50. $9.00 Skirts at $6.00.
$15.00 Skirts at $10.00.

The Waist Sale.

It includes all of our present stock of warm material, such as Nun's Veiling, wool Batistes, Albatross, Mohairs, etc.—

$1.75 Waists $1.00 $5.00 Waists $2.90.
$2.75 Waists $1.50 $6.00 Waists $3.75.
$3.50 Waists $2.00.

First Invoices of New Shirt Waists.

Quality--and the White Sale!

The word "Sale" is a sort of ill-treated orphan-child, in a great many people's eyes. It doesn't signify anything but low-grade goods at catch-penny prices.

True, this hard fate is deserved, in many cases. The way many White Sales are run has brought well-merited obloquy upon its head.

It is just there that the White Sale—foremost, and best of the clan—is different.

There is the low-priced end of it, to be sure—but every garment it includes is honest, without being poor; pretty, without being tawdry; full of worth, wear and comfort.

And there's Quality, besides—the delicate, fine garments that delight the eye and satisfy the tastes of their well-bred possessors—but they are White Sale Garments, for all that—i. e., advertised.

The Price Concessions are one-third less than those usually asked for goods of equal value.

Chemise.

Chemise of Cambric, in skirt and knee length models with circular neck and trimming of Val, and torchon lace—at 75c.

Chemise of Nainsook, in Marguerite and Pompadour effects, trimmed with embroidery, lace, beading and ribbon—at $1.00.

Chemise of French Nainsook in short, knee and skirt lengths, skirts finished with deep, embroidery ruffle, wide ribbon drawn embroidery insertions or elaborate lace effects, Pompadour, V or round neck—at $1.25.

Chemise of Nainsook, with fitted back, combination embroidery and German Val, trimmings, in novelty designs, skirts trimmed with insertion and edge—at $1.50.

Chemise of Lawn or Nainsook in decolette, Marguerite and Pompadour novelty models—at $2.00, $2.50 to $4.50.

Petticoats.

Skirts of Cambric, deep umbrella flounce, trimmed with torchon insertion and edge or embroidery flounce—at $1.00.

Skirts of Cambric in an exhaustive variety of models in one or two ruffled effects with hemstitched hem and insertion, deep Hamburg flouncings and torchon trimmed effects—at $1.25.

Skirts of Cambric with Hamburg ruffle and insertion to match or deep umbrella flounce with four rows of insertion and edge to match underlay and ruffle—at $1.50.

Skirts of Cambric with section flounce of insertions and edge to match or embroidery flounce with wide Hamburg insertion tucks and hemstitching—at $2.00.

SENSATION CAUSED IN LEGISLATURE BY AN ATTACK ON CLAPP

His Vote For Speaker
Clague.

Clapp Received Majority
In Both House and Senate.

Senator Laybourn Introduces His Bill on Grand Juries.

FROM THE HERALD
ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. K. Ware, of Northfield, a Republican member of the house, has cast the only vote of interest there was in the vote on United States senator which both houses took this morning. He voted for speaker Clague, and in explaining his vote took a couple of shots that stung. He said in substance:

"I have been unable to discover any reason why I should vote for Clapp to succeed himself. Because he would not declare for him before the primary election, his friends made a bitter fight against me and supported a Democratic candidate for the place I sought. I think this is sufficient reason. If there were no others, why I should not bow to the will of the majority and vote for Clapp. I don't like to do what I am going to do, but I swallowed one bitter pill when I voted for the Republican candidate for governor Nov. 8, and I don't care to swallow another. I said then that, if the Republicans swallowed their candidate then, they would throw him up two years later, and they threw him up quicker than that. Senator Clapp's friends have failed to point to a single bit of evidence in his record that he is for the people. He kept silent on the vital questions that were interesting the people until the last moment and thus caught some members who were on the fence. I cast my vote for a man whose actions have shown that he is for the people. Hon. Frank Clague, speaker of the house."

Mr. Ware was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his speech.

In the house the election of a United States senator was made a special order for 11 o'clock, and when the hour arrived, Mr. D. F. Flower, of St. Paul, placed Senator Clapp in nomination in a neat and pointed talk. The nomination was seconded by representatives L. H. Johnson, Minneapolis; George E. Perley, Moorhead; J. G. Lennon, Minneapolis; Ole Peterson, Anckerly; George McKee, Gaylord; P. E. Dowling, Eveleth; J. A. Gates, Kenyon; C. E. Hoque, Benson; Lewis Munroe, St. Paul; and W. B. Anderson, Winona.

Dr. Gates, the only Van Sant man, said he bowed to the will of the majority.

Mr. Hammergren, who came out during the contest with a statement against Clapp, called for a second nomination, but Senator Clapp would have to stand for the things the people want.

Dr. J. H. Dorsey, of Glencoe, placed Mayor Robert A. Smith, of St. Paul, in the field as the Democratic candidate. Henry McGill, of St. Paul, seconded the nomination.

The vote was: Clapp, 111; Smith, 6; Clague, 1. Four Democrats voted for Clapp.

In the senate the proceedings were less interesting. Senator McGill of St. Paul nominated Senator Clapp and Senator Callahan of Minneapolis seconded him, and the senate took no action.

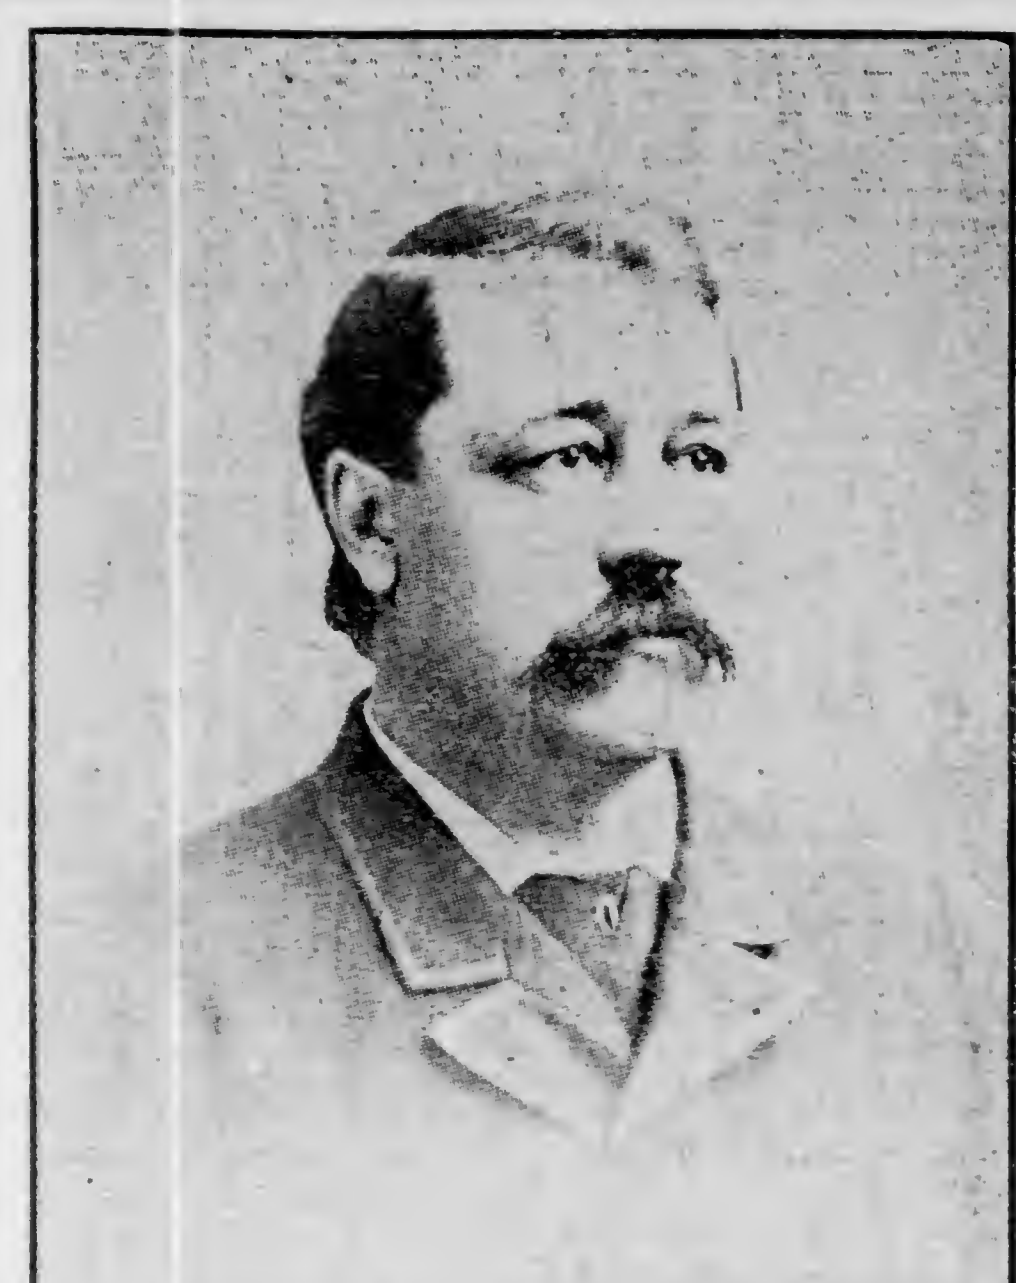

Senator Laybourn introduced his grand jury bill, which have been fully described in The Herald. The only change in the bill as drawn up is that where the original bill provided that twenty-five people could petition for a session of the grand jury, the bill as introduced makes it 25.

Senator Schiller of Dakota county introduced a similar measure providing that district courts may try criminals upon information which does away with the necessity of grand jury indictments.

Senator Olmstead of Hennepin county

MORMONS HAVE BEEN SHOT FOR BREAKING OATHS

Salt Lake, Jan. 17.—A special to the Tribune from Eureka, Utah, says that Bishop Daniel Connolly, in an address before the Mormon Young People's society of that place, denounced as "traitors" the witnesses in the Smoot investigation who have revealed the endowment house oaths, and declared that he had known men to be shot to death for breaking their oaths.

STARTLING CHANGES IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY

Would Be Worked By Statute Revision Commission's Code.

Probable That Legislature Will Leave Things as at Present.

FROM THE HERALD
ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposed statutes of Minnesota, presented by the revision commission to the legislature yesterday, would work some startling changes in the government of St. Louis county, if adopted without change.

These changes would principally refer to the compensation of county officers, and they will probably nearly all be changed so as to leave things where they are now.

The code repeals the law giving the sheriff $4000 per year, and puts him back on a fee basis, where he was prior to the session of 1901.

It increases the county auditor's salary from $3500 to $5000 a year.

It repeals the law giving the county auditor $15,000 per year clerk hire and the county treasurer $5000 per year clerk hire, and leaves the matter entirely with the county board.

It increases the salaries of the county commissioners from $800 per year to $900.

The Herald representative called these changes to the attention of T. J. Knox, of the commission on the revision of the statutes, yesterday afternoon. He stated that it was not the intention of the commission to make such radical changes, and he announced his intention of seeing to it that they do not go.

It was not the province of the commission to pass legislation, or to propose any. But an attempt has been made to establish, as nearly as may be, a uniform system of compensation for county officers. These changes referred to, with the exception of that on the county commissioners' salary, were due purely to oversight and will be remedied.

NIEDRINGHAUS WILL BE ELECTED SENATOR

Principal Opponent In House Withdraws His Opposition.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 17.—At noon Speaker Hill announced voting for the United States senator as a special order of business and that it would take precedence over the voting on the adoption or rejection of the majority and minority reports of the investigating committee. Representative W. K. Swift, of Green, placed Mr. Niedringhaus in nomination.

Representative Grace, of St. Louis, who presented the resolution calling for the investigation of Niedringhaus, arose and said:

"I have to do that becomes a man. In behalf of Col. Kerens and his gallant friends, I take pleasure in seconding the nomination of Thomas K. Niedringhaus."

Shrieks of delight from the Niedringhaus followers greeted this announcement.

Jefferson City, Jan. 17.—Representative Tullis, chairman of the committee appointed to investigate the campaign contributions of Thomas K. Niedringhaus, chairman of the Republican state committee, and caucus nominee for United States senator, submitted the report of his committee to the house today. Representatives Casey, of Jackson, and O'Donnell, of St. Louis, Democratic members of the committee, filed a minority report along the lines of the senate committee report made yesterday. Casey moved to substitute the minority for the majority report. The majority report of the house committee says:

"That the action of Thomas K. Niedringhaus, so far as the investigation of your committee is concerned, which investigation was full and fair, was honest and above criticism."

The report adheres to the declaration that the contribution was to the Republican city campaign committee of St. Louis, that Niedringhaus did not contribute $25,000 to that fund and that he filed no such statement with the recorder of deeds, because he was not acting treasurer of the city committee. It finds that as chairman of the state committee, Niedringhaus filed a statement including the $25,000, which was properly credited to him and that $2500 of the said amount, that no money was contributed by brewers to influence legislation and that the explanations of Niedringhaus in regard to this $25,000 was entirely satisfactory.

After the motion to adopt the minority report had been seconded, Representative Whitcomb (Dem.), of Monroe, made a motion to have the Niedringhaus testimony read.

"If there is any objection to the testimony will be read verbatim," said the speaker.

SENATOR MITCHELL SAYS HIS ACCUSERS ARE ATROCIOUS LIARS

U. S. SENATOR AND CONGRESSMAN WHO HAVE BEEN INDICTED FOR FRAUD.

SENATOR JOHN H. MITCHELL.

BINGER HERMANN.

Indictments charging conspiracy to defraud the government are standing against Senator John H. Mitchell and Congressman Binger Hermann. Senator Mitchell makes an impassioned speech to the senate denying his guilt.

NEED NOT PAY DIVIDENDS ON COMMON STOCK

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 17.—Vice Chancellor Stevenson today filed an opinion sustaining the demurrer of the United States Steel corporation in the suit brought against that company by Alfred Stevens to compel the payment of dividends on the company's common stock. The decision practically disposes of the whole case. Stevens filed a bill to enforce the payment of dividends on the common stock out of alleged accumulation of profits amounting in January, 1904, to $66,000,000. Stevens claimed that the company was obliged under the statutes to use this money for the paying of dividends on the common stock. In sustaining the demurrer, Vice Chancellor Stevenson says that while $66,000,000 is a large amount in itself, it is only 6 per cent of the company's capital stock and there is no proof to show that the company had this money in actual cash. It might have been invested, he says, in material and there is nothing to indicate a policy on the part of the corporation to favor the interests of preferred stockholders. More than this, he says, Mr. Stevens' bill does not allege a single fact which shows that the retention of these accumulated profits was not justified by the requirements of the business operations of the company.

The sustaining of the demurrer is equivalent to a dismissal of Mr. Stevens' bill.

TESTIMONY REFUTED

State Introduces Evidence
In Rebuttal In Koch Trial.

State Agrees to Strike
In Case.

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—A special to the Dispatch from New Ulm, Minn., says: The state began taking rebuttal testimony in the Koch trial when court convened today, but very little of interest was brought out. Anton Eickert was called to rebut the testimony of E. G. Koch. He testified that on Nov. 22 he had a conversation with Mr. Koch, and that the latter had told him that George came home on the night of the murder at 10 o'clock.

Henry Snobewitch was held to refute the testimony of Anton Horsak, who testified that shortly after 9 o'clock on the night of the murder he saw a strange man going into the Gehardt salarway. His testimony was very indelible, and when questioned as to the time he left Horsak's shop, said he was not present.

Dr. Reinecke and G. W. Murfin were called to rebut Mr. Brock's statement, but objection by the defense was sustained.

Policeman Welsenborn could not remember whether the night was dark or sunlight.

"You are the man who was afraid of the dark?" asked Somerville.

"Yes, sir," said the officer with a grin.

The state rested at 9:20 a. m. The defense asked permission to insert objections to the letters introduced in evidence by the state. Refused. The attorneys stated that they were willing to forego the admission of more expert testimony if the state would consent to striking out the state's exhibits. The state consented.

KOCH A GOOD WITNESS.

His Story on Stand Made Good Impression.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 17.—The cross-examination of Dr. Koch by Gen. Childs was closed last evening. He was on the witness stand five hours and his attitude and general bearing were such as to point toward his innocence.

Concerning the typewriter in court, Dr. Koch said he never used it or any typewriting machine as far as that is concerned. He denied having taken the sulphate of strychnine tablets

RUSSIANS OUTFLANKED BUT THEY GOT AWAY

Japs Surrounded Milchenko's Column
as It Retired Northward.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 17.—Gen. Kurapatkin telegraphing yesterday to the emperor, reported an attempt of a strong Japanese detachment of infantry, cavalry and artillery to cut off the column of Gen. Milchenko's cavalry. Jan. 14, as the latter was about to retire northward. The Japanese under cover of mist outflanked the Russians. A battle ensued, the Russian artillery inflicting heavy losses on the Japanese at short range and then retiring. The Russian losses were five officers and forty men killed or wounded. The stores at Yinkow were ablaze the whole night. "It is now cold at night, but warm and bright during the day."

St. Petersburg, Jan. 17.—The government has not renewed the state of siege in Manchurian cities at the opening of the new year, civil law in such places replacing military rule.

The Russian papers protest against the imputation that Gen. Milchenko's cavalry violated Chinese neutrality while carrying a Russian courier to Yinkow. They crossed the Liao river above Newchwang claiming that a small strip on the west bank is distinctly reserved as included in the sphere of hostilities.

While the daring cavalry raid on the line of Japanese communications was welcomed as a happy augury of the operations of the new year, the general staff does not give encouragement to the idea that the raid was a precursor of a serious Russian movement.

DUTCH STEAMER CAPTURED.
Tokio, Jan. 17, 2:30 p. m.—A Japanese torpedo boat destroyer captured the Dutch steamer Wilhelm, which was carrying Cardiff coal to Vladivostok in the Tsushima straits Monday and brought her to Sascho.

A first-class armored cruiser is being constructed at the naval dock at Kure.

TO EXCHANGE PRISONERS.
St. Petersburg, Jan. 17.—Japan's consent to an exchange of prisoners, according to class and rank, has just been received here. Consequently in the near future three Russian officers captured on the Russian volunteer fleet Ekaterinograd by the Japanese will be exchanged for three Japanese officers captured on the Japanese transports Kinkhin and Sado. The question of an exchange of prisoners on this basis was raised by Russia last summer.

IKE VAIL, KING OF THE "BUNCO MEN" DIES AT AGE OF SEVENTY

New York, Jan. 17.—"Ike" Vail, for almost half a century known throughout this country and Europe as the "King of Bunco Men," is dead at the age of 70. He passed away under an assumed name at the home of his nephew in the Bronx and has been buried near his birthplace, Fishkill-on-the-Hudson. Estimates as to the money accumulated by Vail during his palmy days agree that he must have taken in considerably more than $1,000,000, but he spent it quickly and was finally driven to picking pockets.

Vail was discharged from the Kings county penitentiary a month ago, after serving a year for picking the pocket-book of a woman in a Brooklyn store. Because of his health, the judge re-

TELLS THE SENATE SO

In Vigorous Statement
Concerning His Position In Matter.

He Attacks the United States Attorney In the Case.

"I assert in the most positive and unqualified manner that each and every one of these charges, in so far as they relate to, or involve me, are absolutely, unqualifiedly, and atrociously false, and I here and now indignantly and defiantly denounce their authors and each and every one of them, and brand them publicly as malicious and atrocious liars."—Senator Mitchell in speech before senate.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Senator Mitchell of Oregon made a statement in the senate yesterday regarding his indictment in connection with the Oregon and frauds. At the outset the senator declared that the charges made against him, if true, unfitted him to occupy his seat in the senate. He then detailed the charges, and made a general denial of all of them.

Following this general denial with no more specific, the senator spoke substantially as follows:

"But I desire to be more specific, and, therefore, I further deny, in terms the most absolute and unqualified of which I am capable of saying, that I never either in the month of January, 1902, in the state of Oregon, or at any other time or place, unlawfully or feloniously, or otherwise, conspired with Binger Hermann, then commissioner of the general land office, and S. A. D. Pater, Horace G. McKinley, D. W. Tarpley, Emma L. Watson, Solomon E. Ormsby, Clark E. Leomis and William H. Davis, or with either or any of them, or with any other person or persons, to defraud the United States out of any part of its public lands, either in township 31, south of range 7 east, in the state of Oregon, or any other public lands either in the state of Oregon or elsewhere."

The senator then said he thought it proper he should state precisely what he had in connection with Pater and the lands in question, and some of the circumstances connected with the actions of the grand jury and the publication in the press regarding the charges.

He said that about March 1 or 2, 1902, Pater called on him in Washington, with a letter of introduction from Hon. F. P. Mays, a prominent attorney of

NO INSURANCE FOR JAPANESE

Companies Consider Risk Too Great In State of Washington.

Seattle, Jan. 17.—Within the past few days several local fire insurance agents have received instructions not to write policies upon sawmills or shingle mills with which Japanese are in any way identified, either as employees in any capacity, or as owners. Underwriters do not precisely agree as to the reason, which is based upon the "moral hazard." It is agreed that the most important factor is the growing hostility to Japanese labor on the part of white laborers, which is thought to be liable to result at any time in physical violence, with consequent danger to property through open trouble or incendiarism.

WILL SAIL FOR VLADIVOSTOK

Steamer Olympia to Carry Coal For the Russians.

Astoria, Ore., Jan. 17.—The steamer Olympia will sail from here today for Vladivostok, which is interpreted to mean she is going to Vladivostok. The Olympia will first go to Comox where she will load 500 tons of coal, thence to Bristol bay she will leave for Moji direct. The established companies were offered this freight but their undertaking to deliver it to Chinese ports was unsatisfactory to the consignors, who complained that the Chinese coast was too closely watched by the Japanese cruisers.

DIFFERENT APPEALS

Taxpayers Object to Twenty-Third Avenue Improvement.

Some Protest Against En-
Some Only Part.

Notless of appeal from the assessment levied for the improvement of Twenty-third avenue east, by paying from Superior to Fifth street and by the construction of a storm sewer from Superior to Second street, were filed in district court this morning, by twelve taxpayers owning property on the avenue to be improved. Ten of the appellants are represented by Richardson & Day and two by Leon E. Lum.

The objections raised to the assessment for the improvement are not the same in all the cases. Of the appellants represented by Richardson & Day, the Laurel Glen Cemetery association, Henry P. Stearns, Jonathan Ross, H. P. Chandler and Charles L. Howe object to the assessment for the storm sewer, the outlet drain on Superior street and the alleged 10 per cent arbitrary levy on the cost of the improvement, amounting, it is claimed, to $174.24.

Represented by the same attorneys are the Sterling Land company, J. L. Washburn, H. C. Strong, J. R. Colton and the Northland company, who object to the alleged arbitrary 10 per cent levy. E. E. Lum and A. L. Orlean, who are represented by Mr. Lum, object to the assessment for the entire improvement on the ground that it is illegal, and also to the arbitrary 10 per cent levy.

The objection to the storm sewer is made on the ground that the property, as located in the locality described, is benefited more by the interception of the water that comes down from above it than by a drainage system below it. The appellants who object to both the sewer and the 10 per cent levy, claim that the board of public works has levied more than the improvement cost, that it has added to the cost of the improvement an arbitrary 10 per cent levy on the cost, without warrant of law; that the board has levied for the construction of an outlet drain on Superior street between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues east, a provision which was not petitioned for by at least 10 per cent of the owners of 10 per cent of the real estate in the improvement district, and which was not provided for in the assessment for the sewer in the improvement, July 1, 1904.

In the appeal of Mr. Lum and Mr. Orlean, it is claimed that their property is not benefited by the sewer in the amount assessed. They claim that 25 per cent of the property owners holding 25 per cent of the real estate to be assessed, did not petition for the improvement, and that 10 per cent of the owners of 10 per cent of the property is to be assessed for the sewer, did not ask for the improvement as required under the city charter.

Mosses, Lum and Orlean also claim that at the time the improvement was ordered the city treasury did not contain enough funds available to defray the cost of the paving and sewer, according to the charter requirements, and that the council assessed a lien on the property, payable by the appellants from making free his real estate and sale of the realty, to their inconvenience and injury. These same appellants claim that while the property assessed for both the paving and sewer improvements are not the same, yet these improvements are assessable and they cannot pay either without paying for both.

DELUTHIANS AT CAPITAL. Washington, Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. Z. Dougherty, O. C. Hartman and H. M. Pearson, of Duluth, are among today's arrivals.

DR. JOHN R. HOWES

El Paso Paper Testifies To His Worth.

The El Paso Herald, in commenting on the death of Dr. J. R. Howes, of Las Cruces, N. M., formerly a resident of Duluth, said of him:

"It is said of him that his extraordinary courage and resource seldom failed, even under circumstances in which any other man would have been utterly unable to rise again; and he lost the happy faculty of making friends wherever he went. And just when his long struggle was about to be crowned with success, death took him. Overworked and exhausted by a hard trip to Chicago, which had been rich in results, and which only needed the final touch to complete the good work, he finally succumbed to the disease contracted on his trip, although he fought against it almost to the last with characteristic mental and physical courage."

"The building up of the Mesilla valley had been for some time his object. It was his ceaseless industry and enthusiasm, the confidence with which he was able to inspire strangers, which have done much for that section of late. His constantly cherished desire to return to the practice of his profession, was almost within reach of his hand—he was just about to leave for the east, to look the valley of the beautiful valley for whose awakening he was largely responsible—when his strength gave out."

"He had organized a company for developing many enterprises in the Mesilla valley, and had he lived, it would not have been long till he would have witnessed their successful conclusion."

PLATT SUIT HAS BEGUN

Aged Man Attempts to Collect Money From Negress.

New York, Jan. 17.—The trial of the suit of John R. Platt, the octogenarian, to recover from Hannah Elias, a negress, nearly three-quarters of a million dollars which he alleges she extorted from him during a period extending over more than twenty years, was begun before Justice O'Connor in the supreme court today. Mrs. Elias was not in court when the case was called. Mr. Platt was present with his counsel, however, and it was decided not to allow the absence of the defendant to delay the proceedings. In opening the case for the plaintiff, At-ney A. G. Warren said that Mrs. Elias began this before proceedings were begun against her, succeeded in getting from Platt a number of letters and books which would have been of great value to him in proving the case against the defendant, but that he hoped that even in their absence to prove their contents and thus establish the justice of his client's claim. Former Governor Black, senior counsel for Mrs. Elias, moved that the case be dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had been guilty of laches in delay in bringing his complaint. The motion was denied by Justice O'Connor as was another motion asking for a jury trial.

When Mr. Platt arose in response to a call from his counsel he appeared to be very feeble and was assisted to a chair in the witness stand. Guided by questions from his counsel, spoken in a very loud tone, the witness told of his first meeting with Mrs. Elias, more than twenty years ago, when, as president of the Volunteer Firemen's association, he took the visiting California firemen out "to show them a good time" and recounted incidents which occurred during their long friendship. His memory was extremely poor and he could not remember the amounts of money he had loaned to Mrs. Elias.

FOUR DEAD, ONE MISSING

Result of Fire In the Decatur Coal Company's Mine.

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 17.—As a result of fire in the stables of the Decatur Coal company mine, four miners are now known to be dead, one miner is missing and another is in the hospital fatally injured.

About twenty miners were imprisoned by smoke in distant entries, but were rescued, except the one missing. Damage to the mine, however, is believed to be small. It is supposed that overhead timbers in the stables were ignited by a miner's lamp.

OLD MAN ESCAPES

From Hospital to Die at Old Home.

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 17.—Longing to be back at the old homestead, Caspar Phindley, aged 83, decrepit and almost blind, who recently underwent an operation for restoration of sight, stole from his room in a local hospital, made his way through a hallway antilocked to the ground. The aged man took the bandages from his eyes, summoned his son to the city by telephone, and when the latter arrived he was informed by his father that he had only a short time to live, he preferred to pass his last hours at the old home.

SUSPECT SIX

Half Dozen Roads Thought to Be Seeking Entrance Here.

Car Shortage During the Present Year Is Looked For.

Six different roads have been accused of being responsible for the endeavors now being made to effect a new right-of-way into the head of the lakes. They are the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, or "Soo" line; the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; Wisconsin Central, Grand Trunk, Illinois Central and the Chicago-Great Western. Railroad men generally believe that it is either the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie or the Wisconsin Central, and a railroad man who was recently at Ladysmith, from which point the survey is being made northward, says the folks down in that district think the Wisconsin Central is the backer. Ladysmith is on the Soo line, but Abbotford, the Wisconsin Central's diverging point for its Ashland and Twin Cities lines, is a short distance below Ladysmith, and the engineers might be starting from Ladysmith north for the Wisconsin Central and thus give a public appearance of the work being done for the Soo line.

"It is not reasonable for the Soo line to come to the head of the lakes from Ladysmith," said a well-known local railroad man yesterday. "It has nothing to gain by so doing, that I can see, at least. All she might do by such a connection would be to feed her main line with east-bound business from the head of the lakes, which is practically gotten by the same system now through the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic. The two roads and the Canadian Pacific are strongly allied. There would be no object in the Soo line building to the head of the lakes from Ladysmith for east-bound business (west-bound business can be taken more directly through the Twin Cities if not straight west from Duluth over the established lines) when the line would have been a more profitable connection with Duluth by coming up from Frederick. This point is not only nearer to the main line than Ladysmith, but nearer to the Twin Cities. If they were to build up here from Frederick they would have their own line from the head of the lakes to Moose Jaw and Winnipeg, and not get west-bound business and east-bound business between those extremes, but think of the enormous tonnage of flour they would get out of the connection for the head of the lakes, to go east by lake and rail. The Soo line stands very well in the Twin Cities and Duluth, and is a mighty strong bid for that business."

It is understood the Omaha and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul could use a few more cars for business out of Duluth if they could get them. The short-ago is said to be mild, however, compared with what will occur as soon as the iron and steel tonnage begins to move the coming season. "You've seen the notices in the papers about all the business the United States Steel corporation and other iron and steel manufacturers are taking orders for," asked one railroad man. "Well, that does not mean that the business of those firms is going to use up all the equipment, by any means, but it is considered by railroad men one of the best indexes of general conditions there is. When the iron and steel trade gets busy, everybody else gets busy, too. So with the iron and steel business getting up to a high notch we are going to have a big year in general business and the amount of freight traffic will be correspondingly large. Look out for a car shortage and see if there is not one within a very few months."

CUBAN TRAVEL HEAVY.

Great Number of People Going There.

Robert C. Haase, Northwestern passenger representative of the Baltimore & Ohio road, is here today from St. Paul, and holds the record of being the first outside traveling passenger man to get into Duluth this week. He says that eastbound business is light just now, but that the travel to Cuba is remarkable.

"It is remarkable how the Cuban travel has grown this season, away out of bounds of our expectations," said Mr. Haase. "There are a great lot of people going to Havana. It may be that they are going for business or for pleasure, or because it is a little cheaper than Florida, but at any rate they are going. We have put on a new train to the East from Chicago, leaving there at 6:30 p. m., and this night train puts our eastbound service, so far as that train is concerned, on an equality with the longer lines, for we get into New York early the second morning, making the same time as the other lines which do not have to cover the same number of miles."

Mr. Haase has distributed locally a number of copies of "The Marvelous Diary of Capt. John Smith," which gives the impressions of that famous history maker as on a visit to Old Point Comfort today. The printing and illustrations are all in the ancient style, even to the type which make the booklet unusually quaint and attractive.

Railroad Notes.

One-way second-class colonist tickets are to be put on sale by the Omaha road from March 1 to May 15 to a number of Western points. The fares are less than the usual ones and apply to nearly all far Western points of consequence. This morning's Duluth limited over the Omaha was on time. The arrival here on schedule was probably assisted by the lightning of the train, which brought only one sleeper, whereas the service has usually included two. The Wisconsin Central train from Chicago was an hour and twenty minutes late.

SAVES NICKEL; LOSES $10

John Hanson Fined For Dodging the Bridge Collector.

John Hanson, who was charged with running the toll gate at the Duluth-Superior ferry bridge, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty this morning in municipal court, and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to about $10, by Judge Holmes.

Hanson was arrested for dodging past the keeper of the bridge while he was counting the passengers on a street car. He pleaded not guilty and asked for a jury trial. This morning he changed his plea to guilty.

The bridge company has experienced no little annoyance from persons attempting to run the toll gate, and decided to make the arrest in this instance as an example to others who attempt to save a nickel in this manner. The plan adopted is to wait until a car stops on the bridge and then run past it on the side farthest from the keeper.

CITY BRIEFS

Wedding engraving. North-Land Primary.

At the Star of Hope Mission, 222 West Superior street, at 8 o'clock this evening, Mr. and Mrs. H. Sedgwick will conduct the service. Mr. Hesse, a young convert and a member of the First M. E. church, will lead in testimony. Miss K. Jones will be present and will delight the congregation by singing two or three solos. Miss L. Holt will be the organist.

Frank Wenzelkiewicz, of Frank Mox, the road foreman indicted for alleged irregularities in making up the road pay roll, entered a plea of not guilty before Judge Cant yesterday afternoon. H. B. Fryberger, attorney for Mox, has been given four days in which to prepare his case for trial. It is expected that Mox will be tried either the last of this week or the first of the next week.

The Draper Brokerage company has filed articles of incorporation with the county register of deeds. The capital stock is $5000 and the incorporators are Hildebrand, Draper, Leach and Frank Hicks.

Mrs. Mary Smedley, wife of H. A. Smedley, of First avenue west, was found insane at an examination before Judge Judge Middlecott yesterday, and an order was made committing her to the state hospital at Fergus Falls. Mrs. Smedley has been in ill health for a long time. She labors under the delusion that somebody is attempting to poison her.

Four prisoners indicted by the federal grand jury on the charge of selling intoxicants to the Indians, and who have pleaded guilty before Judge Morris and were sentenced to terms in the Beltrami county jail, were taken to Bemidji, the Beltrami county seat, this morning by Deputy United States Marshals George J. Mallory and Frank W. Tarfs. The names of the four are as follows: Joseph Ray, Vincent Ray, Francis Gernau and Charles McDonald.

One of the sleepers on the Duluth Limited over the Omaha road was discovered to be out of order at Harvard, so was not brought in today on the train. One of the boxes on the track, getting was found to have broken open and sand was getting on the axle, so the car was dropped off for repairs.

For the hockey game Saturday night at Houghton the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic has announced a round-trip rate of $3.50, which is less than the one-way rate, the latter being $3.75. The tickets will be good going Friday night and returning Saturday and Sunday nights.

Chas. Maki, the Philander from Buhl, charged with shooting Victor Maki, an agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, was found guilty of assault in the second degree this afternoon.

The case of Alphonse B. Bowers, against the Lake Superior Contracting & Driveway company, was still occupying the attention of Judge Morris in federal court.

A directory of the members and attendants of the Pilgrim Congregational church is being compiled by a committee of the church members. It is desired that all who are in the habit of attending the church regularly will have their names in the directory, although not members of the church. These attendants wishing to have their names in the directory are requested to send them to Rev. Alexander Milne, or T. K. Hawkes, Jr., chairman of the committee.

ACQUITTAL EXPECTED

For Dr. Koch When Case Reaches the Jury's Hands.

Argument For State About Completed—Brooks Leaves Town.

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—A special to the Dispatch says: Previous to the opening of the argument in the Koch trial Judge Webber read an order commanding the attorneys to refrain from any reference to any facts in the case, except such as relate to the evidence. Such reference will be deemed in contempt of court. Mr. Childs opened his address at 9:35 and took his place before the jurors with his hands in his pockets and started his remarks in calm, dispassionate tones. "All the state asks of you is a careful, painstaking, conscientious consideration of all of the evidence in the case," he said, "and if after this consideration you become satisfied, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the defendant is guilty, you will find him guilty, according to your oath, however distasteful it may be to you, and if, on the other hand, you are, after this consideration satisfied that he is innocent, then you will acquit him as my duty should dictate."

As Childs progressed his tones grew stronger and more eloquent. He drew his hands from his pockets and clinched them, emphasizing the vital points by shaking his fist at the jury. He drew the attention of Dr. Gelandt, employed in his lonely office, happy in his work and in his judgment of the murderer and his death. He referred to circumstantial evidence as the bulwark of the state's case, and in the dead of night, "No one can doubt," he said, "from the evidence produced that the circumstances point with unerring aim at the defendant."

At the opening of court this afternoon, the room was packed with anxious listeners. Gen. Childs continued his address, attacking the case attacking the Horskak vigorously, saying that Horskak pointed out a man to Chief Klumbe, a man whom he said resembled the man whom he saw going into Gehardt's saloon, and that he was mistaken as to the time. Gen. Childs brought out the point that the man knew anatomy and that the murderer was not a novice. The murder was so committed that it need not necessarily cover the murderer with blood and it would not take much time to remove the stains.

Something of a sensation was produced yesterday when a man named Brooks called by the defense and it was found that he had left town. Speculation was rife as to the cause when he might still be called to testify.

At 4 p. m. the defense had nearly concluded its argument and it was thought the case against Dr. Koch would be given to the jury this evening. A verdict of acquittal is anticipated.

HUNDREDS SIGN THE PETITIONS

Twelve Hundred Ask For Change of Court-house Site.

Mass Meeting at City Hall—J. L. Washburn Urges Change.

With taxpayers crowding the council chambers to the doors, the public meeting at the city hall to discuss a new courthouse site was called to order shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon by President R. D. Haves of the city council, who was nominated by H. H. Phelps, of West Duluth, for chairman, and was the unanimous choice.

City Clerk H. W. Chendle was elected secretary of the meeting.

After Chairman Haves had stated the object of the meeting, petitions containing names of taxpayers favoring the location of the new courthouse on a site more convenient to the business portion of the city were presented, and it was stated that several other similar petitions, largely signed, would be presented during the afternoon.

The reasons set forth in the petitions for a change of location were as follows: "Parties now going to the present site, whether coming from the city or out of town, must necessarily waste both time and money in going and returning there."

"The county would necessarily incur an expense as great as the value of the present site in erecting a new courthouse and county offices while a new building is being erected."

"It is by no means certain that the county will lose title to the premises on which the present courthouse is located by abandoning it for court house purposes."

"The daily cost of street car fares, to say nothing of the loss of time, will much more than pay interest on the cost of a site centrally located."

"It is a convenience to all the citizens of the county to have the courthouse, federal building and city hall near to each other, and this object can be accomplished by constructing the new courthouse at a point near the business center of the city."

H. C. Mitchell opened the discussion by offering a resolution that the delegation from this county and the state legislature be requested to secure the passage of a bill at this session empowering the judges of the district court of this county to appoint a courthouse commission. The resolution embodied the selection of the following named persons as a committee to draft such a bill: M. B. Cullum, Bert Foster, W. G. Crosby, F. A. Patrick, A.

M. Marshall, A. B. Wolvin, H. H. Phelps, L. C. Harris, W. E. Richardson, L. Mendonhall, O. C. Hartman, A. E. McManus, J. P. Cole, J. C. Selwood, W. B. Silvey and A. M. Miller, Jr.

N. J. Upham thought the resolution was out of order for the reason that the meeting was called for discussing a site, not a new courthouse.

H. H. Phelps said the matter was one of great importance to the taxpayers of the present time and their children's children in the future. He said he had already expressed his views and asked that others give their opinions. Mr. Phelps called for J. L. Washburn.

Mr. Washburn stated at the outset that he had thus far kept out of the courthouse site controversy, but that if he were called on for his personal opinion he would say that he is strongly against the present site and in favor of a new site on the old one.

He held that it was unfair to the city on the whole and unfair to the main section of the city to place a new courthouse on the hill.

Mr. Washburn held that it was unnecessary to have a park about the courthouse. He urged that the new building be placed where there will be safety for the public records, and suggested the business part of the city as the proper location.

He called attention to the enormous loss of time in traveling back and forth to the courthouse and claimed that this affected not only the lawyers, but the jurors, witnesses, county officials and every person doing business at the courthouse.

There can be no doubt where the business section of the city is, declared Mr. Washburn, the topography settles that. If you build on the old site you will be sowing the seeds of safety too late."

The meeting was still in progress at the Herald's hour of closing.

Worth Reading.

In all the Baking Powder "Wars" that have been intermittently waged in the last twenty years, there is one point that has been overlooked by the belligerent makers of these goods. Rival manufacturers have contented themselves with accusing their competitors of making an unwholesome product. The question of keeping quality, and, therefore, efficiency in raising bread, the only purpose for which baking powder is used, appears to have been generally ignored. There are many powders which, when fresh, and the can is first uncovers, will do fairly good work, but after standing for some time on the pantry shelf, the powder becomes so weak, as to be almost worthless, as far as raising bread is concerned. This is especially true in the case of the so-called "Phosphate" powders, which were it not for this fatal defect, would be satisfactory baking powders. The unsuccessful attempts to overcome this fault of the "Phosphate" powders has enlisted the services of more chemists and cost more money than the solution of any other problem connected with the raising of bread. The makers of these "Phosphate" powders raise a great cry about the wonderful healthfulness of their product, but what matters all this if the powder will not fulfill the only object for which it is purchased? The housewife to whom economy is an object will avoid these "Phosphate" powders.

SENTIMENT FOR NEW SITE FOR COURTHOUSE IS UNANIMOUS

Meeting at City Hall Almost Overwhelming For a Change.
Arguments Convert Nearly All Who Went There Opposed.
Not Half Dozen Votes Recorded Against Change at Close.

With a unanimity of expression which demonstrated the overwhelming sentiment in favor of a downtown site for the new courthouse, the mass meeting held by the taxpayers at the city hall yesterday afternoon, adjourned shortly before five o'clock, after a vote taken on a resolution that the county commissioners be asked to select a site in accordance with the petitions presented was adopted by an enthusiastic storm of ayes and not more than three or four votes were heard in the negative.

When The Herald went to press, yesterday afternoon, at the conclusion of J. L. Washburn's long plea for a new courthouse nearer the business center of the city, the discussion had only begun. Following Mr. Washburn there were speeches by a large number of representative taxpayers present, they being from various walks of life. It was neither a "packed session," a meeting of the lawyers, of the real estate men, or any other special class of citizens. The crowd which filled the council chambers to the very doors and packed the aisles, was the best evidence that the taxpayers, big and little, were well represented.

Another proof that the meeting was not packed in favor of a change of courthouse is the fact that at the outset there was a fair representation against removal of the courthouse from the present site. Arguments made against the removal, when the meeting began, were liberally applauded, but when, at the close of the session, after all the arguments had been made for the downtown site, every point in favor of the change was applauded and the final vote showed only three persons who are known to have voted against the adoption of the resolution asking the county commissioners to select a downtown site.

In all the assembly gathered for the widely advertised purpose of discussing the removal of the courthouse, only one person, Alfred Jacques, spoke against the proposed change and even he retreated from some of the positive positions he had taken under the hot fire of questions.

TORPEDO BOAT AND ITS CREW LOST IN ATTACK

Japanese Navy Department Makes Public Recent Casualty.

Tokio, Jan. 18.—The navy department announces that seventeen officers and men were lost with the torpedo boat commanded by Lieut. Nagata, in the attack on the Russian battleship Sevastopol, at Port Arthur, Dec. 14.

The commander of the Japanese third squadron, reporting the details of the night attack on the Sevastopol, Dec. 14, said that while searching for the Russian ships a torpedo boat, commanded by Lieut. Nagata, became lost from its comrades ships, and there was anxiety for the safety of the boat and crew.

TALK WITH STOESEL

Over Conditions Which Led Up to Surrender.

London, Jan. 18.—The correspondent at Nankai of the Express has had an interesting interview with Gen. Stoessel, in the course of which the general said:

"The capitulation occurring on New Year's day was merely a coincidence. The loss of 200 Metre hill, and the subsequent capture of forts, combined with the deadly bombardment with the terrible 11-inch shells, the depressing effect of the death of Gen. Kondratenko, and the intense suffering of the garrison really fixed the time of the capitulation."

"It is quite true that I dissent from the unanimous opinion of the final council of war. Our repeated requests for aid were never answered. As for parole, I distinctly discouraged any concerted action. Every officer desired for himself. Generally commanding officers stuck to their men and refused imprisonment. Most of the naval officers also chose captivity, many probably being influenced by the fear of impending court-martials."

The correspondent adds that conversations with other Russian officers revealed great bitterness against and denunciation of Admiral Alexeff for his failure to properly fortify Port Arthur, and his "cowardly flight" by the last train from the fortress.

"They say the torpedo boat destroyers that escaped before the surrender carried all the regimental and naval colors to the Yalu. The junior officers denounce the incapacity and folly of the government in entering upon the war, and declare that the men who return to Russia from Port Arthur are revolutionists in spirit."

These opinions were openly expressed in the presence of Gen. Stoessel, who remarked: "Let them talk, they have earned the right to think as they please by braving untold deaths for our country."

RUSSIANS ON CHINESE SOIL.
London, Jan. 18.—The Morning Post's Shanghai correspondent says that the Chinese government complains that the Russians have occupied Kashgar, the governor of which has appealed to the Chinese foreign board to open negotiations for the withdrawal of the Russians. Kashgar is the most western city in Turkestan.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR CHINESE.
Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 18.—His Excellency Sheng, viceroy of Chili province, China, has been induced by Professor John Fryer, of the department of Oriental languages at the State university, to provide five scholarships for Chinese students now at the university.

MORE STEAMERS CAPTURED.
Tokio, Jan. 18.—The Japanese captured the British steamer Imbrosy, in the Tsu straits, yesterday morning. The steamer was carrying provisions, ship stores, mail, etc., from Kobe to Shanghai. The German port on the Shantung peninsula to Vladivostok. She was taken to Sasebo. The capture of another steamer is reported, but no details have been received.

The prize court at Sasebo has not yet rendered decisions in the cases of any of the captured steamers recently taken there for trial.

TWELVE THOUSAND RUSSIANS FROM NEVA WORKS JOIN STRIKE

St. Petersburg, Jan. 18.—Early this morning the employees of the Neva shipbuilding works decided to support the strikers of the Putloff and Franco-Russian works. Subsequently 12,000 of the men of the Neva works informed their managers that they had gone out on a general strike.

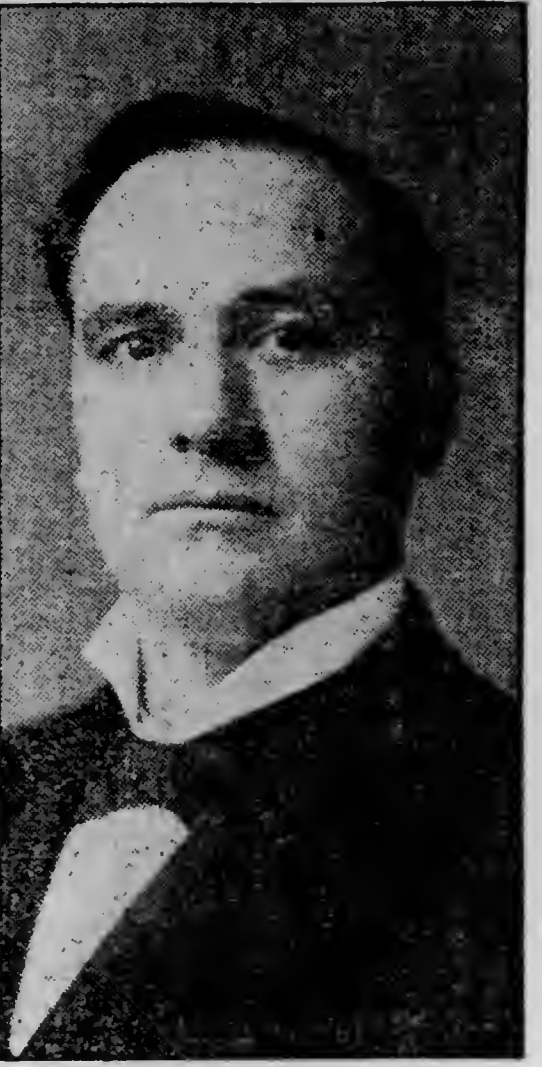

The situation is regarded as threatening.

The strike at the Neva works involves the suspension of the construction of submarine boats of the Protector type, which was being carried on.

PEABODY IS ILL.
New York, Jan. 18.—George Foster Peabody, banker and treasurer of the Democratic national committee, is reported to have broken down physically and is now at his farm in Northern New York. He is not seriously ill, it is stated, but the physicians have ordered him to take a long rest and a change of scene.

TURBINES SATISFACTORY.
London, Jan. 18.—The Glasgow cable dispatches with respect to the speed trials of the turbine steamers Victorian and Virginia are premature. The tests of the turbines by the builders fulfilled all expectations. The ships probably will undergo formal speed trials before February 1. The Victorian sails on her maiden voyage from Liverpool March 2, and the Virginia April 6. They are in the Canadian mail service.

ELMER J. BURKETT,
Elected United States Senator by the Nebraska Legislature.

SITUATION WAS TENSE

Castro Was Going to Give Minister Bowen His Passports.

Caracas, Jan. 9.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—With the beginning of the new year, the situation was so tense that it was regarded with apprehension in circles acquainted with the contemplated policies of President Castro. It is said on undoubted authority that Castro contemplated hastening what he felt to be a crisis by giving Minister Bowen his passports, but was deterred by a report that the minister would not accept them. It was in this acute situation that some of Castro's closest advisers induced him to make overtures to Mr. Bowen, who accepted them.

A motion to adjourn was made but there were calls for Governor Johnson, and it was not put. When the governor arose to speak he was greeted with prolonged applause, and in fact his appearance caused more enthusiasm than the election of the United States senator. This caused the governor to remark that he might almost think that he himself had been elected senator, which raised a laugh. Stating that he did not believe a speech would be in order, he said briefly that the old associations of his service in the legislature had been calling him and he had had an itching to mingle with the members ever since the session began.

Among his most pleasant recollections were those of days spent in the legislature. He promised the legislature his hearty co-operation on all matters which might involve the Monroe doctrine.

By the Legislators When He Arose to Address Them.
Aroused More Enthusiasm Than Election of Senator Clapp.

Better Quarters For Superintendent of Instruction Wanted.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The legislature this noon completed all the necessary ceremonies, and Moses E. Clapp was declared formally elected United States senator for the term of six years, beginning March 4, 1906. The proceedings this morning were purely formal, no vote being necessary. At 12 o'clock the senators marched into the house chamber, and Speaker Clague called the joint convention to order. The roll was called by the chief clerk of the house, Julius Schmalz, and during its progress Governor John A. Johnson was escorted to a seat beside the speaker and the lieutenant-governor, amid warm applause. The journal of each house, in so far as it referred to yesterday's vote in the separate houses, was read and approved. Speaker Clague then announced that as it appeared from the journals that a majority of the members had been present and that a majority of those present voted for Senator Clapp, he declared him elected. A telegram of thanks, dated yesterday, was received from Senator Clapp and read, and on motion of Senator Brower the speaker and president of the senate were authorized to join in a telegram notifying the senator of his final election.

The three larger cities of the state, Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis, are working under many laws that are while general in form, special in fact, and it is likely that many of these have been repealed by the proposed code. The statutes relating to city government are specifically formed so as not to apply to cities having home rule charters, as Duluth has. St. Paul is also under a home rule charter, but there are many laws that have been passed securing re-

EFFECT ON THE CITIES OF STATUTE REVISION

Proposed Code Will Be Carefully Studied By the City Attorneys.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question of how much legislation there has been attendant upon the process of revising the statutes of Minnesota is one that is agitating many at the present time, and it will not be settled until a thorough opportunity has been given to overhaul the report of the revision commission.

This afternoon the judiciary committees of both the senate and the house will have a meeting with the commission on the revision of the statutes to go over the whole matter and find out a way of handling the proposed code that will not be too laborious and slow. It is likely that a joint committee, consisting of members of the two judiciary committees, will be formed to do most of the actual work on the code.

It is likely that a large part of it, such as the criminal code, will be accepted without much question. The Arguments Are Completed and Case About Ready for Jury.

Attorney Brown Makes a Masterly Plea for the Prisoner.

Attacks Each Bit of Evidence Presented By the State.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Koch case will go to the jury probably this afternoon. Attorney Brown, of Winona, concluded his argument for the defense shortly after the noon recess.

Judge Webber will deliver a brief charge to the jury.

A disagreement is looked for.

Attorney Brown made a strong speech attacking each bit of evidence presented by the state. He was once interrupted by Dr. Koch. Mr. Brown said that Dr. Koch had gone to Hanska on Wednesday.

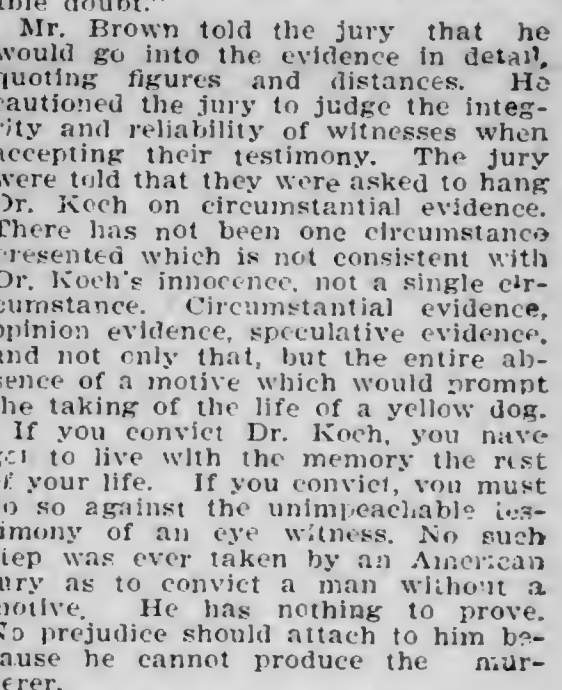

Dr. Koch spoke up, saying: "I went to Hanska Thursday night."

Mr. Brown began his argument yesterday afternoon by paying a graceful tribute to Chief Justice Wehner, saying Mr. Brown, "that this tragedy was one of the most atrocious murders, a murder most foul and unnatural in crime. Louis Gehardt, however unfortunate his taking off, died an honorable death. The issue here is a death most dishonorable; that is the issue which is in your hands. You are to be called upon to decide the issue between life and death, life power which should never be lodged in human hands. The discussion of the evidence has been on an entirely wrong line of reasoning. There has been a veiled proposition that the defendant is presumed to be the man who committed the crime. The rule, as you all know, is the opposite of that. A man charged with crime must be found guilty to twelve separate and distinct and twelve consciences beyond a reasonable doubt."

Mr. Brown told the jury that he would go into the evidence in detail, quoting figures and distances. He cautioned the jury to judge the integrity and reliability of witnesses when accepting their testimony. The jury were told that they were asked to hang Dr. Koch on circumstances which there has not been one circumstance presented which is not consistent with Dr. Koch's innocence and a single circumstance. Circumstantial evidence, opinion evidence, speculative evidence, and not only that, but the entire absence of a motive which would prompt the taking of the life of a yellow dog.

If you convict Dr. Koch, you have got to live with the memory of what you did. If you convict, you must do so against the unimpeachable testimony of an eye witness. No such step was ever taken by an American jury as to convict a man without a confession. He has nothing to prove. No prejudice should attach to him because he cannot produce the murderer.

Mr. Brown spent considerable time discussing Ole Uien, the Hanska farmer, who testified concerning a conversation he had with Dr. Koch a year or more ago.

"MONKEY MOTION" ENGINES

Will Revolutionize Steam Locomotion on Railroads.

Ogden, Utah, Jan. 18.—A new type of engine, known as the "monkey motion" pattern, which, it is claimed, will revolutionize steam locomotion on railroads, has been successfully operated on the Southern Pacific. A train of 1500 tons was run from Ogden to Wadsworth, Nev., hauled by one of the new engines.

The new type of engine was designed by an employee of the Southern Pacific. All the driving mechanism is located on the sides of the engine, making it easy of access. The exhausts vary rapidly and there is no back pressure. It is estimated that the new engine will save from 25 to 40 per cent in coal consumption, because it is able to run fifty-four miles with one ton of coal as against twenty-five to twenty-eight miles under the present system. The standard engines now in use can be changed to the "monkey motion" with but little cost.

DANISH CONSUL KNIGHTED.
San Francisco, Jan. 18.—King Christian of Denmark has conferred the title of knight upon H. H. Brinkholm, a San Franciscan, who for ten years has represented the Danish government as consul general to California, Oregon and Washington. Consul Brinkholm received information of the honor the king has seen fit to bestow upon him, in return for his services to his fatherland, on Monday from the Danish cabinet. The rank of knight is one of distinct honor socially in Denmark.

COMBES MINISTRY PRESENTS ITS RESIGNATION TO LOUBET

Paris, Jan. 18.—The Combes ministry presented its resignation to President Loubet at the Elysee palace this morning and the president accepted it, but asked the ministers to individually carry on their functions until a new cabinet is formed.

M. Loubet will begin the consideration of the formation of a new cabinet this afternoon. He has summoned the president of the senate, M. Vallieres, and the president of the chamber of deputies, Paul Doumer, to the Elysee for conferences at 4 o'clock, in the case of the former, and at 5 p. m. in the case of the latter. These conferences will determine whom M. Loubet will invite to form a ministry. M. Rouvier continues to occupy the first place, but his chances are less certain than at first owing to the belief that a Rouvier cabinet would not last long, on account of the internal divisions of the parliamentary groups.

Woman's Musical Club

At the meeting of the Travel class of the Twentieth Century club yesterday afternoon Mrs. Robert Morris Seymour was the principal speaker of the afternoon and in her talk on "The Artists of Great Britain" the members of the class enjoyed a rare treat. In her talk Mrs. Seymour spoke of the particular characteristics of the English art and explained the qualities in the work of the different artists which is to be particularly natural. She spoke first of the art of Hogarth with his pictures showing the everyday life of London and telling stories in a series of maybe six pictures. There was in his work, however, real artistic value but following him so called artists continued to make pictures which told stories and had no artistic value. She followed with a short relation of the qualities of the Gainsborough and Reynolds with their portraits, one with the idea of people pictured in their daily lives the other with the intellectual quality in nearly all his portraits showing his portraits of noted people of the time in classic drapery and pose. The admirable landscape artists and of Turner. The hour devoted to Mrs. Seymour's talk was a most delightful one. Following this a very fine series was given by Mrs. William Fisher on "The Castles of Scotland."

The next meeting of the Travel class will be held Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 21, and Bishop J. D. Morrison will be the speaker of the afternoon. His subject will be, "Cathedrals of England."

Mrs. A. W. Hartman has invitations out for an art class, Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 25.

The Lester Park Literary club met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Hubbard and the afternoon was devoted to the study of the French poets and philosophers. Mrs. H. A. Dodge was leader for the afternoon and papers were read by Mrs. W. J. Stephenson, Mrs. W. S. Alberts, Mrs.

Curtis, Mrs. James Wharton and Mrs. Theodore Hollister.

Mrs. J. W. Kreiter entertained at a charming little luncheon today at her home, 210 West Third street. The decorations were in pink and white, garlands in these shades being used and candles in soft pink shades. Covers were laid for the following guests: Mesdames:

William Mrs. Emily Ellis-Wood-ward.
Curtis, Mrs. J. W. Kreiter.
H. V. Eva.
John Ford.
C. H. Connor.
John McKenna.

The Morning Shakespeare class of the Twentieth Century club will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the club room of the library. The study of "The Taming of the Shrew" will be commenced at this time when the consideration of a new play will be begun. A short introductory talk relative to the play will be given by Miss McGilbert and the play will be under the leadership of Mrs. Henry Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lynott, of Eighteenth avenue East, left yesterday for a visit at New York and Washington.

Miss Estelle Murlan and George Murlan, of West Third street, are visiting relatives at Houghton, Mich.

Miss Etta Moore entertained last evening at her home on West Third street. The affair was in honor of her guest, Miss Fanny Moore, of Fargo, N. D.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wood entertained at cards last evening at their home at Duluth Heights. Cards were the amusement of the evening and the prizes won by Mrs. Edward Porter and Mrs. William McEwen and the men's prizes went to Max Clemens and

J. Watts. The hostess was assisted by Miss Ethel Woods and Miss Lucy Woods. Those present were: Mesdames: J. H. Tomlin, S. Mayhan, Max Clemens, Edward Perrot, W. J. Watts, E. McEwen, John Wilson, Fred Wood.

The Modern Child.

The modern child is the subject of much controversy just now, and it seems that the happy medium between the former severity, with the habitual retirement of the nursery, and the foolish indulgence of these latter times, has yet to be struck by the average parent. The nursery, when not overdone, undoubtedly had its desirable points. To be too invariably with their elders is not good for them, and their seeing their parents in their own homes, in fact, making them old before their time, says Woman's Life. For one reason new people think nowadays of sending their conversation to a juvenile audience, talking indiscriminately of all the present day facts of the life of the mother or father's society and influence in early youth is another thing when sensible, for wholesome home routine has done nothing to convert boys and girls into desirable men and women.

Such a Pretty Girl.

She's not particularly bright. At school they call her dull. A boy in such case would be mean. The thickness of her skull. But now, when young men look at her, they think of her as a miracle. She's no Minerva—what of that! She's such a pretty girl!

She hasn't very much to say. And doesn't say it well. And yet, men readily admit. She weaves a wondrous spell. No man denies her facile charm. Unless he is a churl. She's eloquent and stupid—what of that? She's such a pretty girl! —Sommerville Journal.

MARTIN FOR POSTMASTER.

Will Succeed Wire at the St. Cloud Office.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Representative Buckman announced last evening that he had recommended the appointment of James A. Martin to be postmaster at St. Cloud, to succeed H. G. Wire, who will be permitted to resign. When Martin was placed in charge of the Republican state headquarters at St. Cloud, he was in the election of a good berth. After the election of a good berth, he was in the election of a good berth. After the election of a good berth, he was in the election of a good berth.

Colorado Springs, Col., Jan. 17.—While attending a vaudeville performance with a party of friends at the Empire theater, pretty Margaret Uddell was placed under arrest and later taken to the county jail. She is now awaiting trial on the charge of driving a herd of cattle belonging to a man named Kennedy many miles across the range.

PRETTY COWGIRL Arrested on a Charge of Stealing Cattle.

Until Christmas Mrs. Uddell was Margaret Stevens, the daughter of Mrs. Hicks, a well known ranch woman of this county, and is a beautiful girl, she is 19 years old, has a wealth of golden hair and big, blue eyes and a complexion that has defied even the elements to which she has been exposed in her life. She is a cowgirl and one of the most daring riders of this section.

She was charged with the theft of a cow and a horse and was taken to the county jail. She is now awaiting trial on the charge of driving a herd of cattle belonging to a man named Kennedy many miles across the range.

Eczema

How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales! Some people call it itter, milk crust or salt rheum.

The suffering from it is sometimes intense; local applications are resorted to; they mitigate, but cannot cure. It proceeds from humors inherited or acquired and persists until these have been removed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla positively removes them, has radically and permanently cured the worst cases, and is without an equal for all cutaneous eruptions. Hood's PILLS are the best cathartic. Price 25 cents.

NEW IRON RANGE

North of the Vermillion Range Is to Be Developed.

Deal For Opening of the Atikokan Reported Closed.

Port Arthur, Ont., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is a very good authority that the negotiations between James C. Hunter, of Duluth, and associates, owners of a large portion of the Atikokan iron ore range in Minnesota, and Mackenzie & Mann and others, have been concluded. By the terms of this deal, the Atikokan range will be opened for mining, the Canadian Northern road, which is owned by Mackenzie & Mann, is to build a short branch thereto, ore docks are to be built at Port Arthur and to convert boys and girls into desirable men and women.

Hugh Sutherland, of Winnipeg, who is associated with Mackenzie & Mann, is largely interested in the deal. Port Arthur has offered the gift of a large and well-situated site, on the shore of Thunder bay, in return for the furnace, etc., and will exempt from taxation the property of the company for twenty years, and subscribe for $200,000 of the company's bonds. It is expected, of course, that the erection of a furnace will be a stepping stone to further operations in iron and steel manufacture.

Four years ago the American Steel & Wire company had an option on the Hunter-McKellar properties. This option would probably have been closed but for the formation of the United States Steel corporation and the decision of the latter company not to take up options of that character at once. There is a great exposure of high grade magnetic ore, running some distance, and drilled by the Steel and Wire company to show a very considerable depth. This ore contains some sulphur, one of the disappointing elements in so much Canadian ore, but it was believed that the Canadian Pacific railroad has withdrawn from the position that good rails cannot be made in Canada, and has placed an order for 25,000 tons of eighty-pound rails, with more under contemplation.

In this connection it is officially reported that the Canadian Pacific railroad has withdrawn from the position that good rails cannot be made in Canada, and has placed an order for 25,000 tons of eighty-pound rails, with more under contemplation.

READY FOR CARPENTERS

Car on Ferry Bridge Will Be Handsomely Finished.

Everything is now in readiness for the carpenters to commence the work of enclosing the car of the ferry bridge and building the floor of the deck.

The car will seat about 200 passengers. Along the center will be the driveway for teams and street cars. If tracks should ever be laid, the car will be covered with a roof for passengers. The seats are arranged along the side, and each cabin will seat 100 passengers. They will be handsomely finished in hard wood, with beveled mirrors and cane seats. Windows will be arranged so that the car will enable the passengers to watch the progress of the bridge.

The first trip to which the car will be put will probably be to transport some of the bridge materials. The car will work on the south tower has not yet been taken down, and the engine with which it is connected, will be transported across the canal on the car.

The bridge is a celebrated structure, the completion of the work by a dance to be given in the armory. The proceeds of the affair will go to the aid of the workmen who have been injured during the process of construction.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

Satisfactory Condition of Pilgrim Congregational Church Is Shown.

At the annual meeting of the Pilgrim Congregational church last evening in the church parlors, the annual reports of the different officers showed a most satisfactory condition of affairs.

The church now has the largest membership in its history, forty-seven new members having been admitted during the year. Super service was given by the women of the church, and the officers for the coming year elected as follows: Trustees, Leon E. Lum and C. W. Erickson; treasurer, H. I. Pincus; deacons, Albert Baldwin, E. W. Matter, clerk, Fred Le Roy; music committee, J. P. Johnson, Mr. Albert Baldwin, Mrs. C. A. Duncan; Sunday school superintendent, Arthur C. Barth; ushers, morning service, W. G. Bogard, E. D. Field, Charles E. Adams, H. W. Nicholas, evening service, Henry Schulze, William M. Hart, Carl Sheldon and C. W. Erickson.

Much satisfaction was expressed by the members present, at the condition of the church affairs as shown by the annual report.

THE EVENING STORY

A FORE AND AFT MUTINY

By J. C. Plummer.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)
"Come over to board a minute, sir," whispered the mate; "I've something to say to you."
"Cap," Lord gazed disapprovingly at the idle sailor flapping against the mast and followed the mate to the rail amidships.
"There's a mutiny hidden in the 'tween's," said the mate in a low voice; "think the passengers are plotting with on and mean to seize the brig."
"The devil," growled the skipper, "you're the only one aft that has a plot."
"What the luck," snarled the mate, "I lost it at a game of draw the night afore."
"What's to be done?" murmured the skipper. "There's no chance for us against seven murderous men armed with sheath knives and handspikes and only four men and a lady against 'em."
"They'll murder every mother's son of us," said the mate, emphatically.
The skipper, recently returned, went below to consult the passengers. "Is the mate with an iron, taking you, or has he stolen the quarter deck?"
The brig Palos had sailed on an unusual voyage. An incoming vessel reported to the owners the discovery of a small island off the South American coast which was rich in gold. The report was vague and barren of detail, but the house deemed it worth while investigating and the Palos was sent out, leaving for Hanchuan, an analytical chemist of repute in the way of guano. He chose to invite Professor Euclid Simpson, a profound mathematician, to be his companion on the voyage. Not that he and his companion were for mathematics on the island, but the professor was always accompanied by his daughter, Miss Anne, and considering her future life, Lord had some ideas which, so far, he had not dared to broach to the professor. On such a voyage an opportunity never arises. The night passed without event, but in the afternoon the mate took the skipper aside and said:
"It's coming, 'er night, cap'n. They've formed no plan to kidnap the brig, I have to do it. It's my only chance, and I'll do what I can for you."
"I can't blame you for trying to save your life," replied the skipper, gloomily. "But I hate to be killed without even having a fair try for my life. That poor girl below, too!"
When night came the mutineers laid violent hands on the mate and laid him in one of the fore-castle bunks. Then a conference of all hands save the mate at the wheel was held in the fore-castle.
"When we've got the money," said

A. B. LOUTZENHEISER IS A DEFAULTER

First National Bank's Paying Teller Takes Ten Thousand Dollars.

Bank Fully Protected By Surety Bond—Away For Vacation.

A. B. Loutzenheiser, former paying teller at the First National bank, of Duluth, has, it is claimed, absconded with ten thousand dollars of the bank's funds. A warrant has been sworn out for his arrest, and every effort will be made by the company which furnished the bond to see that he is apprehended.

Loutzenheiser, who is a single man, about 35 years of age, was an old and trusted employee of the banking institution. He has been employed there for from twelve to fifteen years, and worked his way up from almost the lowest position to that of his place of paying teller, which position he has filled faithfully for the past four or five years.

He left Duluth on December 20, ostensibly on his vacation. He was to be away for several weeks. Some days ago one of the bank's having deposits in the First National here, reported that a shipment of currency charged against it on the statement sent out against first of the month had not been received. This started an investigation of the books, the result of which convinced the officers that the money had been taken by Loutzenheiser. The bonding company was notified and warrant issued for the young man's arrest. Speaking relative to the matter today A. L. Orlean, president of the bank, said:

"Early in December Loutzenheiser made a request for his vacation. It is the custom of the bank to give all of its employees a vacation once a year. This request was granted."

"On Dec. 17, the last day he acted as paying teller, he turned over his cash, which was counted and found correct. It would appear that he brought about the shortage of $10,000 without discovery in this fashion. He made a charge against a Western correspondent on an alleged order for currency, showing the same as being shipped by express, and suppressed the notification of the supposed shipment."

"It is a usual thing, and part of a teller's duties, to attend to the forwarding of money to correspondents. Only a moderate amount of currency is sent for counter use, is carried by tellers, the great bulk of the bank's cash being in the custody of the officers, in a separate safe. When the statement, which is sent out the first of each month, was sent to the correspondent referred to, and as soon as it was checked, the party reported that no currency had been ordered on that date and that none had been received."

"Loutzenheiser is known to have gone to St. Paul, where all trace of him is lost. The bank is fully protected against the loss by a fidelity bond in one of the big Eastern bonding companies."

A RAILROAD CONTRACT LET Means Construction of 45 Miles of Soo Extension.

A contract has been let to McIntosh Bros. & Evans, a Milwaukee firm, for forty-five miles of heavy railroad work on the Soo extension, from Ladysmith, Wis., to Owen, Wis., near Watonee. It is understood actual work is to begin before spring. Sub-contractors are already being communicated with.

The work is along the survey made south of Ladysmith some time ago. The understanding has been that the survey ran southeast from Ladysmith for a distance of sixty miles. This would bring it to near Marshfield. It is believed such a survey line has been completed, but the present contract calls for only forty-five miles of grade.

Just now surveyors are at work in Douglas county, Wis., running a new line into Superior. The line runs west of Solon Springs. It is said, and the crew is now close to Lyman lake. It is not known whether this will be the permanent line, but it is known the railroad will run near Lyman lake. A very large number of men will be employed on the contract just let.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 18.—W. W. Williams, one of the engineers who built the St. Joseph and Grand Island railroad, and superintendent of that road from 1883 to 1891, is dead here from heart disease.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 18.—J. H. M. Gelst, one of the best known newspaper men in Pennsylvania and one of the founders and until recently the editor of the Lancaster Evening Post, died here from the infirmity incident to old age. He was in his 84th year.

McKeesport, Pa., Jan. 18.—William H. McKillop, a prominent McKean lumberman, died last night, aged 51 years.

KAIN APPOINTED Deputy In the Office of Public Examiner.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson has appointed Mr. Kain a deputy in the public examiner's office. He is now holding down a vacancy in the department, and it is expected with the passing of the department is reorganized. Mr. Kain is now at Madison on business connected with the public examiner's department. Mr. Kain is secretary of the state central committee. When Governor Johnson was elected, Kain immediately became a candidate for insurance commissioner, but he gave way to the present incumbent, T. D. O'Brien.

NOMINATIONS SENT TO THE SENATE.

THE SWAYNE IMPEACHMENT

The House Refuses to Table the First Article.

Washington, Jan. 18.—By a vote of 150 to 135 the house refused to table the first article of impeachment against Judge Swayne.

Mr. Coker, to clear up an impression as to Mr. McCall's position, stated that Judge Swayne was impeached, asked if he held that Judge Swayne was impeached for using property held under his order as a basis for his own use, but that because such an order was not a public one, it did not follow that it was not a public one.

Mr. McCall replied that he took no such position.

Mr. Henry (Tex.) was in favor of presenting every one of the twelve charges against Judge Swayne to the senate. He said that the impeachment was not a mere party matter, but a matter of public concern, and that it was the duty of the house to present every charge to the senate.

Mr. Gillett, in charge of the hour for the minority, began at once the conclusion for the minority.

Justice Brandeis, he said, would never have been proceeded against and "separated" if it had not been for the O'Neill contempt proceedings.

CASE OF SMOOT.

Testimony Continued Before the Senate Committee.

Washington, Jan. 18.—When the Smoot investigation opened today before the senate committee on privileges and elections, Professor James E. Talmadge, of the Utah state university, was sworn. He was born in England and has been a Mormon all his life. He testified that he is the author of the book called "Articles of Faith." The book was approved and published by the church. Professor Talmadge gave a detailed description of the organization of the Mormon church. Church courts were described and Senator Overman asked if the parties to suits in the church courts are permitted to have counsel. The witness replied that they do not have legal counsel as it is the purpose of the church to "steer clear of lawyers."

DYING OF GRIEF.

Little Girl Refuses to Be Comforted.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Little Marian Ringer, 4 years old, 728 Saginaw avenue, is lying at the point of death, overcome with grief at the fate of her pet dog, Nero, who died last Friday.

When Marian was only a year old her father bought the dog, then only a puppy, and gave it to his daughter for a playmate. Marian had the dog grow up with her. She was very fond of him, and he was very fond of her. He was a black and white dog, and he was very smart. He was very fond of his master, and he was very fond of his mistress. He was very fond of his family, and he was very fond of his friends. He was very fond of his life, and he was very fond of his death.

NO FORTS OR GUNS

On the Great Lakes In the War Department Plans.

This Is an Entire Reversal of Former Schemes.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—A Washington special to the Tribune says: Under the plan of campaign now favored by the military authorities there will be no fortifications of the great lakes. This is an entire reversal of previous schemes which provided, first, the fortification of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, including the Gulf of Mexico, and after the completion of that work a thorough defense of the strategic points and narrow channels of the great lakes.

The Endicott board which formulated the general system of coast defense fully intended to follow the fortification of the coast with the fortification of the Gulf of Mexico, and after the completion of that work a thorough defense of the strategic points and narrow channels of the great lakes.

The Endicott board which formulated the general system of coast defense fully intended to follow the fortification of the coast with the fortification of the Gulf of Mexico, and after the completion of that work a thorough defense of the strategic points and narrow channels of the great lakes.

According to the official figures the United States has now spent directly on the coast defense of the Gulf of Mexico, the total sum of $5,000,000. The total expenditure contemplated by the plans of the Endicott board would be $20,000,000. Work has reached a stage, however, where it will become necessary to adopt some radical modifications of the original scheme of coast defense. Some points are now being considered for abandonment altogether. This has been done in the case of the fortification of the Gulf of Mexico, and it is now being considered for the fortification of the great lakes.

After mature consideration, however, the experts of the department have concluded to abandon the idea of fortifications altogether, and unless there is a change in their plan they will not even recommend the expenditure of money for permanent submarine mines.

This change of view and the abandonment of plans which have been cherished by lake marine warfare for more than a dozen years has not been brought about by any sentimental belief in the impossibility of war between the United States and Great Britain. The plans of the war college are not based on international politics or on sentiment. They realize that, although Great Britain and the United States have more things in common than most great nations, and that, although they speak the same language and think the same way, the time might easily come when the two might clash to the point of actual bloodshed.

Instead of abandoning the lake fortifications because of a belief that war between the United States and Great Britain is an impossibility, the military advisers of the president have taken a more aggressive ground. They have figured it out that in case of war between the United States and Great Britain, which nobody was but which every one feels might happen, this country would be in a position to take the offensive. They would be in a position to take the offensive, and they would be in a position to take the offensive.

Nothing has yet been said about the intended abandonment of the lake fortifications, but I was assured today that this has been decided upon, and that the board about to be appointed by the president to settle the question of defense will take into consideration nothing except the general plan for fortifications on the Atlantic, Pacific, and Gulf, with additional schemes for the independent protection of the Hawaiian Islands, and Manila bay.

Under the old plan, as submitted by the Endicott board, it was proposed that there should be a series of important lake fortifications embracing all the narrow channels, so as to aggregate the navigation of the lake completely and prevent absolutely the possibility of any sudden dash by converted cruisers which might terrorize the inhabitants of the great lake cities, and which possibly could enforce a series of indemnities from those cities which might make war an extremely costly one.

These old plans, which now are being dropped entirely, contemplated particularly the protection of the city of Chicago, for instance, by simple but commanding fortifications at the straits of Mackinac. In this way it was thought the Western metropolis would be protected from all possibility of a sudden naval parade by hastily armed converted cruisers fitted out in the Georgian bay or elsewhere.

Later on it was estimated that a series of permanent submarine mines could be established at the outlet of Lake Michigan, for instance, by simple but commanding fortifications at the straits of Mackinac. In this way it was thought the Western metropolis would be protected from all possibility of a sudden naval parade by hastily armed converted cruisers fitted out in the Georgian bay or elsewhere.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Three sudden deaths within the past twenty-four hours have occurred in the family of Thomas Meehan, well known in commercial circles in Chicago. Yesterday a word rancher family that James Meehan, the younger son, had died at Kankakee. A few hours later the mother, Mrs. E. Meehan, was taken ill with heart disease at a railroad station here, and died after being taken to Mercy hospital. Today a telegram was received that Thomas Meehan had died in Denver where he went last week for a vacation. The survivors of the family are the father, James Meehan, and the news of his death reached the sisters as they were taking the remains of their mother and other brother to the family home.

A NEW SCHEME FOR PRIMARY ELECTIONS PROPOSED BY RIDER

Little Falls Member Suggests Compromise on State Officers. Would Elect Delegates to State Conventions By Primaries. Both Senate and House Held Very Short Sessions.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new scheme for primary elections is proposed by Representative H. A. Rider of Little Falls, in a bill introduced in the house this morning. It makes several changes in the primary election law, but the principal one is that providing that delegates to the state conventions shall be elected at the primary election. It arranges for four delegates from each legislative district, and in districts having more than one county the delegates are to be distributed as equally as may be. The primary election is to be held on the first Tuesday in July, and the state convention is to come off on the fourth Tuesday of the same month. This is regarded as a sort of compromise between the present state convention plan and the plan of placing state officers under the primary election system. One feature is that each candidate for delegate must pay a filing fee of $10 to go on the ticket, just as much as though he were running for a county office.

W. B. Anderson of Winona, chairman of the house judiciary committee, this morning introduced in the house the longest bill ever introduced in this state. It is the proposed revised statutes, and it was referred back to the judiciary committee, which will take it up at once.

Mr. Morley, of Owatonna, moved that the bill be given its second and third readings and placed on its final passage under suspension of the rules, but there was no second.

Representative Degen of Spring Lake said it was a dangerous proposition to railroad the bill through with all its mistakes.

Representative Hannaford, of Monticello, recalled his resolution introduced yesterday, calling for a committee of five to look into the inspection and weighing of grain, and introduced a new one calling for a committee of seven to look into the system and make a report within ten days. This was referred to the committee on grain and warehouses.

Representative Dowling, of Eveleth, introduced a resolution empowering the committee on public accounts and expenditures to employ an accountant and such help as may be necessary to investigate.

Representative Dowling, of Eveleth, introduced a resolution empowering the committee on public accounts and expenditures to employ an accountant and such help as may be necessary to investigate.

REP. J. R. MORLEY, OF OWATONNA.

Who will take a prominent part in the fight to release the educational institutions of the state from the board of control. He is particularly interested in the state public school at Owatonna, which is not included in pending bills, and he will probably introduce a bill taking the university, normal schools, state public school and the school for defective at Fairbault away from the board of control.

Representative Morley, of Little Falls, introduced a bill that would make the office of court commissioner a little more valuable than it is now. It gives court commissioners concurrent jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters with justices of the peace.

Representative Mark, of Princeton, introduced a bill appropriating $200 for the First Minnesota battery, which took part in the light. He introduced a bill to that effect.

S. D. Peterson, of New Ulm, would appropriate $200 to build a monument on the battlefield in the memory of the First Minnesota battery, which took part in the light. He introduced a bill to that effect.

Two more automobile bills were introduced. One by Mr. Thundale, of Huron, is similar to Senator Thompson's bill, introduced yesterday. The other, by Murray Kelly, of Lewistown, amends the existing law by putting a limit of five hundred dollars on the value of automobiles when passing horses and by making owners paint the number of their license on both sides of the machine instead of on the back.

Representative Zech, of St. Paul, introduced a measure prohibiting anybody from selling or giving liquor to any person paroled from a penal institution. The punishment is $25 for each violation. It is provided that the seller must know of his patron's condition.

The burning of the Minneapolis power house, which took place on the morning of the 18th, and when the house opened it was short most of the Hennepin county delegation, the chairman, the reading clerk and assistant clerk. The senate's amendment is just what will be done for the occasion. The house, after a session of twenty minutes, adjourned to tomorrow at 10 a. m.

The senate was in session only eleven minutes, during which time the only thing it did was to elect Senator Thompson from Preston, president pro tem. The senate also adjourned to 10 o'clock tomorrow.

BIG STRIKE IMMINENT

Trainmen on Pennsylvania Road May Go Out.

Grand Master Morrissey Is Called to the Scene.

Philadelphia, Jan. 19.—P. H. Morrissey, grand master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, is on his way to this city from Cleveland, and will arrive here about 3 o'clock this afternoon. He was called here by First Vice Grandmaster W. G. Lee, who was unable to reach an agreement with W. V. Atterbury, general manager of the Pennsylvania road, regarding the differences between the company and the trainmen. Mr. Lee said this morning that no strike order would be issued before 6 o'clock tonight.

Grand Master Morrissey instructed Mr. Lee to further delay the strike order. He said that the difficulty might be amicably settled, but he declined to say what this final move would be.

General Manager Atterbury had nothing to say in addition to the statement he issued at midnight last night. After last night's conference every lodge was notified either by wire, telephone or letter to be prepared for a cipher message today which would either call the men out or notify them that the differences had been amicably adjusted.

At a meeting held yesterday Mr. Lee informed Mr. Atterbury that the total vote canvassed was $700 and that $300 had been cast in favor of a strike and $400 against. Of the total number 700 are members of the brotherhood and the remainder are non-union men who for various reasons such as time of service and injuries are prevented from being members of the union. These men were also permitted to vote and they voted in favor of a strike.

Should a strike be declared by the board tomorrow it would affect freight brakemen, yardmen, baggage men and some freight conductors on the lines East of Pittsburgh and Erie.

The question at issue is that of compulsory firing by brakemen. The company requires a freight brakeman to assist firemen in feeding locomotives with coal.

The vote was confined entirely to this question.

NOT A WORD IS HEARD FROM JURY WHO HOLD KOCH'S LIFE IN HANDS

Not an Inkling Has Come From Their Secret Deliberations.

Prosecution Predicts Disagreement, Defense Acquittal.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—At 2:30 today nothing had been heard from the jury in the Koch murder case. The jury had to that time asked for no further instructions from the court, or indicated that there was a possibility of an agreement or disagreement. State's Attorney Childs is confident that the jury will now disagree, while the attorneys for Dr. Koch are sure of an acquittal.

The jury retired at 4:25 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The friends of Dr. Koch confidently expected that a verdict of acquittal would promptly follow the retirement of the jury, but when the court room was cleared and the judge left for home, there was evidence of disagreement on many faces. Dr. Koch awaited the verdict in jail, where he was taken when the jury went out, and his father, brother and sisters were at home, all of them hopeful of acquittal.

The jury retired at 4:25 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The friends of Dr. Koch confidently expected that a verdict of acquittal would promptly follow the retirement of the jury, but when the court room was cleared and the judge left for home, there was evidence of disagreement on many faces. Dr. Koch awaited the verdict in jail, where he was taken when the jury went out, and his father, brother and sisters were at home, all of them hopeful of acquittal.

BIG CANNON FIRED AT A ROYAL ASSEMBLAGE

Grape Shot Scattered In All Direction Around the Emperor.

Loaded Shell Was Placed In Gun Which Was Firing a Salute.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 19.—Emperor Nicholas had a miraculous escape from death today. While participating in the festival of the Epiphany, a cannon loaded with grape shot was fired at the chapel in which he was standing, the bullets scattering all around him. One policeman was killed, several wounded, and the foreign ambassadors also narrowly escaped the fire.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 19.—The festival of the Epiphany, the blessing of the waters, had just concluded at 1 o'clock this afternoon, when simultaneously with the salute fired from the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress a shrapnel shell swept over the little chapel built over the frozen Neva in front of the Winter palace where Emperor Nicholas and every member of the Romanoff family were participating in the service.

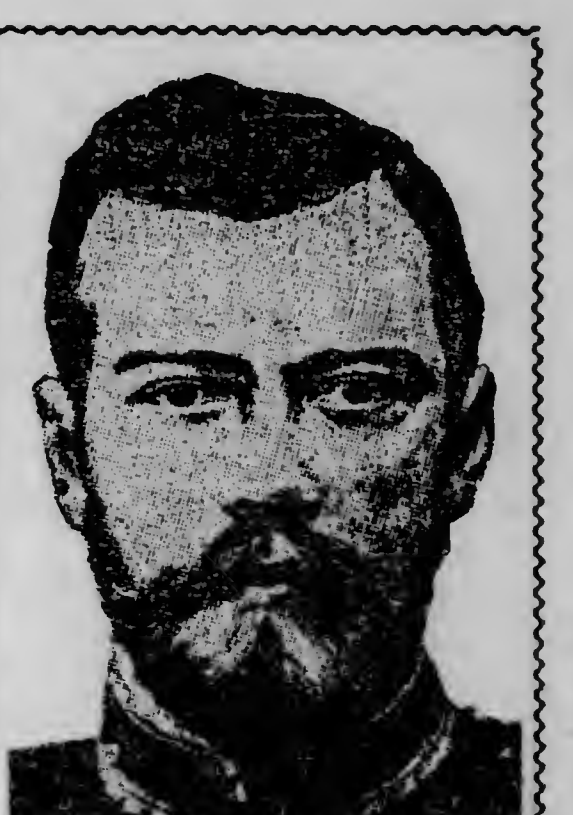

The missiles went high, entering windows of the splendid row of salons along the water front from which the empress, the ladies of the court and the members of the diplomatic corps, including Ambassador McCormick, Secretary Eddy and Second Secretary Bliss and all the high dignitaries of the state, army and navy were witnessing the glittering spectacle below.

Fortunately the bullets passed over the heads of all present striking the opposite wall and clattering down on the parqueted floor of the white saloon. The first impression of those who heard the crash was that it was due to falling crystals from the glass chandeliers and caused by concussion from the booming guns.

Everybody has been laboring under a more or less nervous strain because of the strike situation, and when the truth was realized the windows were hastily vacated and the greatest excitement reigned within the palace. Lieutenant Gen. Fulton, chief of police of St. Petersburg, himself picked up a missile in the white saloon. It was the size of a bird's egg. The police chief was immediately surrounded by officers of the guards, who examined the bullet and expressed their belief that it had come from a shrapnel shell, which might have been fired from the battery located on the Bourse Esplanade, and which replied to the salute of the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress, explaining that a gun might have been charged with a loaded cartridge by mistake.

Such a thing, however, it was admitted was hard to conceive without a deliberate act. From the hoarse passing through the double windows, it is certain that the bullets came from the direction of the Bourse Esplanade. There was no evidence outside of what occurred. The crowds of people who formed black lines along the quays the palace bridge, the steps of the Bourse and every other point of vantage in the white palace did not betray the slightest excitement. Neither did the imperial party in the chapel below.

Although the actual ceremony was canceled the emperor remained and accompanied the metropolitan and clergy as they circled the pavilion and the chapel to bless the gorgeous standards of the famous guard regiments assembled there. Then the procession moved back to the palace and the original program was carried out. The emperor displayed splendid nerve. He did not show a trace of excitement. He received the diplomats in his usual cordial, gentle manner, reviewed the guard regiments on the square behind the palace, and subsequently had luncheon served in the state dining room.

When the correspondent of the Associated Press was about to go down to the white saloon, he saw a hole in the window of another salon and holes outside in the stucco of the massive red building.

The police are actively at work trying to clear up the mystery as to where the shots came from.

The strike situation has not been changed by this holiday. The men are holding meetings in various parts of the city, and a test is expected tomorrow when the employers will make a final answer to their demands. While no collision have yet taken place, there is a feeling among all classes of high tension. The news that an attempt had been made on the czar's life spread like wildfire and increased the tension.

Additional particulars show that the emperor had a miraculous escape. There is no longer any doubt that the missiles came from a gun of the Bourse battery, which was loaded with grape, not with shrapnel. Some of the bullets actually struck the little open chapel in which the emperor was standing, cut the staff of one of the standards and fairly riddled the basement windows of the palace.

Had the gun been aimed a little lower, the charge of grape might have wiped out the whole Romanoff dynasty.

No official statement has yet been issued, but the suggestion offered that the gun was loaded with grape as a precaution in view of possible strike rioting hardly meets the fact that it was aimed with such accuracy at the chapel. Everything on the surface seemed to indicate the existence of a deadly and deep-laid plot against the emperor in which artillerymen were enlisted. It is understood that the men and officers of the battery were immediately placed under arrest for examination. The police took charge of the spot where the battery stands and drew a double cordon across the river searching out everything in the line of fire.

The only proceeding now pending against him is an order to show cause to a New York court tomorrow, why a sheriff's jury should not be called upon to decide whether he is competent to manage his own property. That action was also brought by Lawrence Duke.

When the case was called in the Brooklyn court, Duke was not present and counsel for the Duke family and Mr. Bramham agreed in asking the court for his discharge so that the case could be heard in New York county, but Justice Gaynor indignantly refused to agree. He called Duke into court from a hotel nearby, sharply criticized the doctor who had Duke in charge, for not bringing him into court and ordered Duke's discharge.

DISCLOSED SECRETS.

A Resident of Japan Tried For Treason.

Yokohama, Jan. 19.—H. B. Collins, a man of Portuguese blood, but who has long been a resident of Japan, was publicly tried today on the charge of disclosing military secrets. The evidence showed that Collins visited Port Arthur and Tien Tsin last year and met with Gen. Ogorodnikoff and Desino, together with a private cipher that he might transmit information.

Let October Collins wrote from Yokohama detailing the proposed dispatch of Japanese troops giving their number, their destination and their purpose to Gen. Desino, but the letter was stopped at Nagasaki. The maximum penalty for the offense is six years imprisonment. The passing of sentence was deferred until Jan. 24.

HOW TO TREAT CODE IS A GREAT PUZZLE

Complicated Situation Faced By the Members of the Legislature.

Horton State Capitol Bill May Meet Defeat In House.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—After four years the legislature now has the report of the commission on the revision of the statutes, and in a way it is something of a white elephant, because the legislature does not know just what to do with it.

It is up to the state's lawmaking body to make the necessary corrections in the proposed code, to enact it into statutes, and at the same time to carry on the general lawmaking business pertaining to every session.

This makes rather a complicated situation. Should the legislature now pass a law covering something treated in the proposed code, and then pass the code, the passage of the code would leave two laws on the same subject and the situation would not be much better than it was before the statutes were revised.

The puzzle now before the legislature is how to treat the code, and how to treat pending legislation at the same time. There are many members who think it best to pass the code, just as it is, mistakes and all, and then base all subsequent legislation, either correcting the code or adopting new laws upon it. This body of members is growing every day, and it is very likely that this is just what will be done. Should the legislature attempt to correct mistakes before passing the code, it would take a long time to handle it, and the process would crowd out most of the other work.

The judiciary committees of both houses met yesterday afternoon with the revision commission and put in a couple of hours threshing the situation over. Many plans were discussed, but

SELECTING A NEW MINISTRY

President Loubet In Consultation With Various Leaders.

Paris, Jan. 19.—President Loubet has begun consultations with the leaders of the various parliamentary groups concerning the new ministry. The consultations this morning embraced the heads of four groups of the senate. This afternoon the president will consult with the heads of five groups of the chamber of deputies. The latter will be represented by the presidents of the groups except the Socialist deputies. The selection of a ministry appears to turn more upon policies than individuals. Several groups including the Socialists insist on the continuance of the Combes program including the separation of church and state, an income tax and workmen's pensions. Other groups insist that the new ministry be not required to pursue the Combes policy. The Tennes which usually is semi-official and most of the other newspapers except the Socialist organs urge the appointment of a new cabinet and the adoption of a new policy. The consultations going on seek to reconcile these differences.

Mr. Rouvier continues to be the most prominent among those desiring a new policy. M. Sarrien (Radical Republic) is developing notable strength among those favoring a continuance of the old policy.

MAN DIES SUDDENLY AFTER LOSING GAME.

Oswego, Iowa, Jan. 19.—"I'm checked, you win the game."

His defense game, Levi Taylor, business man and inventor, smiled defeat at his friend across the chessboard, then fell prostrate to the floor.

Apoplexy, due to the excitement of the game, was the cause of the sudden demise.

UNITED MINE WORKERS OPPOSED TO SOCIALISM

Convention Refuses to Allow Organization to Approve It.

Indianapolis, Jan. 19.—The United Mine Workers of America in convention have again refused to allow the organization to be committed to Socialism. The anti-Socialist faction was led by Patrick Dolan, of Pittsburgh. John Walker, of Illinois, who has been the floor leader of the Socialists, also took the position that the miners should not engage in politics as an organization. President Mitchell took the floor and defended the leaders of the Civic Federation when a delegate named Randall, from Utah, shouted that the leaders were "Grover Cleveland, when every laboring man decries, Frank Robbins of Pittsburgh, who has made millions by beating down his miners, and Andrew Carnegie, who is loaded with the blood of the homestead strikers."

President Mitchell showed his anger and took the floor at once. He said that he had heard of the Socialists, but he had never looked in on that meeting. The leading lights of the federation—Frank Robbins, who employs only union men, and the leaders of the union movement in this country—the operators in the Colorado strike. I had intended to call him to account in this convention for that statement and I do demand to make him prove his assertions."

Mr. Mitchell was interrupted by cries of "He's a liar," referring to Randall.

Continuing Mr. Mitchell said: "I do not stand here to defend Andrew Carnegie, Frank Robbins or Grover Cleveland. But who in America ever made a speech so favorable to organized labor as Carnegie, who, in that banquet, said that if his men were out on strike he would shut down his plant and would not employ a scab."

It was a business proposition, he said, for the old men, the Socialists, the best of it was a favorable statement. As for Grover Cleveland, I don't like him. He is not a leading light of the federation. He never even looked in on that meeting. The leading lights of the federation—Frank Robbins, who employs only union men, and the leaders of the union movement in this country—

ing rates. Messrs. Ferguson and Knutson, who represent vast shipping interests, do not favor the Stevens bill, believing that the entire monopoly of private cars for carrying perishable goods should be abolished entirely and the railroad companies should be compelled to furnish such cars without additional freight rate.

BRISTOW WILL RETIRE

At the Close of Business on Thursday.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow will retire from office at the close of business hours today. He expects to receive instructions today or tomorrow from Secretary Taft preliminary to taking up his new duties as commissioner to investigate rate conditions, etc., in connection with the Panama Railroad company. Chief Clerk Knutson is in charge of the bureau, and has performed most of the duties of that office since the recent removal of the corps of inspectors from the fourth assistant's office to that of the postmaster general.

THREE TRAINS COLLIDE ON THE MIDLAND RAILWAY.

London, Jan. 19.—An alarming collision in which three trains were involved, including two Scotch expresses, occurred on the Midland railway, near Earsley, today. Four passengers and two railway men were killed and a score were seriously hurt. The accident occurred in a fog, the third train crashing into the wreckage resulting from the first collision. The cars of one of the Scotch expresses burst into flames and were soon ablaze from end to end. There were not many passengers on the train, and the casualties must have been far heavier, as the impact was so great that the cars were telescoped and splintered into matchwood. Among the injured is Robert Brough, the artist.

NO MONEY IN BANK

Yet Frank Penwarden Is Accused of Issuing Checks.
Arrested For Obtaining Money Under False
Pretenses.

Frank Penwarden, a railroad conductor, was arrested shortly after noon today by Officer Blackwood, on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Penwarden is claimed to have secured the money on worthless checks, which he succeeded in passing on local merchants. The full amount of money claimed to have been secured in this manner is not known, but the offense for which he was arrested, was passing a worthless check for $5 on the Wieland shoe company.

Penwarden is claimed to have presented the check to the company, and secured the money thereon. The check was on the First National bank of Two Harbors. Inquiry at the bank is claimed to have disclosed the fact that Penwarden had no money there at the time, and never had an account at that bank.

Another worthless check is claimed to have been passed by Penwarden on Robert Hare, of this city.

Penwarden was locked up in police headquarters and will be arraigned in municipal court this afternoon on a charge of the complaint can be drawn up.

GEN. E. M. POPE

Elected Treasurer of Grand

Marais Township.

The Cook County Herald says that at a special meeting of the board of supervisors Gen. E. M. Pope was elected treasurer of the township of Grand Marais, to fill the unexpired term of C. H. Garhart, the office having been vacant on the ground that the office of sheriff, now held by Mr. Garhart, is incompatible with that of treasurer. Approval of the acceptance of the office by Gen. Pope, an ex-state bank examiner, history tells us that George Washington served as a road overseer after he retired from the presidency.

County State Bank was designated as the township depository. It was upon the history of the office of treasurer that Gen. Pope consented to take the office and then only upon the understanding that he is not to be a candidate for reelection.

FOR HEINOUS CRIME.

Joseph Kolander, a Miner,

Now on Trial.

Joseph Kolander, a Polish miner, of Virginia, is being tried today on a statutory charge, the maximum punishment on conviction of which is seven years' imprisonment in the state penitentiary. The complaining witness is Anne Dornan, a 12-year-old schoolgirl of Virginia, who is charged with having seduced Kolander. It was expected that the case would be finished some time late in the afternoon, but the testimony of the witness is so long and so full of details that it is expected to continue until the next week, possibly two weeks.

Besides the Van Dyke case, there still remains one or more serious cases and one or more cases of grand larceny figures as the charge.

The criminal calendar lists fair to be made at about 10 a. m. at first expected. The calendar of civil cases for jury trial is about completed. There is one case and trial in progress before Judge Dinnell and a court case before Judge Ensign.

MUST SUPPORT WIFE.

Following a hearing before Judge Cant, early this week, the court has filed an order in a divorce action of Freda Meyer against her husband, divorcing the husband, pending the trial of the case, until the parties are reconciled. The court gave him pay her attorney's fees of $20, alimony to her the house and its contents and one-half of the net income of the house and lot, and she is to have the same freely and voluntarily, and for the uses and purposes therein expressed.

Five Hundred Cells

Could Be Unlocked With a

Convict's Key.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 10.—A key was found under the pillow of Edward Wilson, a Jackson county man in the penitentiary, that would unlock 50 cells in the big prison. He made the key from a piece of sheet iron, but what he hoped to do with it the penitentiary officials have not figured out. Even had he unlocked the prisoners' cells, by more than 500, the men could have done no more harm than start a riot, which might have resulted in the shooting of some of their own number. Wilson loses fifty days good time.

ATHEIST FELL DEAD

Winamac, Ind., Jan. 13.—The sudden death of Richard Bossy during church

Bossy had long been known as an atheist, and was alleged to have said on various occasions that he had no use for churches. However, he entered the church to seek shelter from the midwinter storm.

Soon after he entered Rev. James McCarty made an earnest plea for gospel results, and during the service he was overcome by the preacher's words and came a Christian.

The prophesy of the preacher was soon fulfilled, when Bossy, with an anguished cry of "Oh!" fell back in his seat a corpse.

Chicago Dealer Brings

Suits Against the Sil-

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Alleging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, Samuel Lyons, dealer in silverware, has begun suit in the United States circuit court here for $100,000 damages against the International Silverware company, of New Jersey.

Lyons alleges that the silver company and its officers, together with other silverware concerns controlling 90 per cent of the silverware output in the United States, have conspired to enter into a conspiracy resulting in the control of prices. Purchasers, it is alleged, were compelled to sign contracts not to sell articles lower than stipulated by the alleged combination.

Lyons says he cut the price of silverware from 25 to 30 per cent, and that he sold him stock, thus causing a loss to him of $100,000.

MORE ABOUT

RAIL RATES

Railroad Official Argues

Against Government

Control.

Washington, Jan. 13.—W. D. Hinds, secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission, today argued before the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce today.

Undue discrimination regarding the long and the short haul, he maintained, is believed can be corrected under the law as it stood today.

Mr. Hinds said: "What should be done when the rate on oil from Cleveland to New Orleans is 26 cents, and from Chicago to New Orleans 24 cents, the Cleveland rate being considered fair and reasonable?"

The reply was that there was no reason for comparing the two rates, the Chicago rate on oil should be compared with the rates from that city to New Orleans on other commodities.

And if the rate on oil was found to be lower than that on other commodities it should be raised. The tendency would be to reduce rates in case action should be taken by a governmental tribunal. ## PUBLICITY WANTED

Builders Demand Bids on Public Buildings Be Made Known.
Board of Control Says It Would Cost State
$60,000.

St. Paul, Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives of the building trades from every section of the state have demanded of the state board of control that hereafter bids on public building work be opened in public.

The board refused the demands of the trades and assured them with notice that an effort will be made to force a bill through the legislature which will compel the board to make public its figures.

McClure took the ground that in order to obtain the lowest prices and prevent combinations of bidders it is necessary to keep the tenders secret. The statement was made that it would cost the state $60,000 a year more than at present to grant the demands of the builders. It was pointed out that at present every bidder is forced to enter into competition unhandcapped and has nothing but the specifications and his knowledge of cost on which to build up his bid.

To publish the bids, Mr. Leavitt said, would be to enable the builders to see what figures have been offered and enter into combinations if they wished.

The delegation called on Governor Johnson and his officers, together with the board of control, and will support their effort.

The delegation included J. W. L. Corning, St. Paul, president of the State Builders' exchange; A. B. Williams, secretary of that organization; Senator McMillan, president of the Minneapolis Builders and Trades' exchange; C. E. Evans, of Duluth; J. R. Kingsley, Park Rapids; J. Scheldt, Litchfield; Robert Seibert, Stillwater; James Lock, George Cook, A. J. Archibald, George Brown, C. W. Prince, Bartley Cooper, C. Christiansen, George Shoemaker and L. L. Sanford, of Minneapolis; John A. Keegan, of Duluth; and J. C. Carlson and F. Herzog, of St. Paul.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Sheriff Begins a Systematic Raid on Houghton Gamblers.

Houghton—Sheriff Beck raided Andrew Suski's saloon at South Range, seizing $200 worth of gambling apparatus and arresting Matt Esola, who was in charge. Esola was fined and ordered to leave the county, and the paraphernalia was destroyed. The sheriff started to investigate the reported gambling the preceding day was thrown out of the saloon.

Manistee—A mandamus has been issued at Manistee by Judge Stearns, compelling the board of school examiners to convene and issue a teacher's certificate to Miss Lillian Donnelly.

Muskegon—Charged with killing deer out of season, Charles Hill, of Muskegon, was arrested by game warden, and fined $2 and $4. The arrest was made for a game warden. A fresh track was found in Hill's possession.

Iron Mountain—Lawrence Kraus, employed at Frege's sawmill camp near Iron Mountain, met with an accident while hunting rabbits. He set his gun beside a stump and climbed on to the stump to get a view of the surrounding country. In pulling the gun up after him, it was discharged and the entire charge of shot entered his right side, inflicting a serious wound. He was taken to St. George's hospital at Iron Mountain. Several links of his watch chain came out from a sheath in his coat, which he wore, and several shot were removed. He will recover.

Newberry—Bob Pollock, a woodman, was so badly frozen in the woods near Newberry that the doctor fears that it may be necessary to amputate his limbs and feet. Pollock left town while a storm was raging to walk to the toll camp, but never reached his destination. He was in an intoxicated condition at the time it is said, and he overcame by the cold and liquor. He was found the following morning in an unconscious condition lying alongside the road at the eight-mile corner. Both hands and feet were frozen stiff. He was brought to town and is being cared for at the poor house.

Marquette—Capt. Marshall closed the Round Island light station last week, having kept the light burning a month later than in previous seasons. Accompanied by his assistant, Jacob Gibb, Marshall crossed the channel to his home on Mackinac Island, making the crossing the first time in the advance. Every few feet he tested the water with the pole, the blow often sending the pole through. Often the men retraced their steps, short distances, lying alongside toward Mackinac in a new direction. In this slow manner they crossed the channel, relieving the apprehensions of many anxious watchers.

NEWSPAPER MAN

Arrested at La Crosse on Charge of Bigamy.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 15.—Bert Turner was arrested here yesterday upon requisition papers by Deputy Sheriff Martin, of Wahash, Ind., charged with bigamy. About a year ago Turner went to Wahash, where he fell in love with a widow named Belle Fontaine and went with a girl aged 18 named Lois Harshill.

The former, through jealousy, entered the home of the Harshill girl one night and attempted to kill her with chloroform. She is now a convict in the Indiana state prison. Turner married Miss Harshill and lived with her until seven months ago, when he came to La Crosse and joined his wife and six children here.

He had been married in this city thirteen years ago to Anna Brookert, who is now left in destitute circumstances. Turner is a well-known newspaper man.

ROMANTIC SPIRIT

As Well as Economy
Attends Elopements
In Kentucky.

Twenty-Seven In Two Days In One County Reported.

Shelbyville, Ky., Jan. 15.—In the country districts of Kentucky a girl is an old maid at 25, at 30 she is passed and relegated to tea-cups, cats and knitting. Cakes and curries are hers, and on her hands when she goes to church are half lace mitts, not kids. All this makes the race to conjugal happiness one of almost maddening haste—in Kentucky. Twenty-seven elopements in two days is the record of one backwoods county this season.

In common with all other states of the union, Kentucky has more poor families than rich ones, and it follows that the preponderance of marriages are among the former, whose purses are not always equal to heavy outlays for elaborate wedding ceremonies. Hence it is that the most economical scheme of elopement is highly possible, with the added advantage of the spirit of romance that surrounds the idea of running away and being pursued by alleged irate parents who, it should be noted, never succeed in coming up with the elopers until the knot has been tied. The whole affair is a pleasing illusion, and may it always be so.

The old people, however, raise perennial objections—they always do. The old people are matchmakers who follow all the traditions of the South, and the girl who is ambitious to dodge the imposition of being called an old maid will take no risks. Down here in Kentucky there is no dearth of suitors and the average Blue Grass belle does not have long to wait. She has sweethearts before she is out of short skirts and it is no uncommon thing for her to be engaged while she still wears her hair in a long plait down her back and tops her curls with a jaunty tam-o'-shanter.

Here in Shelbyville eloping couples find a mecca. It is a quiet little place with lots of churches and no end of obliging ministers. The town is a store for all trains, but the elopers do not take the railroad route if they are in fear of being discovered—most in Kentucky. These young Lochinvars take the best high-stepper from the stable and start down the pike, a good rise. Then they get arrested by the local pursuers and get the knot tied before the father can interrupt their plans by appearing upon the scene with hotback, gun or glad-hand.

In some counties in Kentucky last fall the number of elopements is said to have been as great as that of ordinary, unromantic, premeditated marriages. There are instances where three and four young men have formed a party and eloped together. The method of procedure sometimes is unique. The belle wants to marry, but her father is against it. She is in a hurry, but she is sure to get something borrowed and something blue.

Something old, something new. A Lawrenceburg farmer heard that his daughter was eloping with the son of a neighbor. There were no very serious objections and the father bought some wedding presents and with some of his friends started in pursuit. They arrived in town about an hour after the ceremony had been performed and were told that the happy pair had gone to the hotel for dinner. The whole party headed by the bride's father rushed into the dining room and found the bride and groom seated at a table. The bride was holding a money-bag in her hand.

Several marriages have been performed on railroad tracks and one couple sought refuge by taking their minister on board a boat which was plying on the Kentucky river. The minister's marriage is no failure in Kentucky.

WOMEN "RAFFLES"

Reap Rich Harvest In Gotta's Exclusive Cafes.

New York, Jan. 15.—There is a band of women raffles at work in this city, operating in the latest field of their operations. Mrs. M. J. Jones, a wealthy society woman, says that she went to the raffle in the women's room of the Waldorf-Astoria. Four well-known women were in the room. She knew three of the women, but the fourth was unknown to her. Mrs. Jones arranged her hair and then reached for her pocket-book. She was surprised to find that she had been ruffed. She was surprised to find that she had been ruffed. She was surprised to find that she had been ruffed.

There is an question that there are thousands of dollars worth of property stolen in every city and hotel in this city every day by a band of well-to-do women who visit the resorts just for robbery. Mr. Floring said that a woman who was known in the fashionable world but long since placed a little less with a diamond-studded opera glass in it and several hundreds of dollars in cash under her chair in the palm garden at Sherry's, and was surprised when it was lost. A well-dressed woman had passed the rich pocket, stopped and picked up the bag. When she left the room and was seen no more.

Another woman known in New York and Europe's most exclusive circles, after washing her hands before luncheon laid her hand on a table, and they were never seen again.

There are scores of similar robberies of which nothing is said for fear of publicity, and the facts surrounding these robberies show that women are at the bottom of most of them.

There was a series of robberies at the Waldorf-Astoria last spring. Mrs. Charles L. McIntosh, of Milwaukee, lost $300 worth of jewels.

E. P. McCormick, of Toledo, also suffered. Last October, Mrs. Robert Slater, whose

RAPID TRANSIT IN POLITICS

Movement Started By Brooklynites While In Stalled Car.

New York, Jan. 15.—Believing that the quickest and only sure way of getting much needed improvements in the transportation facilities in Brooklyn and between that borough and Manhattan is through a political issue, a number of persons are engaged in organizing the Brooklyn Transportation Reform league.

Although the names and plans of the promoters are not yet ready for publication, Walter B. Brown, an advertising man, is expected to be the leader. The idea originated at an impromptu indignation meeting held in a Putnam avenue trolley car, which was stalled on the Brooklyn bridge one night.

It is to be a non-partisan organization, said Mr. Brown. "We are not going to be obstructionists in politics, but we are going to get what we demand. We expect that by next election we will be strong enough to dictate to the candidates, and that candidate who will not pledge himself for a change in the transportation facilities between the boroughs might as well not run."

The promoters declare that the movement is destined to succeed and will not be abandoned until adequate relief for the congested traffic is obtained. The organization will not foster any pet schemes or hobbies, but will give its support to any feasible and practicable plan, whether it involves more tunnels or bridges or something else. It is expected to get 10,000 voters on the rolls in order to make the organization a formidable force in politics.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Tramp Makes Himself at Home In School Houses.

SOUTH DAKOTA. Miller—The farmers living a few miles southwest of Free Heights are greatly concerned by the appearance of a stranger in the neighborhood, who sleeps in school houses, and who is seen while by day he walks unbidden into farm kitchens, partaking of the food.

The stranger is a tramp, who is seen while by day he walks unbidden into farm kitchens, partaking of the food. He is well-dressed, of medium height, light red mustache, and slightly bald. His appetite is good. One woman was scared when she discovered that he had come in and dined having with him a cap and belt and a square himself at the dinner table.

Britton—The remains of Judge James W. Britton were brought here from Mitchell, S. D., where he was stricken with heart failure. He was about 60, and had resided here since 1889, moving here from Columbia. He was prominent in county affairs, having served three terms as state's attorney and one term as judge of the probate court. In 1888 he received the Democratic nomination for judge of the fifth judicial circuit, but was defeated by Judge A. W. Campbell. The funeral was held yesterday and was largely attended, many attorneys from other counties being in attendance.

In the sheriff's contest against the county commissioners the judge decided in favor of Marshall Vincent, he having been appointed by the board for the remainder of the term, which expired Jan. 1. By virtue of the first appointment the court held he was entitled to the office for the full term.

Canton—The condition of General N. C. Nash, editor of the Sioux Valley News, and secretary of the South Dakota Soldiers' Home, does not improve, and his physicians give absolutely no encouragement for his recovery.

The county commissioners have readjusted the salaries of various county officers. Under the new schedule the salaries will be as follows: County auditor, $150; treasurer, $200; superintendent, $150; state's attorney, $250; county judge, $300; register of deeds, $120.

Pierre—The primary election petition and bill was presented to both houses by Secretary of State.

who were paid a consideration for each name procured. That many duplications of names were procured and that the signatures were attached thereto, before the petition was referred to the committee upon elections and privileges for proper consideration.

It is now apparent that the passage of the bill will be stoutly resisted. NORTH DAKOTA. Valley City.—Owing to the large increase of attendance at the state normal school for the winter term, the management has found it necessary to secure an additional instructor. Professor W. J. Alexander, for four years county superintendent of Pembina county, began his work this week. The normal counts itself fortunate to have secured so competent an instructor at this season of the year. Mr. Alexander is the father of the law which authorizes the county superintendent to convene a board of directors once each year to consider the welfare of the schools. This is conceded by educators who know the results to be one of the most valuable laws of the state.

Much interest is taken in this county in the question of a primary system for the election of judges. Leading citizens have for years been ardent advocates of the plan. The county superintendent has been endeavoring to secure the passage of the bill, and is now endeavoring to secure the passage of the bill.

Pembina—The second day of the Hartzell trial opened with the seven jurors in their seats. The jury chosen this time is in the hands of the bailiffs, and the utmost care is being exercised to keep outside influences from reaching them. Their meals being served by Sheriff Atkinson, and sleeping accommodations being furnished in the court house. Levy has disappeared from the proceedings and the trial is making itself manifest as the panel's completion. The defense is now in a position of serious consultation with one of the other of his counsel.

UNCONSCIOUS A WEEK.

Bemidji Man Has Been In Peculiar Condition.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 15.—One of the most peculiar cases of unconsciousness ever known by the officials at the county poor farm is that of Henry Newford, who on the day of the fire last week fell down a flight of stairs at the Merchants hotel in this city and broke his arm, afterwards from which he has not yet fully awakened, and it is all his attendants can do to keep him from losing his life.

The man is now in a peculiar condition. He is unconscious of his surroundings and is unable to respond to questions. He is now in a peculiar condition. He is unconscious of his surroundings and is unable to respond to questions.

FRIENDLESS STOWAWAY

Dies In Hold of Ship at Boston.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 15.—Homeless, friendless, his last penny gone, rebuffed on every side in his appeals for work or help, a poor old man crept up the long gangway of the big Leyland liner Devonian last night, and scurrying across the deck, secreted himself in the hold. The steamer was preparing to sail. When she had left land behind he would emerge, and then they would have to give him food to sustain life. He did not have a chance to be seen.

The man was about 50 years old, 5 feet tall, and weighed about 140 pounds. He was of light complexion and wore a dark suit and a black cotton shirt. In one of his pockets was part of a letter, written from one City hotel in Taunton, and addressed to "Dear Bob." There was also a pawn ticket for a coat from a Brooklyn pawnbroker. The name on the card was Mr. Collyer.

VANDERBILTS ARE IN STOCKS

Cornelius Conservative, While Alfred Has Been a Plunger.

New York, Jan. 15.—Cornelius Vanderbilt and his younger brother, Alfred, have come to the front in Wall street as most skillful stock market operators. It is estimated that since their father died they have made between them at least $2,000,000.

Cornelius is confining himself to the stock of the Interborough and Illinois Central. His younger brother, Alfred, to whom the bulk of the family fortune was bequeathed, ranges over the entire stock market. He is a plunger and a gambler, and has made between them at least $2,000,000.

Alfred is a real bargain hunter. He has been known to buy a stock at a low price and sell it at a high price. He has been known to buy a stock at a low price and sell it at a high price.

OUR SATISFACTORY PRESIDENT.

In the recent election the majority of people decided that the present form of administration was entirely satisfactory and that no change was necessary. The people also decided that, for popularity among home remedies, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters stands foremost and supreme. It has been thoroughly tested by the American people for over 50 years and found entirely satisfactory. If you suffer from loss of appetite, nausea, bloating, heartburn, belching, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, chills, colds, malarial fever and ague we urge you to try the Bitters at once. Its results are certain. Weak or delicate females will also receive immediate benefit from a few doses of the Bitters. It stimulates and strengthens their weak organs and thus cures all monthly irregularities. Don't fail to try it.

Fisherman Makes Riches at a Single Stroke.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 15.—J. Taylor, a resident of Alaska, believes he is a man of wealth at one stroke. He has arrived in the city on the Dolphin with what he believes is a 20-pound can of ambergris, worth, he says, $1000 a pound.

While fishing in northern waters a few months ago Taylor says he came across a fish, the peculiar fish, worth $1000 a pound. He towed it to shore, and as soon as he has the sample with him analyzed he will bring the whole quantity out.

Norton charges that during the World's fair season Schrowang's operations have contributed to a loss of between $50,000 and $100,000 to the different St. Louis railroads.

AFTER THE GAMBLERS.

New York, Jan. 15.—Police activity continued through the early hours today in the campaign against gambling houses and illegal resorts. Raids were made on two drinking resorts and several wagon loads of habuties were arrested. Two or three "slumming parties" got into the net and the women members became hysterical over the situation. They were liberated.

The new French work basket would woo the laziest woman to industry, says the Seattle Daily Times. They are nothing in the world but a little girl's bright colored parasol, with a double cover which forms a pocket between every two ribs. A small umbrella-like cover of the same color and pattern with silk supports the parasol so that it stands as firmly as a basket. The crook of the handle is tied with a full bow of ribbon to match the silk cover. The handle is made of a piece of wood with a big bow of blue satin ribbon, in pink with pink satin bow or in lavender with tatarfas bow of the same color. The sewing work can be closed up inside and the handle and ribs are covered with a fine material. The basket is Grandmother's tall wicker basket.

For Dead, But Still Alivc.

London, Jan. 13.—"I only remember kissing my husband and feeling I was getting colder and colder. Everything is a blank to my memory until I knew I was being carried down stairs. Then I fainted again."

Thus spoke Mrs. Holden, a young woman of Hapton village, in Lancashire, in explanation of the ordinary circumstances under which she was brought back to life while being measured for her coffin by an Accrington undertaker. She looked pale and feeble, but spoke cheerfully.

When I was a small child, but I do not remember anything about that, except when my mother told me." So Mrs. Holden was supposed to have died at 5 o'clock Monday morning and a few minutes before that hour she told her husband she felt she was going. While he was temporarily absent she, by a supreme effort, got out of bed and actually bathed herself in preparation for the last waiting for a Northwestern southbound train to leave Tuesday night, when he noticed a large man, very agitated, standing in the aisle.

"What's wrong?" In and was told the reason for the corpse had to be paid in St. Louis City, and the other remarked the man was a Jew. In and asked the man if the large man discovered he hadn't $25 to pay by expressage, and only a draft, and asked the Jew why was eagerly listening to let him have $25 long enough to pay the charges.

In and himself weeping, pulled out the money and handed it over with expressions of sympathy. He left the train at the first station and came back to the city. The Jew, who was getting the man, he said, did not come back.

THREAT IS BLUFF

Attorneys Say Saloon Men Cannot Close Other Stores.

First of Eleven W. C. T. U. Cases Is Being Heard.

Not much stock is taken in the claim made by the saloonkeepers that if the W. C. T. U. women persist in their raids, they will retaliate by closing up the drug stores, candy stores, news stands and every other business and stop the cars from running on Sunday.

Several well-known attorneys were discussing the matter in the municipal court this morning, and the opinion was unanimous that nothing of the kind could be done.

"The talk is all bluff," said one of the attorneys. "Cases like that have been tried before, and they are consulting the state of that kind that are exempt from the Sunday closing law, on the ground that they sell necessities. They can't close these stores and they can't stop the street cars from running."

The saloon men are determined to fight the present cases against them, however, and the Retail Liquor Dealers' association, which was disbanded several months ago, may be reorganized for the sake of mutual protection.

Three attorneys have been retained by the dealers, and they are consulting together on the cases. They are Alexander Marshall, M. H. McPherson and Judge S. P. White. R. J. McKenney, the assistant city attorney, will have charge of the prosecution.

The first of the eleven cases was called in the municipal court this morning. The case was that of John Thaw, of 360 Grand avenue west. The complaining witness is John Galt, and the other two witnesses for the prosecution, Mrs. Helen Stewart and Mrs. Larson, are members of the West Duluth W. C. T. U.

Owing to the fact that Judge White, the attorney for the defendant, was another suit before Judge Windom, the case could not be brought up this morning, and the hearing was set over until this afternoon.

The case against H. W. Erickson, which was also brought up this morning, was postponed until a week from Monday, owing to the illness of the defendant. The other cases are due to come up before the court tomorrow and Saturday.

There was a crowd of fifteen men in the court room this morning, and it was expected that when the cases came up for hearing tomorrow, standing room will be at a premium.

INSTALLATION HELD.
Maccabees of Duluth Tent No. 1 Conduct Ceremonies.
The public installation of the officers of Duluth Tent No. 1, K. O. T. M., was conducted last evening by State Commissioner J. N. Clafford, at St. Paul, at Maccabees hall in the Hunter block.

A large crowd of Maccabees and their friends were present. During the installation ceremony the retiring commander, E. A. Thompson, was presented with a beautiful cut-glass bowl and receiver. Following the installation ceremony, a large and a dainty lunch served.

Following were the officers installed: First commander, E. A. Thompson; commander, J. N. Clafford; lieutenant commander, J. H. Peterson; lieutenant commander, J. H. Peterson; balance keeper, C. J. Hector; chaplain, O. McCann; sergeant, A. P. Brown; master-at-arms, C. W. Gould; first master of guards, George Stephens; second master of guards, M. C. Reed; sentinel, R. Knudsen; picket, C. H. Hoeker; trustees, J. McMillan and E. J. Moran; physician, Dr. F. N. Lyman.

A SURVEYOR SAW A BEAR

While Squinting Through Transit and His Assistant Fled.

Bennington, Vt., Jan. 18.—George Bond is one of the 161 residents of the village of Bennington, fifteen miles from here. Besides being town clerk, chief liberator and town superintendent, he is a surveyor and has spent much of his life running lines through the woods. Strangely enough until a few days ago he never saw a wild bear.

His first experience in this line came while he was surveying in the forests of Somerset. This town has sixty-seven inhabitants and the bears come to the village often as they line it. It is hard enough to make both ends meet in Somerset without wasting time in hunting for bears.

Mr. Bond was squinting through his transit in an endeavor to locate a pole held by his chairman forty rods away, when his eye upon a big black bear.

It was ten rods off, but through the transit it looked about three feet, and seemed to be right up out of the snow. The surveyor admits that he was terribly afraid the bear would catch him, and he fled.

The bear, being a wise beast, was terribly afraid the bear would catch him, and he fled. The bear, being a wise beast, was terribly afraid the bear would catch him, and he fled.

At the same time he opened his mouth, gave it upon a big black bear, and he fled. The bear, being a wise beast, was terribly afraid the bear would catch him, and he fled.

West Duluth COMES TO CLOSE

End of Swedish Lutheran Convention In West Duluth.

Annual Banquet of St. James Church a Big Success.

The annual meeting of the Lake Superior mission district of the Swedish Lutheran church, which has been in session for the past three days at the Elmhurst Lutheran church in West Duluth, came to a close last night.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon delegates to attend the synodical convention, which will be held at Scranton, Iowa, next summer, were elected, as follows: Ministerial, Rev. J. O. Melsenius, of Two Harbors; Rev. J. O. Swenson, of Cloquet; lay, Charles Nelson, of Port Wing, Wis.; C. A. Peterson, of Duluth.

At the same session Rev. P. O. Hanson, of Virginia, led a discussion on how to make the Lutheran spirit more produced among the churches and people generally. Among other business transacted was the appropriation of nearly $1000 toward the several churches and missions in need of help. A resolution was passed condemning Sunday lawlessness and other forms of Sunday amusements. It was also decided to petition the conference for the appointment of a field missionary in this district.

The principal address last evening was delivered by Rev. J. B. A. Idstrom, of Superior, who spoke on the subject of educating children in religious work. Short addresses were delivered by Rev. J. V. Soderman, of Superior, and Rev. J. O. Melsenius, of Two Harbors. The next meeting of the district ministers will be held at Two Harbors during the last week in January, 1906.

A BIG SUCCESS.
Rev. Feely Tenders Banquet to Church Officers.
St. James hall, on Fifty-seventh avenue west, took on a festive appearance last evening. The occasion, and it was a very happy one to all concerned, was the annual banquet tendered the officers, members of the choir, altar boys, trustees and other church officers, by Rev. Feely, their pastor.

The interior of the brightly-lighted building was beautifully decorated with American flags, cut flowers, potted plants and evergreens. Plates were laid for seventy persons. Covered with snowy linen, and sparkling with glass and silver, the tables were tastefully arranged and decorated with a variety of cut flowers, presented by the ladies.

They were placed in the form of the letter "U." Invitations to the banquet were slighted, no matter what the press of other business might be. The two hundred and fifty chairs were occupied. And no one who attended left the hall disappointed. It was a jolly company that sat about the banquet tables. Everything was done to make the occasion a success.

The general session of the affair was there. As a whole the banquet was pronounced one of the finest ever given in West Duluth. The ladies were in the greatest variety, and served in a manner to tempt the least fastidious.

P. H. Martin acted as toastmaster, and he made a very good one, as really many of the guests were unable to imagine. Numerous toasts were responded to. Nearly all of the grown people in the hall made some sort of a speech, in fact. Among them were Rev. Feely, John T. Hamdill, J. M. Laumann, William Godfrey, D. B. Baird, Josephine Methers, and others. Father Feely spoke briefly, but with feeling. He thanked the people for the acceptance of his invitation, and expressed his sincere pleasure at seeing so many of them there.

After a musical and literary program added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Those taking part in it were: Miss Clara Kelly, Mrs. Hayden, Mrs. Lena Doherty, Miss Edith Brotherton, Master James Dornedy, the Misses Baker, and Miss Theresa Lynn. Who delightfully played several selections on the piano. Her brother, James Lynn, was also in attendance.

peror of Germany have also been enlisted. It is contended here that the pope, by virtue of his office, is most interested in the settlement of the matter, that, therefore, it would be appropriate to admit his representative to the coming conference. At the first peace conference, held during the reign of Leo XIII, the holy see was not represented because of the persistent opposition of the Italian government and officials, who did not want the pope receive recognition from other powers as a temporal sovereign. It is now pointed out that such opposition is not likely to be renewed because of the changed attitude of the Italian government and the quelling of Great Britain are here entertained that the powers

Along the same line as Dr. Lyman's lectures will be the talk given by Dr. J. E. Eklund at the lunch table discussion next Sunday. Dr. Eklund will speak on the "Nervous System from the Use of Drugs and Intoxicants," discussing the effect of liquor and tobacco on the human system.

The four lectures will probably be as interesting as any that have been given in connection with the athletic work of the association since its organization.

The association is planning to organize a literary and debating society. Meetings will be held every two weeks, for debates on current topics. A meeting will be held next Monday evening in

The second scene represented the temptation of Adam by the serpent. Lucifer appeared again, bearing the serpent aloft, plucked with flowers, which fell from his scaly length. While this scene is being enacted before the altar the choir sings words in Latin illustrating the proceedings. A procession was then formed and the vast congregation sank on its knees as the abbot and his monks carried an elaborately decorated image of the virgin to the altar. The abbot then pronounced the second, this singular revival of a mediaeval custom which is said to have had a profound emotional influence on those who witnessed it.

THE HOTELS REFUSE TO ENTERTAIN WASHINGTON.

Wichita, Kas., Jan. 19.—Wichita hotels refused admittance to Hooker T. Washington, who lectured here last night. When Mr. Washington's manager sought to engage quarters for him at the leading hotel of the city, he was informed that colored people were not entertained there. Mr. Washington was compelled to accept

In her affidavit Miss Fitzhugh declares that she was compelled by Brugiére to contribute the money which she now seeks to recover. When the opera was brought to the Casino, Miss Fitzhugh alleges, Mr. Brugiére told her she would have to put up $50,000 if she desired to remain a star in the play, and that he afterward compromised on $2500. Miss Fitzhugh says she was compelled to pawn her jewels to get the necessary cash.

CONVICTED OF ARSON.
Carroll, Iowa, Jan. 19.—After a sensational trial, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Harvey were convicted yesterday on a charge of arson. They were charged with setting fire to the farm of A. J. Aiden, which they were operating over a year ago, for the sake of securing the insurance. Two brothers, W. E. and A. A. Hobbs, who were sleeping in the house, lost their lives in the fire. Harvey and his wife are both 23 years of age and have been married a little over a year. The penalty for their crime is life imprisonment.

A PLEA OF GUILTY

Oliver Joleaud Admits Taking Letter Belonging to Another.

Sentence Will Be Passed Upon Him Next Monday.

Oliver Joleaud pleaded guilty before Judge Pate Morris in federal court this morning to the charge of securing mail addressed to another person and taking $50 from a letter thus secured. He was remanded to the custody of the United States marshal, awaiting the arrival in the city of United States District Attorney Haupt. Probable sentence will be passed on the prisoner next Monday.

Joleaud was taken from the custody of the sheriff of Itasca county, at Grand Rapids, on a bench warrant issued by Judge Morris, and brought to Duluth last night by Deputy United States Marshal Frank W. Tufts, of Cass Lake. He was indicted in the federal court this morning, during his recent session, claims he was intoxicated when the crime which he is charged with committed.

MASQUERADE BALL.

Third Regiment Band to Give One Monday.

Platoon's Third Regiment band will give a masquerade ball at the Armory Monday evening, Jan. 23. The entire band of forty-six pieces will render an excellent dance program, as well as promenade numbers.

The success of the Third regiment organization has long been established both for concert and dance programs. Mr. Platoon has arranged an excellent program of varied numbers for the dance. The Armory floor is in excellent condition and dancers will find an abundance of pleasure at the masquerade ball.

Prizes will be given for the best costumes and dancing. A capable committee has been appointed for this purpose and cash rewards will be paid at the close of the program.

Friends of the band who do not desire to dance will find ample enjoyment in the excellent program to be rendered and gallery seats will be afforded all who do not care to go upon the floor.

JURY FINDS BERG GUILTY

Convicts Him on Assault Charge—Maki Is Sentenced.

Abraham Berg, the young man accused of cutting his rival, Oscar Lindstrom, with a penknife, was yesterday afternoon found guilty of assault in the second degree, the jury deliberating about an hour.

Miss Anna Sahr, the young lady over whom the trouble is said to have started, was a witness in Berg's behalf yesterday afternoon, although she is alleged to have taken place. Miss Sahr's testimony showed that she took Berg's part. She said that after the fight was over she helped lift Berg from the ground and took him to her home, where the blood was washed away from a wound on his head.

Gus Maki, of Duluth, who was convicted of assault in the second degree the first of the week, was last evening sentenced by Judge Cant to a term of four years at the state penitentiary, at hard labor.

In passing sentence Judge Cant stated that while he understood Maki had always borne a good reputation prior to the trouble, the practice of shooting is becoming altogether too common and it would exert a bad influence if the court should deal too lightly in the matter of punishment.

Maki, in an answer to questions put by the court, said he was 45 years old. He has been in the saloon business two years, having previously worked in the mines.

Maki was accused of shooting Victor Maki, another Finlander, while the latter was drunk and making trouble in the former's saloon.

TWO GAMES PLAYED.

Curlers Compete For the Universal Mill Trophy.

Two matches for the Universal Mill trophy were played last evening at the curling rink, F. A. Greene's rink defeating W. D. Newcomb's and Alex MacRae's rink winning from F. S. Amcke's. The players and scores were:

E. D. Field, W. A. Folk, 10-8.
E. L. Jacob, R. E. Grant, 10-7.
S. A. McPhail, W. J. Telford, 10-6.

GETS SMALL VERDICT.

William Kestin Recovers $9 From Employment Agent.

William Kestin was given a verdict of $9 against the proprietors of the Globe Employment agency in the municipal court yesterday afternoon.

Kestin sued to recover for railway fare to a lumber camp near the city where he claims to have been sent by the agents. He asserted that he could find no work after he arrived there, and brought suit for $9 to reimburse him for his fare, his railway fare and the time spent in going to and from the place. The jury gave him $9.

WOMAN SUICIDES.

Mrs. A. C. Conklin, of Allouez Bay, Takes Carbolic Acid.

Mrs. A. C. Conklin, an Allouez Bay woman, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by the carbolic acid route. Fred Conklin, the husband, claims that his wife had been suffering from an incurable malady and had become melancholy. It is supposed that she swallowed two

REIMBURSED BY CARNEGIE

Steel Magnate Contributes $18,000 to Oberlin Bank Losers.

Elyria, O., Jan. 19.—Andrew Carnegie placed $18,000 in the hands of Rev. W. T. Cadmus, pastor of the First Congregational church, of this city, yesterday, to be distributed to the depositors who lost their money in the failed Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, as a result of the Chadwick loans.

Mr. Carnegie said in a letter to Mr. Cadmus to use the money among the depositors who had placed their savings in the Oberlin bank, and also to investigate among the students at Oberlin college and learn the amount they lost.

Judge Steel of Oberlin will appoint a commission to investigate the most worthy cases.

Mr. Carnegie has also given Mr. Cadmus $3000 to reimburse the Oberlin Y. M. C. A.

Cleveland, Jan. 19.—Two physicians were called to see Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick in jail yesterday afternoon. She is said to be suffering from physical and mental collapse. Attorney Dawley says she is afflicted with heart trouble and would not be able to stand a trial in court in her present condition. Mrs. Chadwick is said to have frequent fainting spells.

The announcement that Mr. Carnegie had decided to reimburse the losers by the failure of the Oberlin bank has seemed to greatly affect Mrs. Chadwick.

Dr. Chadwick called at the jail yesterday morning and spent half an hour in conversation with his wife. He admitted to the jail officials that he thought his wife was a very sick woman.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.
Rome, Jan. 19.—Uneasiness is felt here the concentration of Austrian troops on the Italian frontier. The Patria going so far as to say that Austria is preparing for war against Italy. On the other hand the Tribune published a statement to the effect that its correspondent at Vienna has been assured by the Austrian foreign office that the increase in the number of Austrian troops on the frontier of Italy was merely due to the return of soldiers to their posts after having been on duty along the Russian frontier, their presence there being no longer necessary.

COMMITTEE TO DINE.
Public Affairs Body to Have a Feast.

Saturday evening a dinner will be held at the Commercial club to commemorate the institution of the public affairs committee of the club, which was brought into being a year since. Chairman Hugo, of the committee, will preside and the meeting will be in the nature of a mixed occasion of business, pleasure and refreshment.

The committee has become an important part of the city's municipal movement and has taken active and prominent part in many public questions. The raising of a fund to advertise and take care of propositions for the benefit of the city has been one of its chief tasks. Of this fund $10,000 has been raised and has been called from subscribers and of this percentage some remains unexpended. There will be speeches and toasts at Saturday night's meeting.

THOUSANDS OF OPERATORS
Return to Work In the Mills at Fall River.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 19.—The thousands of operatives who have been idle for nearly six months as the result of the great textile strike returned to work today. All the operatives appeared confident that conditions would be greatly improved as the result of the agreement reached yesterday between the manufacturers and the union leaders through the efforts of Governor Douglas. Although the 12 1/2 per cent reduction on account of which the strike was inaugurated went into effect with the returning strikers to day, the feeling seemed general that the governor's arbitration of the question of the margin of profit for the manufacturers between the price of raw cotton and that of the finished goods would bring about a higher scale of wages in the near future.

ASSIGNMENT OF WAGES
Is Not Binding on Only One Employer.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—An assignment of wages given while in the employ of one company cannot, one said, be against the salary earned in the employ of a different company, according to a decision of Judge Bretnore, of the superior court, who has issued a temporary injunction against John Mulholland, of New York, and C. L. Steele, loan agents. The order was granted on the plea of Alfred P. Working, a porter working for the Pullman company and earning $25 a month, who had given the three defendants on his wages while employed by the Illinois Central Railroad company.

SEVEN MEMBERS OF THE BLACK HAND ARRESTED.

THE BIG BUILDING.

The story of how a man from Chicago traveled to London with an idea and shook the very footstool of the British Empire reads like a page from a new "Arabian Nights." An epitome of this marvelous career and what it means is contained in the following brief sentences on September 20 in the editorial columns of the London Times—"Old Thunderer"—a very prop of the empire.

Mr. Charles T. Yerkes, of Chicago and London, has now nearly under foot at Lots Road, Chelsea, a water suburb of London, the greatest electrical power plant ever contemplated by man. It covers nearly four acres of ground, will cost when complete $2,000,000 and will develop a total of 100,000-horsepower.

This great generating station at Chelsea is the material evidence of the triumph of "Charlie" Yerkes, as only a decade ago the curbstone brokers of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce called this keensighted, absolutely audacious and financially magnetic American.

Vast, Huge and Noiseless Machinery

From the 10 sets of huge generating apparatus will run great shining cables, silent but potent, rushing at lightning speed the vast power which eventually hurries into the distributing stations of five separate and widely distant railway systems. The imagination of Jules Verne has never suggested so romantic an episode in fiction as the career of Chicago "Charlie" Yerkes since he went to London, five years ago, and laid the plans which have resulted in the modernizing and reorganization of the vastest municipal railway systems on earth, besides which even our boasted New York subway is a single-track road in New England.

Mr. Yerkes had three things with him when he first walked up the Strand—ideas, unlimited pluck and $1,000,000—and with these articles and Mr. Yerkes to back them this American has conquered British pride and obstinacy, has actually dominated the British Parliament in open session, although not present himself, and has finally swung into a vast tandem system of railways the five municipal transportation companies of London, mobilized for a single purpose $20,000,000, and from the abused and misunderstood foreigner of half a decade ago has now become Mr. Charles T. Yerkes, the famous American railway king. As a crown to his remarkable career he will have the pleasure of pressing into the hand of King Edward VII. the insulated lever which by the first of the year will be shoved home and so start into silent, remorseless and almost superhuman energy the gigantic forces of nature, that quiet but indomitable power which Chicago "Charlie" Yerkes has harnessed together. Only two years will have been required to complete this marvelous concentration of natural energy.

The machinery, despite the prejudices of British stockholders, has come almost entirely from American shops. The labor has been directed by a colony of American electrical engineers, and to obtain the best of this class of American labor Mr. Yerkes has spent money like water. These men were collected by Mr. Yerkes fully six months before he touched his pen to the $3,000,000 contract for this power plant installed in London. Their expenses have been paid, their wages being drawn regularly, and much of the practical success of the work has been due to the fact that Mr. Yerkes, whose financial logic finally dominated London, had from the first assumed the position that the men who were skilled enough to do what he wanted were good enough to draw a full and satisfactory share of the millions to be invested.

This nucleus of the very highest grade of the best labor on earth was used to leaven the somewhat thick-headed British help. The Americans have acted as foremen and inspectors, assistant electrical engineers, division engineers, and by setting a true American pace for the slower-moving Britons have enabled Mr. Yerkes to perform this tremendous contract within the time promised to his stockholders.

Supplies Five Railway Systems.

The power generated in Mr. Yerkes' new factory will be stated above, supply five great railway systems. These five railways will carry enough passengers in 12 months to populate any one of the great countries of the world. It will furnish current for the working of the Metropolitan District Railway and the three underground tubes now nearly completed. It will stretch mysterious channels under the foundations of the historic structures of the British capital, and will be lighted and its station elevators and trains will be run by the same force. These three tubes are the Baker Street and Waterloo Line, the Charing Cross, Euston and Hampstead Line and the Great Northern, Piccadilly and Brompton Railway. The Central London Railway will also depend upon Mr. Yerkes' power factory for its motive force.

The central distributing point will be located at Chelsea, and will be controlled by the Underground Electric Railways Company of London. This company is a creation of Mr. Yerkes, and its formation and operation actually arose to the dignity of an issue between the two great Conservative and Liberal parties in the British House of Commons. How Mr. Yerkes reasoned with statesmen and strung wires that finally moved county members in England and Ireland, who still view the railway as a somewhat impertinent and tawdry plebeian institution, is quite as remarkable a story as the practical results of all these intrigues.

The work which led up to the financial possibilities of the biggest power station in the world, and the marvelous insertion of Mr. Yerkes' personality into the very core of the British Empire, is another story.

The task which Mr. Yerkes had set himself amounted practically to changing the general trend of British popular thought, and to this was added the necessity of persuading the big financial interests of London to adopt his ideas in regard to backing him in this stupendous enterprise. Curiously enough, Mr. Yerkes' greatest aid in all this proved to be no other than the venerable and potent London Times. Yerkes called in person on the leading spirits of the Times, and presented so clearly his plans for the rehabilitation of London's municipal transportation system that this newspaper's publication began at once an educational crusade in favor of the clear-sighted American.

By degrees Yerkes obtained the confidence of Sir Thomas Harrison, president of the Great Northern, Piccadilly and Brompton Railway, and Mr. Douglas Harcourt, general manager and dominating influence in the Baker Street and Waterloo Line. With these three men for a nucleus, around which for more than a year revolved the titanic and desperate struggle of some of the greatest financial and political influences in England, Yerkes steadily won his way. The struggle was carried even into the House of Lords and was the occasion of a sharp division in the Commons. The London Common Council was called upon to pass upon the legality of certain financial relations, and a determined effort was made to prevent the granting of the franchise and the incorporation of the Underground Electric Railways Company of London. By this time the independent and more enlightened portion of the London press had lined up solidly behind Yerkes, following the lead of the Times. Curiously enough, the banking-house of which J. Pierpont Morgan is the head, and which is the original office of that firm, was on the other side of the fence from the Yerkes aggregation. Finally the pressure of public opinion more or less forced the body of London aldermen, over which the Lord Mayor presided, to grant to the Yerkes crowd the franchise for which they had fought so bitterly. By this time the financial end of the undertaking had been cared for, and once this was assured the other underground systems of London became anxious to get in out of the wet and eventually Yerkes succeeded in combining the motive power of all four of the tubes in one.

Results are, after all, what men of Mr. Yerkes' type are after, and the Underground Electric Railways Company of London is the actual money-making machine which is the result of all the intrigues, politics and financial promoting of Mr. Yerkes and the American and British capitalists who finally rallied to the support of his idea.

In this company the practical machinery which is to grind out the dollars is centered in the huge, swiftly moving wheels that create an amount of energy capable of moving nearly 1,000,000 passengers a year.

Three Times Power of Niagara.

One hears a great deal about the famous power station at Niagara, and no one thinks he has done Niagara without having paid a visit to the engine-room and inspected the 10 huge dynamos which generate some 50,000 horsepower between them. If this station is regarded as one of the sights of the United States, what about a power-house nearly three times its size; also in the total output of its power, and one which is capable of supplying the current for driving five railways?

Such is the station now nearing completion at Lots Road, Chelsea, and drop automatically into little trucks in the basement below. These are carried along on lines and dumped into a great ashpit.

Each boiler has 5,212 square feet of heating surface and 672 square feet of superheating surface, from which fact one gains an idea of their immense size. It is the engine-room that calls for most attention, as it is here where the great turbines and generators are installed. Just now it presents a mass of machinery. In all there will be 10 of them; that is to say, 10 generators with their turbine engines. These latter, which will make a thousand revolutions per minute, are the largest steam turbines ever built. Each of these 10 sets will produce 11,000 volts or a normal capacity of 50,000 horsepower, though for a short period a total of 120-horsepower can be developed.

When the station is in full working order between 800 and 900 tons of coal a day will be consumed. And this whole scene of titanic energy once lay a mere thought in the brain of Charles T. Yerkes, of Chicago, now of Mayfair, London, and a factor in international finance of no mean importance.

GIRL FRIENDSHIPS.

There is nothing that is such a lasting pleasure as the possession of a really true friend. But how many people lose their friends by their own foolish conduct and then seem unable to see that it is through their own fault that the once pleasant intercourse is at an end? Girls must remember that to call a friend "darling" to her face and speak ill of her behind her back is not the way to keep her love. In a friend one ought to be sure of finding someone whose advice is worth taking, and whose affection is always the same for us to fall back on, however ill the rest of the world treats us. Friendship is something better than a mere formal knowledge of each other, and the lapse of years between our meetings should not be able to make the least difference in our regard for each other.

How To Attract A Man's Love.

There is one peculiar mistake which is very common among the girls who desire to attract and win the love of the man they admire. They concentrate their whole thoughts and attentions on their personal appearance, manners and talk and think that if these are pleasing that the man is sure to succumb to their attractions sooner or later. It is true that a girl does not stand much chance of winning a man unless she appears at her best while in his presence. But although she might not think so, she does not appear at her best by only taking care that nothing could be desired in her dress and training herself to amuse him by her conversation. Such a girl may attract for a short while, but after a time she will find that the talk which seemed to attract him loses its charm for him and it is not unlikely that if he could be gotten to express his true opinion of her it would be that she was merely a pretty chatterbox. To really attract a man a girl must not only be interesting herself, but also show that she takes a deep interest in whatever concerns him. While every man may not have his price, there is no man so perfect as not to have some point where he is assailable, some weakness through which he may be won. A clever woman who has the wit to make a man talk freely with her ought not to find it a difficult matter to discover his favorite topic of conversation.

The girl who draws a man out, so to speak, on the subject of his work, hobby, sport, or whatever he wants most to talk about and shows that she is a sympathetic listener is far more likely to win him than the girl who seeks to dazzle him with the brilliancy of her own small talk. There is no form of flattery so delicate, so subtle as the deferential attention to what he says about his favorite subject.

While all men are susceptible to flattery and while they like to be admired and still more to be appreciated at what they think their true value, there are few who are not repelled by open attentions from a woman. A woman must be charming in order to charm. The girl who wishes to attract a man must also study every way of pleasing him. When she pays her attentions she must be gracious and must let him see that she values them. On the other hand, she must not seek or accept them too eagerly, above all she must show no disposition to monopolize. A premature exhibition of jealousy has scared off many a would-be proposer of marriage.

THE BEAUTY BATH A NECESSITY.

To keep the body clean is to keep it healthy. More than that, it will keep the mind clear and bright as the circulation is stimulated, muscles massaged and the tissues hardened. The daily bath is the finest beautifier known. One thing you must strictly avoid in bathing—never use hard water. It is impossible to create a cleansing suds. The addition of borax will remedy this trouble, so always keep a little china or tin-covered box of borax on your toilet table. Use pure white castile soap and a flesh brush. A tablespoon of the borax will be plenty.

Rinse with a bath spray, chilling the water gradually. Use a coarse grained towel for drying. A pink color should come after a sound rubbing. Every morning, if the warm bath is used but once a week, you should sponge all over with tepid water, to which a handful of salt and some borax has been added. This last is the true beautifying bath, and the woman who suffers from blackheads and pimples would do well to remember that if the skin receives this stimulant every morning, it will throw off all waste matter and her complexion will improve as no other skin medicine can make it. Hard water on the other hand, will sooner or later ruin the prettiest skin.

Ellen Terry on Rural Life.

The charms of country life seem to have a great fascination for famous actresses of the present day. During the intervals between their professional engagements quite a number of our footlight favorites spent the greater part of their time amid rural surroundings, finding intense pleasure and enjoyment in the recreation of amateur gardening. The same fact is noticeable abroad. Miss Ellen Terry, for instance, is never so happy as when resting at her delightful country residence, Power Cottage, situated near the picturesque old town of Winchester, in England.

The cottage is a veritable floral nook, blossoms being everywhere, both inside and outside the house. For Miss Terry is passionately fond of flowers, her chief pastime when at home being that of spending hours in her garden tending favorite plants. Indoors the famous actress occupies herself mainly with sewing and knitting, not infrequently making articles of clothing for the poor children of Winchester. Apart from these recreations, however, Miss Terry indulges in a rather unique hobby, namely, that of collecting eyeglasses of famous men. Her collection has been contributed to by many celebrities, and, needless to say, Sir Henry Irving is amongst these, the pair of glasses which gave to the lady who is so associated with him in so many of his triumphs, having the name "Henry" written on one glass and "Irving" on the other.

ANTI-BUCKET SHOP BILL IS INTRODUCED IN THE LEGISLATURE

Sweeping Enough to Affect Board of Trade Business.

Saari of Sparta Has Bill on Assignment of Wages.

Total of Seventy-Four Measures Introduced In House.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The prohibition of trading in options or futures on boards of trade in Minnesota is a feature of an anti-bucket shop bill introduced in the house this morning by Representative R. H. Wells, of Becker. The bill is leveled against bucket shopping in all forms and is sweeping enough to make radical changes in business on the board of trade at Duluth and the chamber of commerce at Minneapolis. It should become a law. And there will be no doubt but that it will pass. The bill makes it unlawful to maintain any place where trading in stocks or shares is done without a bona fide intention to pay for and receive the property traded in on the part of the purchaser and to deliver the goods on the part of the seller. It also prohibits the pretended buying and selling on margins and makes it unlawful to conduct a place of business wherein is conducted the business commonly known as dealing in futures, whether such business is by members of a board of trade or not. It is made unlawful for any person to run such a place as those prohibited, or to deal in the prohibited manner, and the punishment is a fine of $500 to $2,000, and in cases of corporations they are liable to forfeiture of charter.

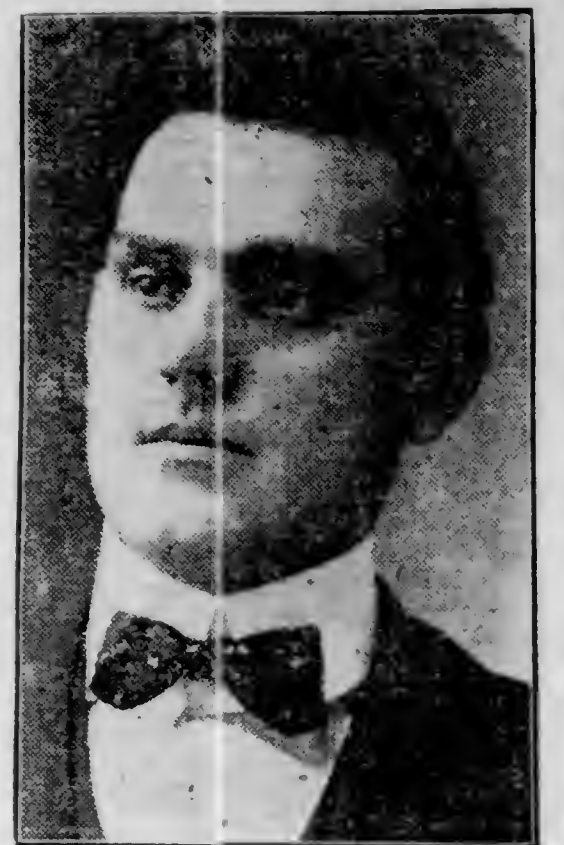

Representative Erickson introduced another bill, which is aimed specifically at bucket shops. It defines a bucket shop as a place where trading is done without the intention to transfer the commodities traded in and without being based upon an actual bond of trade transaction. The punishment is a fine of $500 to $2,000, or imprisonment until the fine is paid, not to exceed one year, and for a second offense imprisonment for thirty to ninety days and forfeiture of charter in the case of a corporation. Any person furnishing quantities to a bucket shop is made an accessory, punishable in the same manner.

The removal of all limitations upon the amount of damages recoverable in actions brought by persons injured by the use of a defective building is provided for in a bill introduced by Representative S. H. of St. Paul. He proposes a constitutional amendment adding to the constitution a section providing that the right of recovery in such cases shall never be abridged, and that no limitation shall be placed upon the amount recoverable. The law now fixes the limit at $500.

Representative Burdwell, of Minneapolis, introduced a bill extending the privilege of priority in the sale of property for sporting and gaming, feeding and caring for animals, and making or receiving money, property, or other thing of value may sell the stuff at public auction, after notice to the owner, for the amount due is not paid in ninety days. Mr. Burdwell also introduced a bill legalizing franchises of public utility corporations heretofore granted by towns and villages, where the plant is now installed.

Representative Anderson, of Winona, proposes for the incorporation of grand and subordinate lodges of the Degree of Honor, the women's auxiliary of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, in a bill introduced today, which passed under suspension of the rules.

Representative Lauritsen introduced a bill providing that banks shall pay the taxes on bank stocks instead of the stockholders, paying them out of dividends. If there are any. Stock cannot be transferred unless the taxes are paid.

REP. JOHN SAARI,

Representative J. G. Lund, of Minneapolis, introduced a bill increasing the minimum price of state school lands from $5 to $10 per acre.

Representative Timberlake sent up a measure that will increase the railroad. It requires all trains to come to a full stop not less than ten feet from the crossing of a steam or electric railroad, under penalty of a fine of $25 to $100, half of which goes to the informer and half to the local school fund.

Representative J. R. Morley introduced his bill, referred to elsewhere, removing the state university, normal schools, Orono public school and Fairbault school for defective from the board of control.

Representative Haskell, of St. Paul, introduced a bill providing that in cities of 50,000 and over, bonds for park purposes shall not increase the bonded debt, except the bonds for the park fund and water and light bonds, to more than 10 percent of the assessed valuation.

Representative H. L. Mark proposed a bill, which is aimed specifically at bucket shops. It defines a bucket shop as a place where trading is done without the intention to transfer the commodities traded in and without being based upon an actual bond of trade transaction. The punishment is a fine of $500 to $2,000, or imprisonment until the fine is paid, not to exceed one year, and for a second offense imprisonment for thirty to ninety days and forfeiture of charter in the case of a corporation. Any person furnishing quantities to a bucket shop is made an accessory, punishable in the same manner.

Other bills were introduced: O'Loughlin—Appropriating $50 to pay for supplies furnished the national guard very early in Lake City in 1898.

Zelch—Providing that cities from 10,000 to 20,000 may buy or build water works and sewerage works.

Timberlake—Appropriating $500 to reconstruct the printing works of the state university, for the total destruction of his household goods by fire last September.

In all twenty-three bills were introduced in the house today. The total number up to seventy-four.

Delegations each 200 strong visited all the factories and printing shops, threatening to compel a cessation of work unless the employees voluntarily joined in the strike.

Practically all the small establishments in St. Paul are already closed in response to the demands of the strikers, while the printing works and tobacco factories are following suit. The deputations of strikers visited the office of a recently established news agency and informed the printers that unless they joined the movement the building would be wrecked. The printers, numbering about 100, promptly quit work and the agency is now sending out its news in stenciled sheets instead of printed. The troops have been called out.

FIRE FROM UNION

Man Who Attacked Mitchell Expelled By Mine Workers.

Before Going He Made Speech of Apologetic Nature.

Indianapolis, Jan. 20.—Opportunity was given Robert Randall, the Wyoming delegate, who stirred up the United Mine Workers' convention yesterday by denouncing President John Mitchell as a traitor and charging him with selling out the Colorado strike, to address the delegates today. He was later expelled from the United Mine Workers' union.

The privilege of replying to him was given President Mitchell. Randall made no direct apology in his speech today but it was compared with the violent one yesterday, apologetic as a whole.

He held Mitchell and the national board members responsible for the loss of the strike but did not use his previous violent terms.

He charged Mitchell and Patrick Dolan, of Pittsburgh, with forcing him out on the floor yesterday. He had reference to the charges openly made that he had made statements in his state union regarding the national officers that were reasonable.

He denied the assertion that his statement was prompted by the Socialists or the Western Federation of Miners. He attacked National Board Member James Kennedy, of Colorado, in a short speech.

He said that at the time of his marriage he did not take the endowment, but that in 1880 he had gone through the endowment house at the request of his father, before taking a trip to the Sandwich Islands with his father, for the benefit of the latter's health. He said he told his father at that time that he did not care much about taking the ceremony.

Senator Smoot said he had been engaged in the mercantile business most of his life. The only office in the church that he had held was that of apostle, was counselor to the president of the Utah stake of Zion, and he declared that he had taken no course of any character when he became a counselor, nor had he taken any oath when he became an apostle.

Senator Smoot about the endowment ceremony and he replied: "I could not give it if I wanted to."

"Why not?"

"Because I have no distinct recollection of the ceremony."

Mr. Worthington read what witnesses have alleged to be the "oath of vengeance" and asked Senator Smoot if he recalled any thing of that character in the ceremony.

"There was nothing about avenging the blood of Joseph Smith?"

Says Reported Oath of Vengeance Was No Part of Obligations.

Senator From Utah Tells of His First Entrance Into Politics.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Senator Reed Smoot was put on the stand in his own defense today in the investigation of protests against the senator retaining his seat in the senate. A minority of the committee on privileges and elections has been attending the hearings, but when it was announced that Senator Smoot would testify, the absentees were sent for. No previous announcement had been made, but the senator had not long been under examination before the doors of the committee room were filled and passageways were kept open with great difficulty. A. S. Worthington, of counsel for defense, was closeted with the senator throughout the morning. He was late in arriving at the capitol, but stated that the expected witnesses having failed to appear he had decided to examine the senator at once in order not to lose a day. He conducted the direct examination.

Senator Smoot was at his ease as every eye in the room was directed to him. The first questions were as to the senator's nativity. He said he was born in Salt Lake City in 1852. His father and mother are both dead. His mother was a plural wife. Concerning his own family, he said he was married Sept. 17, 1881, and has but one wife. They have six children.

Mr. Worthington asked him if he recalled any thing of that character in the ceremony.

CELEBRATE VICTORY

Japanese Make Merry
Over the Capture of Port Arthur.

Nine Carloads of Gifts
Sent to Men in Field.

Tokio, Jan. 20.—Noon.—The business men of this city celebrated the capture of Port Arthur today. Speeches were made by the premier, Count Katsura, Vice Admiral Togo and the ministers of war and the navy.

An aide de camp of the emperor left the Shinjuku station today, taking with him nine carloads of imperial gifts for the officers and men of the army in the field.

It is stated that there are 18,556 sick and wounded Russian prisoners, at Port Arthur, of these 3567 are connected with the navy.

Nagasaki, Jan. 20, 4 p. m.—The British steamer Leithington has been condemned by the naval prize court at Sasebo.

The Leithington was captured on Jan. 12 in the Tushima straits by Japanese torpedo boat destroyer No. 72. She had a cargo of coal on board and was bound, it is said, for Vladivostok. She was taken to Sasebo.

Shanghai, Jan. 20.—Gen. Stoessel and the large number of paroled officers and others who arrived here Jan. 19, on board the French steamer Australia, left Shanghai today for Marseilles. The Russians highly praise the Japanese for their bravery, fairness and civility at the surrender of Port Arthur, which was due mainly to the impossibility of resisting the Japanese 11-inch shells, after the capture of 200,000 shells. Besides, it is added that the Russian treasure chest was entirely exhausted.

Tokio, Jan. 20.—It has been proposed to dam Port Arthur harbor at the entrance and pump out the water, preparatory to salvaging Russian warships. Discussing the matter, a naval officer said today that under ordinary circumstances such a great work would be unprofitable, but in view of the number of ships possibly salvageable, and the expense and smallness of the harbor, it may be the most economical method.

Decisions ANNOUNCED

In Three Cases By the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Decisions in three cases involving alleged violations of the interstate commerce law were announced today by the interstate commerce commission.

In the case of the Paxton Tie company against the Detroit Southern railroad, the latter is held to have discriminated against the complainant by refusing to carry for shipments of cross ties, while cars were furnished others for shipments of lumber, stone and other freight and for shipments of cross ties destined almost entirely for the road's own use.

The commission decided that the Pere Marquette and Michigan Central railroads did not willfully or intentionally violate the law in the case instituted against them by Edward G. Davies. The latter alleged excess freight rates on shipments of fruit from Michigan points to Chicago and an unlawful contract with a delivering agent in Chicago.

In the case of William Wrigley, Jr., against the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis railroad and others, which attacked the railroad's rule that the minimum charge upon any single shipment of freight should be 100 pounds at the class or commodity rate applying on the article, this being enforced in the territory south of the Potomac and Ohio and east of the Mississippi, the rule is held to be neither unreasonable nor unjustly discriminatory against the complainant's traffic in chewing gum. No opinion is expressed by the commission as to the legality of the rule upon traffic generally.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE

So Reports to Court After Being Out Forty-Seven Hours.

Stood Nine For Acquittal and Three For Conviction.

Attorneys Will Make Arrangements For a Speedy Retrial.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—A special to the Dispatch from New Ulm, Minn., says: Dr. George R. Koch, who is charged with the murder of Dr. L. A. Gebhardt on the night of November 1, must stand for another trial. The jury which heard the testimony in the trial just finished came into court at 9:45 a. m. today, after being out 47 hours, and announced a disagreement. The jury was discharged by the court, and the attorneys on both sides at once held a consultation relative to future proceedings. The disposition seems to be toward an early retrial of the case. The jury, it is said, stood nine for acquittal and three for conviction.

A SECOND PRESENTMENT

Being Drawn Against Bishop Talbot on Irvine Charges.

New York, Jan. 20.—A second presentment to be brought against the Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, bishop of the diocese of Central Pennsylvania, charges made by Dr. Ingram W. W. Irvine, which is now being prepared as the result of a conference held in this city, contains, it is understood, in the main, only two charges. The first is said to be "Immorality"—meaning "lying" and the second "violations of ordination vows."

The first charge is based principally on the Upjohn letter and contains nineteen counts, but more matter has been added before the paper is finally sent to Presiding Bishop Tuttle, of St. Louis.

Charges of "violations of ordination vows" rest solely on the unfrocking of Dr. Irvine and draws the Episcopal divorce canon, which was recently enacted into law. The charges against Bishop Talbot in connection with Mrs. Elliott, of Huntington, are not included in the presentment. Several new side features have been added.

There may be, it is said, a third charge, but the presenters have not yet decided on this.

Much difficulty was expected in obtaining two presbyters from Bishop Tuttle to the neutrality of China, to the canon, it is understood it is not necessary to have two presbyters or rectors or priests at present engaged in a district. Any priest at present employed in the missionary work, who is connected with the divorce of the accused, may be eligible.

CHINESE NEUTRALITY IS DOUBLY ASSURED.

Pekin, Jan. 20.—A high official of the foreign office said in an interview today that the neutrality of China was assured now as hitherto. Every precaution had been taken, the official declared, and he could only suppose that the present Russian complaints were intended to constitute a pretext for further demands as compensation for the loss of Port Arthur. The official emphatically denied that there was any connection between Chinese neutrality and anti-foreign feeling, instancing the prompt suppression of the disturbances at Shanghai in connection with the delay in bringing to trial the Russian soldiers who killed a Chinaman there as the result of a dispute about the hire of a jinrikisha.

THE CIGARETTE HABIT CAUSES WOMAN'S DEATH.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Because her husband upbraided her for smoking cigarettes, a habit which had undermined her health and which she could not conquer, Mrs. Sadie Thompson, wife of Robert Oliver Thompson, sexton of the Oak Park Episcopal church, swallowed a dose of corrosive sublimate, and died after a lingering and agonizing illness.

OPERATION SUCCESSFUL.

New York, Jan. 20.—President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton university, who was operated on in the Presbyterian hospital several weeks ago, has just been discharged from that institution. It is stated that the operation was entirely successful.

VITAL INTERESTS ARE INVOLVED IN THE CODE Great Care Necessary By Legisla- ture With the Revised Statutes. The Code May Be Passed Intact and Then Amended.

FROM THE HERALD.
ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is hard for even the most aspiring among the steadily increasing list of new bills to secure the merited attention, when the revised statutes are looming so largely upon the situation.

There is nothing about the revised statutes that sounds interesting to the people, but there are possibilities in them that may command the interest of the public, whether it wants to take notice or not.

The revision means the most thorough overhauling, codification and completion of the statutes. The utmost care must be used by the revision commission in arranging the codification, and by the legislature in acting upon it, or the omission of some little phrase or the accidental intrusion of another may make such a change in the body of the laws of the state that even the most careless individuals may be sensibly affected.

The laws of the state are not an abstract and vague collection, meant only for courts and lawyers, and policemen. They are made by the people, through their legislative bodies, and they are intended to protect the people from themselves and from each other. Therefore, while it seems a pretty dry subject to most people, really it ought to be of very great interest, involving as it does so many vital interests.

The state has spent $55,000 so far on these revised statutes, and if it is not the tax code of 1902, the state will be $55,000 thrown away. The danger is especially apparent to those that are familiar with the history of the tax code of 1902. The state passed a law creating a tax commission to devise a sensible and up-to-date tax code.

Looking Backward

Sometimes Causes Despondency If People Are Not in the Pink of Condition.

Two or three people were talking in Doyle's store the other day, when Mr. Boyce remarked that at this time of the year people were very much given to looking backward, and that to his mind none of them knew of it in all his experience in the drug business causes so much discouragement, blues, evil forebodings and downright despondency, as the fact that one is not so vigorous and hearty as a year ago, and taking up a bottle of Revall Muc-Tone he added: "I don't know of any remedy that will so quickly restore old-time vigor as Revall Muc-Tone. Revall Muc-Tone is designed especially for such ailments as are prevalent just now, such as cold in the head, catarrh of the nose and throat, and bronchial troubles, leading up to pneumonia—in fact Muc-Tone is a Catarrh remedy, pure and simple. People need never fear all these ailments if their system is clear of Catarrh, and the reason why nine out of every ten people are so frequently troubled with these troublesome ailments is, because ninety-eight out of every hundred people have Catarrh, and take some other medicine. It may not be apparent to every one, but if you are all run-down, feel tired out in the morning, instead of being refreshed; restless, despondent, discouraged, Revall Muc-Tone takes right hold, and builds you up. It does this because it first of all destroys every trace of the catarrhal germs. Then, just as its name implies, it tones up the mucous tissues that have been damaged by disease, makes you put on flesh and wonderfully increases the appetite."

"You druggists make very good claims for your medicines. I have heard strong claims for other medicines that didn't amount to much," remarked a listener. "I know they do," replied Mr. Boyce. "Words are common property, anyone can say a thing is so. I guarantee a bottle of Revall Muc-Tone to cure the worst case of Catarrh, or I will refund the money. If the blues or despondency there is in Duluth, or if absolutely return every one you pay me without a single question. Yes, I will go one step further. I will guarantee Revall Muc-Tone to cure a large trial-size bottle that I sell for fifty cents, or refund the price."—S. F. Boyce, Druggist.

KANSAS WOULD TAX Land Monopolists, Limiting Citizen to One Farm.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 20.—It is proposed to have Kansas compel the owners of land in excess of the amount necessary for a livelihood to pay an unusual tax of income. Edwin Taylor, who has more than 100 acres of the richest land in the state, is the father of the proposed legislation. Mr. Taylor, who has more land than he is entitled to, that he is a land monopolist, and that he is willing to divide his property with smaller holders or pay an additional tax. Taylor is one of the wealthiest men of the state, besides being one of the states' wealthiest men. In a speech on the subject, made at the recent meeting of the Kansas Farmers' Union, Mr. Taylor explained that he has played the land game according to the rules of the law, and I believe these rules to be unjust and unwise. For my part, I would like to see one acre of land for one man, and one man would have the law so changed that no man could own more than one acre of land. Monopoly is one of the worst evils which the American people is impatient, and the most monopolist of all is the monopoly of land. The land is the basis of a home and a livelihood. It is a monopoly that will not always last. It is a choice between a gradual extinction and its going out in strife and distress. If you are a farmer, you know your demand, your demand in mind that both the North and the South, whose wealth is based on the land, are in a similar situation. I draw no parallel between the situation, I consider that the land is not a safe thing, and that land monopoly, beyond the reasonable limits of a homestead to the basis of a livelihood, whether measured by the golden rule or the good of the state, is wrong.

MAIDS AND WIDOWS In Unique Plan to Populate Western Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 20.—E. M. Heathorn, a Grant county politician and land owner, is the author of a colonization scheme which is unique. Grant county has less than 400 population, and Mr. Heathorn proposes to bring in a number of old maids and widows, and induce them to take claims in the county. There are many young ranchmen in the county, and Mr. Heathorn believes other women would come when they heard there was a colony of maiden ladies and young widows waiting for husbands. Mr. Heathorn has gone so far as to suggest his scheme to his friends in Garden City, and it has been taken up and discussed there with the result that thirty-eight unmarried women and widows have agreed to try the plan next spring. This colony will be near Lyons, the county seat, and after its membership have found husbands or young widows, the colony will be brought to the county. Mr. Heathorn believes that Grant county will be one of the most populous of the western line of the state within two years.

Drunkards Cured Secretly

Any Lady Can Do It at Home—Costs Nothing to Try.

A Family Restored to Happiness by the Great Home Cure for the Liqueur Habit.

A new tasteless discovery which can be given in tea, coffee or food. It is a secret. It does its work so silently and surely that while the devoted wife, sister or daughter looks on, the drunkard is reclaimed even against his will and without his knowledge. Send your address to Dr. J. W. Haines, 2004 Grand building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will mail a trial package of Golden Sufferer, to show how easy it is to cure drunkards with this remedy.

DESIRABLE LAW

Dowling Bill Against "Blind Pigs" Is Generally Commended.

Designed to Make Convictions Easier Than Under Present Law.

Among the new measures submitted to the state legislature, which the St. Louis county delegation will support, is the new bill introduced by Representative B. E. Dowling, of Eveleville, amending the illegal liquor selling law in such a manner that convictions can be had easier than at the present time.

At nearly every session of the state legislature for a long time past, the legislators have tackled the "blind pig" law with the intention of providing a measure which shall act to wipe out those nuisances, but as often as some amendment is made it is found that there is some loophole whereby the violators of the law, under the act, can avoid arrest or punishment.

Two years ago the state legislature went after the illegal liquor sellers with the passage of an act that was to prohibit the so-called "blind pig" and other places and devices from the keeping, selling and using of intoxicating liquors contrary to law, also to abolish the practice of selling intoxicating liquors under false and fictitious names.

The legislature, in the passage of this act, intended that the law should have a wider scope than it originally had, and that those concerns who have been dispensing intoxicants under the fictitious names of cough syrups, patent medicines, etc., throughout the lumber camp regions should come under the same class as the "blind pigs," or those originally called so because they sold liquor secretly and without license.

The act passed two years ago, forbade the sale of intoxicants by any person or in any manner within the limits of any city, village or township, where local option should be in force or where the municipal charter or ordinance forbade the selling of liquor. The law held that every person having anything to do with a "blind pig" or other place where liquor is sold, owing the building where one should be conducted, to be equally guilty of an offense.

The law went even further and made it a misdemeanor to receive and keep intoxicants for unlawful use or sale, as a beverage or for unlawful distribution among the members of a club or association in a city, town or village, where the people had voted for local option.

In spite of all the precautions the state legislature has thrown out from time to time to curb the illegal liquor sellers, it is a notorious fact that convictions under the law are still difficult, although it is pretty generally known that such institutions are being run in some communities, particularly in the outlying towns, where police protection is practically an unknown factor.

Time and again reports have been made and the testimony brought out in trials of fights on the ranges has shown that many of the boarding houses in the outlying locations have been running saloons on the side and that the people running them have become bold and free in their lawlessness. They have escaped so long. Murders and assaults have been committed on the ranges which can be traced almost directly to the liquor sold from the boarding houses.

When it comes to getting evidence against these places, however, the authorities have found it a difficult matter. It can be said, however, that under the law passed two years ago, took up by reason of an appropriation made for a working fund for the county attorney's office in securing evidence, the owner of "blind pigs" in St. Louis county has been reduced.

Representative Dowling's bill provides measures for easier convictions, and it is believed that an important step will be taken toward the eventual abolishment of the evil if the law is passed. That crime will be greatly lessened in the districts which have been in past years contributing largely to the criminal record of the state.

VITAL INTERESTS ARE INVOLVED IN THE CODE

Three men were selected, presumably for their ability and knowledge of the subject entrusted to them. They worked hard and conscientiously and presented a tax code. The legislature, in special session, took up this tax code and went at it. They amended it until it was modified, and then put it out of its present being by killing it outright. The only chance to get used to the code, and they might as well be given a chance to become accustomed to the new legislation also. And it has not been shown that there is any reason why it is necessary that a law shall go into effect at once. It cannot be adopted entirely outside of the code. There will be many laws, such as curative measures and other local woodchucks, that will not be incorporated into it anyway.

The house is getting an earlier start on the code than the senate. While the house has the code before it as a bill, and the bill has been referred to the judiciary committee, and the judiciary committee has taken preliminary action upon it, it has not even been introduced in the senate up to yesterday afternoon.

The house judiciary committee took the matter up yesterday, and left it to the chairman, Representative W. B. Anderson, of Winona, to parcel the bill out between the various subcommittees of the judiciary committee, which are to report their pieces back to the whole committee next Thursday afternoon. Then the committee will discuss the whole bill, and also the method of acting upon it in the house. The plan of passing it as a whole, and then amending it by bills, will probably carry the committee.

A simple and feasible plan would be to pass it as it stands, first amending it only by adopting the changes that will be proposed by the revision commission itself, to correct typographical and clerical errors. Then have the separate committees covering the various subjects consider bill is passed at once, as it stands, and new legislation is to be based upon it and embodied in it as finally passed, and that if the code does not become effective until Jan. 1, 1906, the code will be embodied in it until then.

Really, that might not be a bad idea, anyway, if it is carried out. The only chance to get used to the code, and they might as well be given a chance to become accustomed to the new legislation also. And it has not been shown that there is any reason why it is necessary that a law shall go into effect at once. It cannot be adopted entirely outside of the code. There will be many laws, such as curative measures and other local woodchucks, that will not be incorporated into it anyway.

A simple and feasible plan would be to pass it as it stands, first amending it only by adopting the changes that will be proposed by the revision commission itself, to correct typographical and clerical errors. Then have the separate committees covering the various subjects consider them, and introduce bills making any changes necessary. Local delegations could also get together and arrange bills covering their own necessary changes. St. Louis county, for instance, could prepare a series of bills making the code satisfactory to St. Louis county in so far as it affects that county's interests directly. Besides, anybody who thought he could improve it could introduce bills changing it.

Then these bills could take their regular course, or all be put into a special class, and be made a special order to be considered at some definite time.

Then, when all was done, a bill could be passed providing for the editing of the code, as amended by these bills, and printing it as the revised statutes of 1905.

Representative J. R. Morley of Owatonna has completed his bill taking the university, the normal schools, the state public school at Owatonna and the school for defectives at Faribault, out of the hands of the board of control, and he stated last evening that he would introduce it today. It is an exact copy of the bill he introduced last session, which failed. The only reason the educational institutions were not removed from the care of the board of control was that the normal school and university people did not get together with the Owatonna and Faribault people. These institutions are educational, just as much as the university and normal schools. The only difference is that at Owatonna the pupils have been sent there because they have no parents to take care of them, and that at Faribault, because the pupils are deaf, dumb or blind, methods suitable to these disabilities have to be used. They are no more to be classed with the prisons and insane asylums than are the normal schools.

The only way the board of control can be separated from the educational institutions is to class them all together and have their friends all stand together. Senator George W. Peachey of Owatonna will introduce a bill similar to Mr. Morley's in the senate.

Representative A. Hannaford of Monticello, the author of the resolution calling for a committee of seven members of the house to investigate the weighing and inspection of grain in this state, says that he has good and sufficient reasons for the introduction of the resolution, and that he believes that the result of an investigation will be that bills making changes in the system will pass. He is not giving out anything more definite than this, and he disclaims any idea of having anything sensational to produce in this connection.

Representative Zech of St. Paul, who introduced a bill yesterday prohibiting the sale or gift of liquor to prisoners paroled from penal institutions, explains his bill by saying that drink, which has been responsible for placing men in the corrective institutions of the country, is also responsible for many of their breaking their paroles by committing new infractions of law after they are paroled. He would, therefore, stop the possibility of their getting anything to drink.

The bill introduced yesterday by Representative H. A. Rider of Little Falls, to elect delegates to state conventions at the primary elections, does not look like a bad scheme at all to those who are jealous of party lines and party organizations. Many object to placing state officers under the primary election system because this would abolish state conventions and do away with all means of forming party platforms and party organizations. The primary election system has already done this, so far as members of congress and other local officers are concerned, but many fear that the abolition of all party government would practically mean the obliteration of party lines.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

A Big New Lock Is Badly Needed at the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie.—Owing to the increasing number of large freighters and the prospect of many more coming into commission during the next few years, it is considered necessary that the government build here the greatest lock in the world. Preliminary work on the lock, which will be 120 feet in length, will be started as soon as an appropriation from congress is received. It will take several years to complete it. In order to build the proposed lock it will be necessary to widen the Michigan ship canal above the present locks at an expense of more than $1,000,000. It is estimated that this work will require at least two years of steady labor.

Isle Royale.—A scathing arraignment of the Flagler Iron and Steel company, of Chicago, closing with a demand for compensation of the officers and directors of the Isle Royale Iron Ore, owned by George A. Newell, former president of the company, was made at the annual meeting of the company. The loss will exceed $500,000, of which $200,000 was in cash. As there was no insurance the loss is total.

Marquette.—The light and power commission has closed a $200 contract with the Westinghouse company for 125 alternating current street lamps, two 250-watt incandescent lamps and other equipment, including the necessary wiring and street lighting from the open air to the alternating current lamp system.

Munising.—In accordance with a resolution passed by the village council, the village attorney of Munising will present to the board of trustees a petition asking authority to bring a suit to recover the sum of $40,000 to be used to defray expenses of moving and rebuilding the pumping station, and for other public improvements.

IMPEACHMENT FOR GOODNOW

George W. Curtis Makes New Attack on Consul-General.

Washington, Jan. 20.—George W. Curtis, late of Shanghai, China, wants articles of impeachment preferred against John Goodnow, consul general of the United States at the leading Chinese port.

Mr. Curtis has requested Chairman Jenkins of the house judiciary committee, to take the initiative, and has submitted a statement accompanied by a list of documents containing charges against Goodnow of malfeasance in office.

Congressman Minor, of Wisconsin, has been requested to introduce a resolution of impeachment, but said yesterday that he did not know what action would be taken. He admitted that it looked like a bad case on the face, but until he became better informed he would not act.

The charges against Goodnow, which could only be impeached for treason, bribery or malfeasance in office, and if found guilty could never hold any other office under the government. A simple removal from office would not disqualify him from again holding public positions.

Curtis has been persistent in his attack against Goodnow for three years, and failing to make much progress with the state department, resolved on trying congress.

The fact that Goodnow will soon arrive in Washington to personally face his accusers and answer the charges probably accounts for Curtis' latest move.

LITTLE GIRL IS A "LAWYER"

Pleads For Her Mother In a Jersey City Court.

New York, Jan. 20.—Mary Harness, an 11-year-old pupil in public school No. 1, in Jersey City, appeared before Judge Frank J. Higgins of the first criminal court of that city as counsel for her mother, who she said, could speak no English. The case was that of Mrs. Annie Harness against Mrs. Esther Hosko, whom the former charged with attacking her.

"Please, sir," said the little girl to the court, "my mother does not speak any English and I have come to represent her."

Then she handed to the judge the following statement she had prepared, and which she called her brief:

"Gentlemen: My mother was down in the cellar chopping wood Friday morning at 1 o'clock. Rose Hrochank heard mamma chopping and she came down for fun to see what mamma was chopping. She thought mamma was chopping her cradle that was down in the cellar, and when she saw mamma wasn't chopping her cradle she made believe she was going out.

"Then she began to look at mamma and mamma asked her why she was looking at her so. An mamma said to her, 'Don't you see I ain't chopping wood. I'm chopping wood.' And Rose Hrochank said, 'Never mind you broke the ends of my cradle, somebody broke that cradle,' and she said mamma did and that mamma has to pay $10 for that cradle. Then Mrs. Hrochank, that Rose Hrochank boards with, stood at the cellar stairs fighting with mamma and she said to me, 'Come down here and see what mamma is doing.' Then at 1 o'clock in the afternoon they were watching when I go to school and when the men go to work. Rose Hrochank came down, knocked at the door. Mamma went to the door, when Rose Hrochank says, 'Come upstairs.' Mamma said she ain't going upstairs. Then the both of them rushed in the house and began to beat mamma with their fists, and everything else. They beat her arms, chest, head, all over. Mamma's hands are all scratched with black and blue marks, and all swollen.

"Then after the beating they went to the door, opened it, and mamma, having her hands there, squeezed in the door. Mamma was sick three days. She couldn't lift nothing heavy in her hands.

"Then mamma, taking the keys on her finger, with the chain wanted to chase them out and lock the door. They pulled the keys, but the chain, and took the key of the house and wanted to lock mamma in. But mamma yelled for mercy, and they threw the key back. She sprained mamma's finger.

"And then they went up a flight of stairs and began to new like a cat. Mamma said, 'I ain't got no money, and all the names she could. And Rose Hrochank, that Rose Hrochank did not come out, they came down and began drumming at the door and they cracked the door.

"Then mamma took a glass of water, spilled it at them, and they went away. 'We served in Mrs. Rogers over one year, and Mrs. Rogers would give me a new one and a new reference.'

Thereupon the judge, turning to the mother, said: 'You will give me a reference you under $100 to keep the peace.'

Frank E. Long Company.

Commencing Monday and running all week, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees, the new and grand stock company will be the attraction at the Metropolitan. This company carries a strong repertoire of the latest plays and special scenery for each production. A number of vaudeville stars are also with the company and their specialties are produced between the acts, giving a continuous show. Among the vaudeville people are Mock, Sad-All, Hoot and Magellan; J. O'Brien, acrobatic comedian; the Smiths, musical artists; J. L. Todd, vocalist, and others. An entire change of program given each night. "Father and Daughter," with Miss Nana Sullivan as Kate Merrick, "the girl with the sword," will be the opening bill. On Monday night one lady will be admitted free with each paid reserved seat ticket.

For Panama Service.

The civil service commission has postponed the examination for engineering positions in the Panama service from Jan. 18 to Jan. 20 and 21, two days being required for the examination. The positions open are those of assistant civil engineer, instrument man, chain man and helper. The initial salaries range from $250 for assistant civil engineer to $500 per month for helper, and promotion from the lower ranks is assured.

The commission also announces an examination for the position of civil engineer, Philippine service to be held Feb. 15 and 16, several positions are vacant. Commencing salary, $1,000 per annum. Also examination for hydrographic aid, geologic survey, Feb. 15. Salary, $1,200 per annum. All information regarding these examinations and the necessary application blanks may be obtained from the civil service secretary at the postoffice.

STRANGE SEQUEL To Murder of a Man at Sioux City.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 20.—The spectacle of a dead man mysteriously murdered at that walking into the police station five days after his supposed death, while they were searching for his murderer, was entirely too much for the police force of this city. This was the strange sequel to the murder of a man supposed to be Joe O'Brien. No arrest has been made for the crime, which, apparently, was committed for revenge or else to keep the dead man from telling something he knew.

After much effort the police decided that the dead man was Joe McGuire. A piece of the cartilage was clipped from one side of his nose, and he was readily remembered by people who had seen him because of this. Advertising this peculiarity of appearance, and his general make-up, they traced him carefully for four days, and believed they would soon solve the mystery of his identity and learn for what reason he should have had a mortal enemy; hence they could discover the criminal.

The theory was good until yesterday, when the supposed dead man walked into the police station. He was the exact double of the one buried in the potter's field, even to the injury of the nose. He said his name was Joe McGuire; he lived near Cherokee; he had been in Sioux City on the day of the murder; it was his movements, not those of the murdered man, that the police had been tracing, as he soon convinced them. The murder mystery was further than ever from solution.

McGuire told all about his movements, and showed that he, and not his double, the dead man, had been traced out. The police have about given up the case.

ARCTURUS MINE SUIT.

Howe's Action to Be Tried Next Week.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 20.—On Jan. 24, Judge Baxter will try in this city the case brought by George C. Howe, of Duluth, against the Hayward heirs, Mrs. John Coates, Mrs. E. C. Holden, Mrs. D. H. Freeman and Mrs. C. P. McGuire and husband, to recover $20,000 earned money paid as advance on a contract to purchase the Arcturus mining property. Howe contends that the title to the mining property was defective in fact and of record and that the reason the defendants should, under a provision of the contract, refund the money which was paid at the time the contract was entered into, March 12, 1902. The defendants assert that the title was not only good in fact, but of record, and that Howe should forfeit the money.

Attorneys for the plaintiff are Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, of Duluth, and those for the defendants are represented by Calhoun, Bennett, Reynolds & Roemer and Taylor & Burke, all of St. Cloud.

The case has been to the supreme court on a demurrer filed by the defendants to the plaintiff's complaint.

A business without an advertising appropriation is in much the same fix as a wagon without a horse to pull it.

SYVERSON IN NORWAY.

Lost Albertville Merchant Is Trailed By a Detective.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 20.—C. C. Syversen, the merchant who disappeared mysteriously from Albertville, has been found in Norway. He left Albertville Dec. 13 and came to this city. From here he went to Eau Claire and registered at a hotel, soon after disappearing.

His friends in Albertville became alarmed, thinking he met with foul play or had committed suicide. A detective was employed and today it was learned that he purchased a ticket from St. Paul to Europe. Mr. Syversen's business affairs are in good condition. He took no baggage and very little money with him. He is a widower and has two children at Blair, Wis.

TRIES TO ESCAPE

A Police Court Prisoner Makes Unsuccessful Dash for Liberty.

Had Been Arrested On a Charge of Petty Larceny.

As Frank Penwarden lay on the floor of the police station with one officer seated on his chest and another standing over him with a pitchfork, he decided that an attempt to escape from jail was accompanied by certain insurmountable difficulties, and, like a sensible man, yielded to the inevitable.

Penwarden was arrested for passing worthless checks, yesterday afternoon, and locked up in headquarters. This morning he asked permission to use the telephone and was taken into the office by the jailer. As he was taken back to the lock-up he made a sudden break for the stairway leading down to the rear entrance from Michigan street.

The jailer, Robert Johnson, was just going to the rear entrance when he saw Penwarden. He was no time to lose. He launched himself out from the top step into space and hit on some soft, which later proved to be the prisoner's body.

Meanwhile Patrolman Murray, who was engaged in cleaning out the stables, heard the noise and ran up the steps with the pitchfork in his hand, ready to strike just as Johnson landed on the prisoner.

Out in the front street, Reschie and one of the detectives heard the noise, and instead of running to the rear of the building and starting what they thought would be a stern chase, they rushed out to the street and continued down to Michigan street on each side of the city hall, expecting to head off the prisoner.

But the prisoner was all in. With most of the breath knocked out of his body and a pitchfork held at his breast, he tamely submitted to being led back to the lock-up.

Later he was taken down to the municipal court and a charge of petty larceny laid against him. He pleaded not guilty and the hearing was set for January 25 at 10 a. m. The bail was fixed at $50.

ANTI-BUCKET SHOP BILL IS INTRODUCED IN THE LEGISLATURE.

was the member appointed from the Eighth congressional district.

A resolution by Mr. Putnam was adopted by the house, directing that a copy of the proposed revised statutes be sent at once to each member of the senate. There was some discussion of the code and the method of handling it, and in response to questions V. E. Anderson, chairman of the judiciary committee, stated that the bill had been handed the bill in parcel will probably suggest amendments. These committees were announced in order that members may get at them to suggest changes.

The senate session was very uneventful. Only five bills were introduced, of which by Senator Wilson, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, was the proposed revised statutes. The bill referred back to the judiciary committee. Senator McGill introduced a bill providing that all associations of veterans of whatever war, be given place in the old state capitol to hold their meetings.

The other bills were minor measures or duplicates of house bills already reported. Both houses adjourned to Tuesday, the house to meet at 10 and the senate at 11 a. m.

CIRCUS MAN FOUND GUILTY

Of Murder In the First Degree For Killing His Son.

Kansas City, Jan. 20.—John Martin Speyer, a circus performer, formerly of the Fox Troupe, who killed his son while in Kansas City two years ago, was today found guilty of murder in the first degree. At his first trial he was given a sentence of twenty years in the penitentiary and appealed. Officers had gone to the circus tent to serve a warrant upon Speyer, charging him with assaulting a young girl, and a mob threatened to lynch him. Speyer, however, cut his child's throat with a razor and then tried to commit suicide. Speyer said he killed the boy to save him from disgrace.

AN ATTEMPT MADE TO WRECK SUPPOSED PAY CAR

Des Moines, Jan. 20.—An unsuccessful attempt was made today to wreck an early Port Des Moines car, supposed to carry the government cash to meet the payroll of the post. An open switch on a high-grade threw the car from the rails when it was barely prevented from plunging down the high embankment. Jos Stewart, colored, a domestic employed at the post, was the only passenger. She was severely injured. Detectives are at work on the case.

DENVER OBSERVES SEASON OF PRAYER.

Denver, Jan. 20.—Out of a deference to Evangelist J. Wilbur Chapman and his assistants, who are holding meetings in this city, who had designated this as a special day of prayer, Mayor R. W. Speer ordered all city and county offices closed between 11:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. today. Nearly all the large stores also were closed to permit their employees to attend the noonday meetings in the business district.

MAKING UP SHORTAGE.

Des Moines, Jan. 20.—Upon the payment today of $9000 by F. E. Ellington, president of the Farmers' Mutual Co-operative Live Stock association, who with Cashier Haugen, co-president of the association, and T. S. Baker, was made defendant in a suit to recover an alleged defalcation of $25,000, the suit is practically dropped, and Ellington has agreed to make good the entire amount. Haugen and Baker are not charged with the shortage.

West Duluth

It is understood that officers of the Western Curling club have practically decided not to have their organization represented at the big bonspiel to be held in the Twin Cities. Local players are manifesting a good deal of interest in the game, and every night a number of them are at the rink practicing, but they are hardly thought to be in fit condition to enter an event of the importance of the coming one.

As yet West Duluth rinks have entered no regular matches with outside clubs, but plans are being made now whereby such contests will be arranged for. The first games of this kind will be with the Duluth club. An effort is being made to arrange for rinks from the two clubs meeting next week, at the West Duluth rink.

Telephones have been installed at the local rink, so that it is now strictly up-to-date in every respect. On the nights the skating ice is open to the public, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, the patronage is large, assisting materially in defraying the expenses of the club.

NEW PASTOR HERE.

The Finnish Ebenezer Baptist church, recently organized in this city, has extended a call to Rev. J. Fors, of Chicago, to become its pastor. The reply was favorable, and Rev. Fors will assume charge, as pastor of the church, at once. A reception of welcome will be tendered the new minister this evening at Wasa hall, Fifty-second avenue west and Ramsey street.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Six Stores and Principal Hotel Burned at Fessenden.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fessenden—A disastrous fire occurred here Thursday morning, six stores and the principal hotel being burned. The fire started in the rear of Gackle's and Scheller's Co.'s large hardware store and was discovered about 3 o'clock, but it had gained too much headway to be checked by the ordinary means at hand. There was a small fire in the laundry of the hotel early in the morning, but it was extinguished and watches kept on guard, and the origin of the second conflagration is thought to be the work of an incendiary as there was no stove in the building. The loss is easily $50,000, with about $25,000 in insurance. The principal losses are Lindgren & Immet, fruit and confectionery; County Brothers, hotel; Louis A. Son, drug store; Fessenden Mercantile company, general store; Gackle's hardware; Lyken Sisters, millinery; J. M. Swen, in the salaried position, and having a stone wall alongside his building.

Grand Forks—The sensational suit of Martin Ryland vs. John Wendt, to recover damages of $100,000, for the alienation of the affections of plaintiff's wife, came to an end today. The jury finding a verdict for the defendant, Mrs. Ryland was housekeeper on the farm of Wendt, near Arnet, and the plaintiff alleged that Wendt was intimate with her, and finally drove him from the place. Mrs. Wendt has four children, having married to live on the Wendt farm, and all appeared on behalf of the defendant. A separate action for damages of $5000 on an assault, alleged to have been committed on Ryland by Wendt, was dismissed on motion of the attorney for the plaintiff.

Within forty-eight hours after he had robbed the store of Ole Hanson, of $1000, after breaking into the building through a back door, Cecil R. Hennick, who says Minneapolis is his place of residence, was arrested, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve a year in the state penitentiary.

The store of Oscar Knudsen was burglarized last evening and about $100 cash, some pipes and tools were taken. A suspect was arrested, but was dismissed later.

A settlement has been effected in the case of Kate O'Brien and others vs. the Modern Woodmen of America, who were sued for the amount of a life insurance policy carried by Mrs. O'Brien's brother, Edward Harvey. The court has awarded the plaintiffs $100. Harvey joined the order in 1885. He was suspended for non-payment of dues early in 1904, and three weeks later his death, on March 4, of that year, he was reinstated on a grand jury charge of health. His death was due to consumption and the company refused to pay the life.

The case of Ben Held vs. the Grand Forks Woolen Mills company, to recover damages of $500 for the loss of an arm, while employed in the plant, has been settled. Held secured a verdict for $500 at the June term of the district court, and his attorney asked for a new trial. The company also gave notice of an appeal from the decision of the district court. The attorneys finally agreed upon a settlement at the original figures fixed by the district court.

Fargo—Some druggists are selling a class of blackberry brandy that has aroused the indignation of Pure Food Commissioner Ladd. Samples received by him for analysis indicate that the so-called brandy contains no trace whatever of the real article. It is composed of saccharine, coal tar dyes, alcohol, water and some chemicals to flavor. The mixture is being sold on physicians' prescriptions to persons who are ill and need the real blackberry brandy to improve their condition. The druggists are trying to get back at the manufacturers who sold them the liquid.

A verdict for $2000 was awarded Charles N. Johnson in his suit against Fargo for $300 damages. City Attorney Newman moved to have the verdict set aside on the ground that the evidence did not warrant such a verdict. Johnson was running a saloon and was charged with wife. He fell to the sidewalk and sustained injuries which he alleges are permanent.

Pomfret—The Hartzell murder trial is progressing slowly. The coroner and sheriff of Cavalier county identified the clothing worn by Stoddard, the murdered man. Mrs. Hartzell, who lived with the Stoddard family, testified that she was at the residence of Stoddard when Hartzell and Bascom brought his body to the house and placed it on a couch. She asked what was the matter and he told her that he had killed him. "What did you do that for?" asked the woman. "If we had not he would have shot us," was the reply. Mrs. Stoddard, the wife of the dead man, testified that she was with her husband when he was shot by Hartzell.

Upon opening court Thursday morning one of the jurors was taken sick and the trial was postponed. The case may be commenced over again because of the juror's illness.

SOUTH DAKOTA. Bonesteel—Announcement by the government that the distribution of money received in the cession of a portion of the Rosebud reservation, minors under 18 years will not receive money, has brought out a storm of protest from the Indians. A crime met and started four chiefs, off to Washington to protest. Secretary Hitchcock, however, anticipated them by asking Mr. McCleskey to come to Washington in their behalf and he has gone. The government asserts the money is to be paid to the minors if it is paid before the latter are of age.

Pierre—The state board of regents of education has selected W. H. Powers of Huron college as librarian and assistant instructor in English at the Agricultural college during a leave of absence granted R. E. Kerr.

Deadwood—The Gold Hill Mining company will resume development of a large tract of mining ground in the Rapidan top district, adjoining the Spearfish and Outcrop mines. Ore has been encountered on the quartzite level.

BUSINESS MEN ARE BUNCOED FIFTEEN IN DES MOINES STAND TO LOSE ABOUT $20,000.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 20.—Fifteen business men, including President Philo Kenyon of the Commercial exchange, have been buncoed into buying $20,000 worth of "blue sky" in Montana, and are under arrest. Wood will be called next week before the federal court in St. Paul to answer a charge of using the United States mails with intent to defraud.

J. C. Olmstead, manager of the Bentley & Olmstead wholesale shoe firm here, who was a director of the company, which was charged with having duped, says:

"I feel very delicate about this matter for the reason that I am one of a committee of business men with money to invest, who was sent to Montana to investigate Wood's proposition. I reported favorably and invested my cash, along with the other fellows. Mr. Kenyon made a preliminary investigation, but did not look at the land. I looked over another piece of 15,000 acres high Wood said he owned."

"I visited the courthouse at Great Falls and found that Wood's statement about part of the land was true and took the other statement also as true. The land I saw was all right, but I have since learned that Wood didn't intend to purchase. I am informed that the men who were upon the ground were hired at a salary of $30 a month to stay there and tell prospectors that Wood owned the land and they were staying out of his claim requirements."

About 100 lawyers outside of Des Moines were also stockholders of the Montana Co-operative Ranch company, organized for the purpose of buying "blue sky" in Montana. A meeting of the company is to be held in St. Paul next week to arrange the affairs of the company.

WHOLE FAMILY In Sioux City Found In a Stupor. Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 20.—Police officers are baffled by a mysterious visitation upon the home of R. E. Thayer, who conducts an "open door mission" in Sioux City. The entire family were found Tuesday evening, in a stupor, having been in their beds since the previous evening. Mrs. Thayer and daughter did not regain consciousness until late Wednesday. Mr. Thayer and son were apparently all right. Dr. Daily says he is completely mystified. No trace of coal gas can be found. In fact this is impossible. Thayer says they could not have been poisoned as they ate only soup on Monday evening. Poison is considered a more likely explanation.

DEADLOCK CONTINUES Niedringhaus Loses Another Vote on the Fourth Ballot.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 20.—After taking one ballot today without result for United States senator to succeed Francis M. Cockrell, the joint session dissolved. The ballot today, the fourth taken, resulted as follows:

Niedringhaus, 50; Cockrell, 51; Kerens, 8; Pettigrew, 1. Eighty-six votes were required to elect today. Both houses adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday. Niedringhaus lost one more vote today.

THE CRISIS PROLONGED No Decision Yet Reached In Formation of French Cabinet.

Paris, Jan. 20.—The cabinet crisis is still in progress. President Loubet today received a number of senators and deputies, but did not give the slightest indication of his intentions. If Henri Brisson is called will be a formal courtesy, as he is not willing to act, owing to his recent defeat for the presidency of the chamber, showing his inability to command a majority. After M. Brisson the name of Loubet with a new or revised policy, and M. Sarrien, with the old policy, which was charged with having duped, says:

"I feel very delicate about this matter for the reason that I am one of a committee of business men with money to invest, who was sent to Montana to investigate Wood's proposition. I reported favorably and invested my cash, along with the other fellows. Mr. Kenyon made a preliminary investigation, but did not look at the land. I looked over another piece of 15,000 acres high Wood said he owned."

CALLED A HALT

Court Checked Line Of Inquiry Adopted By Defense.

Said His Is Court of Justice and Not a Show.

The same tactics that were adopted yesterday afternoon in the trial of John Trow were again made use of this morning in the trial of Julius Abrahamson, the second of the saloonkeepers to be placed on trial.

Alexander Marshall, the attorney for the saloonkeepers, pursued much the same line of inquiry, but Assistant City Attorney McKee interposed an objection, and Judge Windom sustained it. "This trial is not for the amusement of these people in the back of the room," said the court. "These questions are not material to the trial. The court is a court of justice and not a show."

"We have the right to put the same questions to a complaining witness that we would have to a defendant," said the attorney.

Mr. Marshall put up the same stubborn defense on all points of the case he did yesterday, entering motions to dismiss on various technical points, and urging the illegal nature of the ordinance. Judge Windom, however, in accordance with his decisions yesterday and denied all such motions.

Mr. Marshall then put in his defense. Mr. Abrahamson himself went on the stand and swore that the saloon was heated only with coal stoves and that he had gone down in the afternoon to attend to the fires, fearing that the pipes would freeze if the fires were allowed to go out. He testified that the saloon was open except for that purpose, and stated that he, the bartender and a brother-in-law of the bartender had remained in the saloon but five or ten minutes while they were fixing the fires and telephoning.

The bartender went on the stand and swore to the same story. He claimed that to the best of his knowledge the saloon had not been open during the day except for the short time that they were there in the evening. Mr. McKee closely cross-questioned him, but he stuck to his story.

Mr. Marshall, in summing up the defense, claimed that the men had a perfect right to remain in the saloon premises on Sunday.

"Supposing the statute were strictly construed, a firmman entering that building to put out a fire would leave the proprietor open to arrest under this ordinance."

"He should have locked the door when he went in to fix the fire," said the court. "He has a perfect right to go into his saloon and try to find a cause for the deformity. Local physicians say they have never seen a freak like this and think it is worthy of the study of the medical profession of the country over. Dr. Hayden thinks the deformity indicates a step backward toward the monkey kingdom."

LOGS AND LUMBER. J. C. Arneson Named as Surveyor For Stillwater District.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—Governor Johnson has appointed J. C. Arneson, of Stillwater, surveyor general of logs and lumber for the Stillwater district. Mr. Arneson is prominent in Democratic politics and is the present mayor of Stillwater.

ABOLISH GRAND JURY. Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska May Act.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 20.—Just because Minnesota at the last fall election adopted a constitutional amendment doing away with the grand jury system, the movement to do the same thing in other states is being given a great impetus this winter. The newspapers and lawyers of Iowa are in the midst of a discussion of the project which nobody in Iowa appears to have thought about until the election returns came in from Minnesota.

IN NEBRASKA the legislature already has had two or three bills introduced looking to the same end, and the legislators of South Dakota are agitating the question. Opponents of the grand jury say it is too loose and irresponsible; that at times it is made the means to gratification of private malice by securing indictments that ought never to be permitted, and on the other hand it is frequently the means, through the efforts of some strong man either as a member or as prosecutor, of holding up prosecutions that ought to be pushed. The problem of a satisfactory substitute, however, is not yet solved. The one most favored is to empower the prosecuting attorney, on investigation, to prepare a presentment of charges against any suspected person, who shall thereupon be arrested and given a preliminary hearing as now. The prosecutor's presentment would thus take the place of the indictment.

NEW YORK BACHELOR Offers $1000 Prize For a Contented Benedict.

New York, Jan. 20.—"Is there a married man in all Greater New York who is perfectly contented with his lot?"

This question was asked yesterday by W. A. Woodbury, bachelor, philanthropist and student of social and charitable problems. He is willing to wager $1000 that no one can prove to his satisfaction that he is contented with his lot. A committee that may be selected, that he is absolutely happy in the marital state and would not change places with any bachelor.

Mr. Woodbury is certain that the single men of New York are happier than the married men.

CONDITION IS CRITICAL

Carl DuBois, Insane Patient, Dying at Fergus Falls.

Word has been received by Probate Judge Middlecott from the authorities at the Fergus Falls insane hospital that Carl August DuBois, who was sent to that institution from Duluth, Jan. 9, is in a critical condition, and is likely to die at any time. Inquiry was made as to the patient's relatives, and Judge Middlecott has located a son-in-law, a tailor, employed by Kenny & Anker, of Duluth.

DuBois, it will be recalled, is the old gentleman who, preceding his examination in probate court, ran amuck among his neighbors with a loaded revolver, until finally captured by the police. He had worked hard all his life and had earned a good salary, which was found in his possession. Worry and fear over the safety of his money is said to have turned the old man's brain, and he soon became afraid that somebody was seeking to kill him for his money.

A palmett can forestall a man's life, but it doesn't take a magician to wait for the finish of the merchant who waits for business to come.

JURY AWARDS LESTER $638

J. W. Fee Must Pay Full Amount of Expert's Services.

By a sealed verdict arrived at last evening and returned in district court this morning, the jury in the case of St. Mr. Lester against J. W. Fee, returned a verdict of $638.25 in favor of Mr. Lester. The action is one which the latter brought to recover judgment against Mr. Fee for the balance claimed to be due as his compensation as an expert bookkeeper in settling up the affairs of a contracting firm. Mr. Fee objected to paying the total amount claimed, on the ground that the services rendered were not of such character as to warrant the full payment. The verdict included the notation that the jury found that the agreement between the parties was that Mr. Fee should pay all of the compensation which should become due Mr. Lester for his services, and referred to in the pleadings.

WINS $5.

John Jensen the Lucky Man at M. A. Fedje Sale.

The first one to make a purchase of ten dollars or over at the store of M. A. Fedje, the West End clothier, this morning, was John Jensen, 206 West Second street, who was handed back a five dollar gold piece, in accordance with the announcement made by the firm in yesterday's Herald. A large number greeted the opening of the sale and availed themselves of the many bargains offered in clothing and furnishings. Mr. Fedje finds himself compelled to raise $20,000, and has sacrificed his entire stock to get it.

THE "YELLOW PERIL."

How It Is Regarded by a Japanese.

In an address delivered on the departure of German troops for China during the Boxer war Kaiser Wilhelm said that the beginning of the long war between the East and the West. This statement is very suggestive of the possibility of a racial feud, writes Jijei Hashiguchi, in the New York World.

For century England fought the Hindu and occupied India, France fought the Chinese and occupied Cochinchina, and again, England occupied Hongkong. The world began to think that there was a vast unoccupied territory in Asia which was at the mercy of Europe, regardless of the fact that there were 400,000,000 Chinese, 300,000,000 Hindus and other Asiatics in occupancy who would outnumber the Europeans more than two to one.

Apparently the Asiatics have been powerless and the Europeans, taking advantage of their weakness, have spat on them as if they were dogs, butchered them as if they were cattle and deprived them of the land of their fathers as if they were the land of the living. But the Asiatics have senses just as the Europeans. If you love them they will reciprocate love. If you hate them they will retaliate. If you treat them as gentlemen they will treat you as gentlemen. If you treat them as dogs they will treat you as dogs. If you "Hello, John," you will "Hello, John," you. The results inflicted upon them by the Europeans which have been printed upon their memory, so that their nature is hardened against all Europeans, good or bad. The Boxer war of 1900, while it was an outrageous act on the part of the Boxers, was but an expression of their revengeful spirit.

BUT LITTLE IS PRINTED

In Russian Papers Concerning the Escape of the Emperor.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 20.—Nothing better illustrates the conditions in Russian journalism than the appearance of the St. Petersburg papers on the morning after an occurrence which nearly added another violent death to the history of the ruling family of Russia. There are prominent headlines, but almost no editorial reference, and the briefest mention possible of the unexpected death of the emperor and the little child in which the emperor and the tsarina's family had gathered for the religious festival of the Epiphany and blessing the waters of the Nevsky river.

The account of the stately ceremonial prepared by the court marshal is long and rich in detail, describing the appearance and garb of the individual participants and the progress of events from minute to minute. Appended to this court circular are short paragraphs from various papers, alluding, in the most guarded terms, to the unexpected danger in which the imperial stock. These add practically nothing to the knowledge of the event, in spite of half a day's opportunity for investigation and inquiry.

The Novoye Vremya, which publishes the most extended account, shows that chief interest in the incident followed the second and third shots, but offers no explanation. The paper editorialized heavily on the inexorable character of permitting so perilous a happening, and on the general joy at the escape of his majesty, and the relief and the nervous. It concludes by expressing the hope that the miraculous escape of the emperor from mortal danger while engaged in the pious rites of the faith may be an omen that Russia is under like protection; that Providence is watching over those who live by faith, and that she may emerge in equal safety from the perils in which she now stands.

Other papers publish less regarding the event—not even the names of the officers commanding the battery or the artillerymen, though the guns are given. The reader is left largely to draw his own conclusions as to the manner in which the emperor and the tsarina and the pattern of the balls about the pavilion.

HOFFMAN'S SECRET

May Be Told In Court
In a Mysterious
Case.

Merchant Who Had Three Wives Was His Friend.

Des Moines, Jan. 20.—A mysterious complication of two separate and distinct mysteries has developed around the careers of Dr. Charles H. Hoffman, of this city, and the late E. L. DuBois, whose possession of three wives, in as many cities, was only discovered when he lay dead in the parlor of his Des Moines home.

Dr. Charles H. Hoffman, one of the leading professional men of the city—physician, linguist, scholar, surgeon, chemist, scientist—resigned from the faculty of Drake university rather than tell his real name—which is not Hoffman—and his early history. He freely admits that he is living under a name that does not belong to him but he says his reasons are good for not telling more about himself.

Some time in their past, these two men, Dr. Hoffman, of the mysterious double identity, and DuBois, of the equally mysterious triple life, knew each other. They were friends, even intimates, it is understood, before either came to America. Whether they met in Des Moines by any prearrangement, or by accident, is not known. It is only known certainly that they had been friends in earlier and very different periods of life; that they stood loyally together and preserved each the other's secret later, and that Dr. Hoffman now seems the only possessor of both secrets, and is keeping them sacred.

What was believed to be an Asian, he spoke English, French, and German with equal facility. He came to Des Moines several years ago and went into the contracting business. He was a good business man and made much money. After he had been here a short time he brought his wife and they lived apparently a quiet, happy life. A year ago Mr. DuBois was taken suddenly ill, some mysterious telegram was sent and received, he died on Saturday, and, on Sunday morning, two widows arrived, one from Denver, the other from New Orleans, to demand the remains.

Before death DuBois had told enough to friends to enable them to prevent a scene at the funeral. The three widows attended the services, and two days following, met together and discussed matters freely enough. They decided it was best to be friendly so far as possible, and if they could not settle the estate by agreement, then to let the courts have it as a last resort.

What transpired among the three has never been known in detail. The New Orleans woman convinced the other two that she was the real widow. She had married her son, a boy of 17, within a week before she had been notified that her husband was dying. DuBois had not only married her, but had used her money in his business, and she asserted over her over $5000 when he died. They had lived apart for more than ten years, but had not been divorced, though she had considered getting a separation.

The Denver woman had been wedded to DuBois a much shorter time. She acknowledged that she was simply a victim. The Des Moines woman, whom DuBois had been a kind, loving and considerate husband for six years, could not realize it all as did the other two. With the least claim, she was least disposed to admit her situation. She, too, said she had furnished the dead man with considerable money. He had left an estate of about $3500.

It being finally determined that the property could not be settled without a lawsuit, it was agreed that it should be tried in the courts here, and the three widows shook hands and separated. The case is to come to trial at the present term of court.

Mrs. Melvina DuBois, of New Orleans, has just filed a list of depositions to sustain her claims that she is the real widow. They tell little of the case, but are full of details. She claims that she married DuBois before he came to America as a young man. Neither of the three women had ever been able to learn that he had a second wife. Neither had suspected the man of duplicity. Dr. Hoffman now comes into the case.

William Schupp, C. A. Payne, W. E. Richardson, J. C. Tresselt, G. H. Spencer, W. C. Harris, N. Brown, Skip—12.

The match between the sides chosen by the president and vice president will commence this evening at 7:30. Four games will be played, and the winners will receive the trophy. The match will be held at the curling rink, and the winners will receive the trophy.

SUNDAY Flaaten's 3d Regiment Band CONCERT at 2 o'clock.

ALL SMITHS
ARE OPPOSED
To Wealthy Cotton Broker
Deserting the Family
Name.

New York, Jan. 20.—Smiths everywhere have been called upon to rally and prevent the loss to the family of a young man, a wealthy cotton broker of this city, who has asked the courts to change his name to Telemachus Smith Cuyler. One patriotic Smith has engaged counsel to prevent the change, and has called upon every lawyer of the Smith name, beginning with Hoke Smith, to take up the cause and avert the escape of the New Yorker from the family fold. Mr. Smith gives an original reason for his desire to make the change. He is the last surviving member of his particular branch of the Smith family, and has decided to go over to the Cuylers out of respect to his relative, Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, a Brooklyn minister.

Mr. Smith has lived in this city (as we know it) for many years, and is a native of Georgia, where he was a neighbor of Hoke Smith, though not a relative. Another neighbor was Jasper Smith, ("Jack" Smith), a rugged son of the soil, who is one of the unique characters of Atlanta. He is the owner and designer of a remarkably quaint office building in that city, known as "The House that Jack Built." It is the latter who has employed counsel, Frank A. Arnold, to prevent the change of name desired by T. Cuyler Smith.

"I do not know him at all," declares "Jack" Smith, referring to the lengthy petition in which T. Cuyler Smith asks for the change of name. "I shall pay no attention to him."

But "Jack" Smith is not the only indignant Smith. It is not that they have any personal interest in Telemachus Cuyler Smith, but the cutting thing is that the old Smith could yearn to sidetrack the honored name.

"You may not know him," at least Telemachus, the new name, has contributed 150 postmasters to our country. We have also enriched our native geography. He has been a member of the Georgia legislature, and a member of the Georgia senate, and a member of the Georgia house of representatives. He has been a member of every age have born our name."

Plans are in course of preparation for a mass meeting of the indignant Smiths to decide upon concerted action in defense of the family honor.

WOMAN TO SAVE CLAY STATUE Says She Will Restore the Great Commoner's Head.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Louisiana Gibson-Maxfield, of this city, has announced her intention to replace the head of the Henry Clay statue in the Lexington cemetery here.

Moved by a sense of public injustice, Mrs. Maxfield will make a giant task almost unassisted, for she has the head which topped the great monument buried to the ground nearly 20 feet below, there has been some such a case of public interest that no more has been done than the packing up of the 20-pound piece of the statue from the ground where it was imbedded by the fall and laying it carefully away in a large room in the monument house made for the resting places of other members of the distinguished Kentucky family.

In the fall the nose was broken off and a large chip scalped from the crown of the head. Otherwise the head is in shape. A Japanese student observing it a few days ago, coming here from his native country, worked hard to get it back at public expense in a week after it fell.

The stroke of lightning which severed the head from the body also cut the statue in two through the shoulders, and the fragment did not fall, and is still lying on the top of the shaft. The base of the statue, too, was moved several inches to the northwest, and it appears that a hard storm of wind would topple it over, in which case it would fall with such a crash that the base of the monument might be shattered, and indeed, the stone coffin of the good wife and the great commoner himself might be smashed. The shaft of the statue is built of stone, as is also the great base that is some 16 feet in circumference.

Such a catastrophe would certainly destroy the whole country, but it is not beyond the range of a possibility, according to the opinion of many civil engineers who have observed the monument critically since the lightning's freak.

SIDE STEPPING Live Wires That Had No Actual Existence.

Denver, Col., Jan. 20.—Insane and hopeless, wandering in the lower part of town, with $1400 in his pockets, W. A. Hoffman was picked up by a patrolman and sent to a mental hospital. He is a wealthy saloonkeeper from Batle, Ohio, and it is suspected that he wandered away from home while suffering from mental aberration.

Papers found on him indicate that Hoffman is a member of the order of Eagles, Health Commissioner Sharp, head of the Denver nerve of Eagles, will care for Hoffman, who arrived in Denver two weeks ago. Hoffman drew

Gray-Tallant Co

Can You Match These Taffeta Silk
Petticoats Anywhere for $3.98?

They are made after the newest models, with accordion pleated flounce and under-ruffles—mostly blacks, some browns, blues, changeable greens and cerise. Shoppers tell us that they are sold by certain stores in Duluth at $6.50—probably they are. We would call them worth, on the basis of our characteristic low pricing, about $5.00, and exceptional values at that. Consequently this moderate price ought to impel every woman to indulge herself in a silk petticoat.

Many Remnants of Silks and Dress Goods on Sale Tomorrow

Many other good stores keep the short lengths of silks and dress goods in stock and sell them for skirts and waists at the regular prices—then clean up the unsaleable pieces once a year. But our salesmen are over-particular, possibly, about their stock—they insist that every month or two all remnants shall be closed out. So it comes about that lots of clever buyers are always on the watch for the Gray-Tallant Co. remnant sales, when they pick up desirable goods at from a third to a half less than the usual cost. Tomorrow we place on sale remnants of dress goods and silks in Cheviots, Worsteds, Flannels, Waistings, Serges, Suitings, Panamas, Veilings, Taffetas, Peau de Soies, Chinas, Fancy Weaves, Crepes, Satins, Velvets, Wash Silks.

JILTED TWICE.

Girl Marries Lover Who Finally Surmounts Obstacles.

Wilkesbarre, Jan. 20.—Twice a truant when guests were assembled for his wedding, John Gerald McDonald made good his promise to make Miss Lester Pauline Bell his wife. The marriage was to have taken place some weeks ago, but on the appointed evening McDonald failed to appear. On the next morning he visited Miss Bell and told her that, owing to unforeseen circumstances, he was unable to be present for the ceremony. He was forgiven and another evening was appointed for the wedding. Again McDonald was absent.

Miss Bell's mother invited the guests to partake of the feast that had been prepared, and it was given out then that no further explanation would be accepted. Subsequently the lovers were quietly married by Ald. Brown.

"JIMMY THE RAT"

Dies, Leaving an Estate Valued at $15,000.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 20.—It came to light at a hearing in the probate court, where there is a contest to break the will of James Incevere, known as "Jimmy the Rat," because of his diminutive size, that he left an estate valued at $15,000. He had been a successful grinder in his early days in this city, and used to go from house to house, ringing a bell, and went into the lodging house business on the 10-cent basis.

Only a few days before his death he made his will, leaving enough to his widow to take care of her for life. $30 to each of his two daughters, and the bulk of the property he divided among his four sons. The daughters claim their father was unduly influenced by his sons, and was so addicted to the morphine habit and drink that he did not know what he was doing.

GUARDED FROM THE FAKERS

Capital Attaches See Poor
Congressmen Are Not Defrauded.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Petty padding at the capital is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. The entire force of police, guards and doorkeepers is organized for the protection of members of congress from "graffiti" until, with many safeguarding tricks, the national legislature is looked after better than they know.

The present session of congress has witnessed a sweeping reform, and while minor lobbyists advocating quarter and half-dollar schemes occasionally show up, the evil has been practically stamped out.

The "man with a pocket" makes the appearance at the capital, short work is made of him, and the instances are becoming rarer each day when the "man with a pocket" is seen.

The other day a flashy-looking individual approached Will Forbis, the doorkeeper on the main floor of the house of representatives, a lost, by the way, from which many amusing, pathetic and ridiculous sights may be witnessed in the course of a day than may be seen from any other station under the big white dome.

The stranger with the bird wearing apparel slipped a card to Forbis and asked:

A $300 Sealskin

Sacque for $210

Size 34; 24 inches long.

This is a decided snap.

H. G. GROSS,

happily that he carried to a certain number of congress.

It was then that one of the tricks was worked. The big, good-natured doorkeeper sized up the applicant for a congressional heart-to-heart talk with the smiling man born of long acquaintance with congressmen.

Of course, the stranger knew that the congressman had been within the past few minutes, for had he not spotted him with his penetrating eye from one of the galleries? But shrewdly could avoid the gallery, even though he might return to the gallery and secure another view of the desired congressman.

The house memory rushed into the chamber at full speed. Then he tossed the card into a waste basket, and after the passage of a polite length of time he stroked back with the announcement that the congressman was not in.

Yet all the time the congressman sat at his desk. The bit of pastboard never reached him. He was saved from an unwelcome encounter by the doorkeeper, who stopped in as a proceeding toward the door.

CHILD PLAYS WITH MATCHES

Her Clothing Ignites and She Sustains Painful Injuries.

The little, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Knowlton, of 65 East Sixth street, sustained painful and serious injuries yesterday afternoon, as the result of playing with matches.

The matches had been left within reach of the child, and unsupervised by her mother, she had picked up one of the matches and accidentally ignited her clothing.

She ran screaming to her mother, who succeeded in smothering the flames after some difficulty.

The little girl was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where her injuries were dressed by Dr. Murray. The dress on her back and chest and some portions of the arms are badly burned, but the chances of her recovery are good.

WIDOW LEARNS

Of Bequest By an Old Time Sweetheart.

Philadelphia, Jan. 20.—Mrs. Margaret Hale, a widow, of 1735 North Nineteenth street, has received word that James A. Taylor, whom she rejected as a suitor more than twenty-five years ago, has died in Southern California, leaving the bulk of his estate to her.

Mrs. Hale was the belle of Clifton, Pa., some thirty years ago, when she was in her early teens. Among her admirers were James A. Taylor and Franklin J. Hale. Taylor sang in the church choir and spent many evenings singing to the young woman.

Jefferson City, Jan. 20.—Eight members of the legislature who voted against Niedringhaus yesterday for United States senator, gave out the following signed statement to the Associated Press:

"We make no apologies for our action, and firmly believe that when the facts become as well known to the people as they are to us, our action in maintaining our integrity as members of the general assembly in refusing to vote for the caucus nominee for United States senator."

forgot the dignity of their positions as to go on the floor of the house and senate and personally importune the members to vote for his nomination; that in justice to the party and ourselves we cannot consider a greater wrong being perpetrated upon the party than would be his election to the senate at this time. He is now under the cloud of suspicion and his influence, if elected, would be impaired and would do permanent injury to the people of this state.

"We further deplore the fact that Mr. Niedringhaus, as candidate for the United States senatorship and as chairman of the state republican committee, has used the party machinery for his own personal advancement."

"The position we have assumed is in the interests of the Republican party. We know our duty and the obligations we are under to the party of this state, and we would be recreant to our duty as party men if we permitted Mr. Niedringhaus to be elected senator, and so believing, we have voted against him and will continue to do so."

"The statement is signed by J. L. Blittgen, E. E. Blittgen, James Roach, P. H. Cook, George Hazlett, E. M. Kirham, Glover Branch and Oliver J. Grace. Mr. Niedringhaus last night made the comment: 'It is the party and not I who are to be elected. It will come out all right in the end.'"

"Several Republicans, in calling upon Governor Folk to formally mention the possibility of his election to the senate through a possible combination of circumstances."

"Governor Folk said he was elected governor and he intended to serve his four years in that office."

"A telegram was received by Mr. Niedringhaus last night from C. P. Walbridge, as follows: 'The Republican party should sustain its caucus action. Good night, I assist you.'"

"John H. Bothwell, vice chairman of the state Republican executive committee, arrived last night to arrange for the mass meeting on Monday."

Electric Shock Required to Awaken Washington Man.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 20.—Benjamin C. Zisk, a Peoria man, who was hypnotized by a doctor, and who was in a state of unconsciousness for several days, was awakened by a series of electric shocks.

While in Washington and in connection with his artistic studies, he became infatuated with the occult and actually hypnotized himself. He was found in his room soundly asleep and which he could not be awakened by his family here were notified. A brother went on and brought him back.

Since then has lain in this same mysterious sleep and was only aroused when a battery was applied to his spinal column. One electrode was applied at the base of the brain and another at the end of the spinal column.

Victor T. Cole Dead.

The Bellingham, Wash., Herald of Jan. 11 says: "Word was received in this city yesterday of the death of Victor T. Cole at Oakland, Cal., where he has been visiting relatives for the past six months."

Mr. Cole was formerly a resident of Whatcom county and was well known in this city. He was editor and publisher of the Sun Sentinel for several years and has been engaged in numerous other newspaper enterprises in the county.

Mr. Cole has probably had the most varied experiences in newspaper work of any man in the West. He was engaged in all lines of the work and was a printer as well as writer. He had been in practically every city of importance in the United States, and worked on nearly all of the larger papers.

Victor Cole was born in the Dutch town of Bellingham, N. H., in 1851, when it was owned by Fred J. Chipman and was run as a non-union office, but later became a union man.

"It was almost a miracle. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a terrible break, ing out all over the body. I am very grateful. Miss Julia Filbridge, West Cornwall, Conn."

being unfitted to use pencil and paper for his accounts, he became surprisingly accurate in rapid calculation and "kept his books in his head." His Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 20.—One of the interesting persons in the Central Illinois today is James Nelson Kinyon, who resides with his daughter, Mrs. Henry McCormick, of South Fifth avenue, Normal.

The story of Mr. Kinyon's long and varied life has attained a measure of success though handicapped in his efforts by total blindness for the past sixteen years, makes a tale of remarkable interest.

James Nelson Kinyon was born in Chemung county, N. Y., Aug. 8, 1818, where he grew to manhood and tasted the hardships of pioneer life in that locality. March 12, 1837, he was married to Mary Ann Benedict, of Toga county, Pa., just across the line from New York state. Soon after this event, in 1831, the accident happened which caused his blindness. He, in company with a fellow workman, was engaged in clearing a tract of land and a chip from his companion's ax flew off and struck him in one of his eyes, entirely destroying the sight. Through sympathy the other eye became badly affected and, for several months later, he became totally blind.

About sixty years ago, accompanied by his family, he moved to Walworth county, Mississippi, where he purchased a large tract of land and improved it, going practically all of the hardest work himself. About eighteen years ago, after the marriage of their youngest son, Mr. and Mrs. Kinyon went to Normal to reside with Mrs. McCormick, a daughter. Mr. Kinyon's wife died June 28, 1896. Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Kinyon, eight of whom are living, and they are as follows: Mrs. Salsbury, Easterville, Iowa; Mrs. McCormick, Normal; Ferdinand E. Kinyon, Sherrill, Wis.; Dr. Claudius B. Kinyon, University of Michigan, medical department; Brazilio F. Kinyon, University of Illinois, Clinton, Wis.; Layton F. Kinyon, Coles county, Wis.

To the average person, blessed with an unimpaired eyesight, it is a little difficult to comprehend how Mr. Kinyon did certain kinds of farm work, but that he did do it, and well, too, there is no doubt. When "clearing" his land for farming, his children did a little of his seeing for him. After leading him to a tree he wished to cut down, he would command them to retire a safe distance while he felled it. He soon learned how to chop to make the tree fall as he desired, and by his knowledge of woodcraft, obtained before he lost his vision, he himself learned to keep sufficiently far away to keep the butts of the trunks from slipping and striking him as they fell. When once the tree was felled he would proceed to trim off the branches, hew it out and mortise the ends, ready for building purposes. After this fashion he built a log stable, 20 by 40 feet. He hoed the garden and did many things of a more difficult nature about the farm.

When the time came for him to sow his wheat or oats he went to the fields with a bag of grain strapped about his shoulders. His first move was to go to the corner of the field and step off "a land" and set a stake. At the opposite end of the tract he would repeat the operation. Then one of the children would go before him beating a pan or clapping shingles together, and march to the stake at the opposite end. He would be simply directed by the noise, and follow, scattering the grain broadcast. He became so proficient in this that there was not a member of the family who could sow the seed with such speed and accuracy as the blind man.

Being unfitted to use pencil and paper for his accounts, he became surprisingly accurate in rapid calculation and "kept his books in his head." His

RUSSIAN WORKINGMEN WILL MAKE GIGANTIC DEMONSTRATION OR DIE IN THE ATTEMPT

SMOOT SAYS HE WOULD OBEY A REVELATION TO MORMONS FROM GOD

If It Conflicted With the Law He Would Emigrate.

President Smith Only Man Who Could Receive Binding Revelations.

Smoot Says That Some Revelations Are Not Obeyed.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Attracted by the announcement that Senator Smoot would continue his testimony before the senate committee on privileges and elections, which is investigating the protests against the senator retaining his seat, a crowd gathered early today. Several members of the committee, who have not been attending the hearings regularly, were present.

Senator Smoot was still suffering from the attack of indigestion which was responsible for an early adjournment yesterday. The senator took the witness stand at 10:30, and before proceeding, he made a correction in his testimony concerning trials of apostles. He said the quorum of apostles has the right to depose one of its members and the twelve apostles is the only quorum that has that right. Several other minor corrections were made. In carrying out the decision of the quorum the senator said he does not understand that the minority must join with the majority.

The first time he heard of the plural marriage of Benjamin Cluff, president of the Brigham Young colony, said the senator was in 1892, when he was told by Jesse Knight. The senator said he heard from Mr. Knight that Cluff's new plural wife was the daughter of George Reynolds. Except for the investigation of the subject, looking to the dropping of Cluff from the presidency of the university, which was explained at the hearing yesterday, the senator said he had made no further inquiry. He said Cluff was removed a year later, and was succeeded by George Brimhall, who, the senator admitted, was the father of a plural wife. He said he was not present, but would have voted for Brimhall if he had been at the election.

"You consider the position of president of the university purely ecclesiastical, then," asked Mr. Taylor.

"I think it is."

"Then the rule laid down by you, which would have controlled your vote for apostles, in a polygamist, would apply to the election of Brimhall?"

"I think the same rule would apply. I think I would vote for him for a federal office. There are some polygamists I would not vote for and some I would vote for and some I think Brimhall for a state office."

The distinction he made was that Brimhall had taken no plural wives since the manifesto, but was living with a plural wife for the reason that his lawful wife was in an asylum. He admitted, first, that he believed Brimhall was violating the spirit of the law, and pressed by Chairman Burrows, said that Brimhall was also violating the "letter of the law." However, the condition of the first wife was an extenuating circumstance.

"What," again asked Chairman Burrows, "do you think it is an extenuating circumstance for a man to marry another woman, and have children by her, because his legal wife is in an insane asylum?"

"No, I hardly think that."

"Have you any doubt about it? Do you think it was an extenuating circumstance because the first wife was insane?"

"Perhaps I could put it as broad as that. I think it would be."

The elevation of Joseph F. Smith to the presidency of the church was brought up by Mr. Taylor and the witness said he was attending to him and had so voted at other conferences to sustain Smith as president.

"Do you believe the church still receives revelations from God?" asked Senator Overman.

"I believe the church can receive revelations."

"Who receives them?"

"I believe any good man can receive revelations. But President Smith is the only man who can receive revelations which would be binding upon the people."

"Do you believe that any revelation which might be given could be superior to the laws of the land?"

"I do not believe I would be superior to the laws of the land."

"Then if you got a revelation from heaven yourself, would you have to obey it?"

"I believe if it was from God it would be commanding me to obey. But if it was contrary to the laws of the country in which I lived, I would move to some other country, where I could obey the law."

"Do you believe that revelations are ever given?"

"Well, I have heard men testify so, but I could not say."

"What is your belief?"

"I believe that God could do such things."

Explaining further the extent to which revelations were lived up to, Senator Smoot said he remembered a revelation being received for the es-

ROUVIERE INVITED TO FORM A NEW CABINET

Loubet Asks Him to Secure Co-Operation of Sarrien.

Delcasse Likely to Remain at Head of Foreign Affairs.

Paris, Jan. 21.—President Loubet this morning sent for M. Rouviere and invited him to form a new cabinet. M. Rouviere replied that he would consult with his friends and make known his determination at the earliest possible moment. This is expected to lead to the formation of a Rouviere ministry, after he has assured himself that he has sufficient support to command a majority in the chambers.

During the conference President Loubet asked M. Rouviere to secure the co-operation of M. Sarrien, and afterwards M. Rouviere had a lengthy meeting with M. Sarrien. This led to the inference that M. Sarrien will enter the cabinet, probably as minister of justice. It is understood that M. Rouviere insists on the government ratifying the action of the council of the Legion of Honor in dismissing those making establishment of the United Order and that Brigham Young following out the instructions of that revolution went from one end of the state to the other preaching the establishment of that order. "That it was never attempted nor lived up to by the people and today it is virtually a dead letter."

Senator Dubois asked: "Do you mean to say that if a revelation was received by the president of the church and submitted to the church that a member could disregard that and maintain his fellowship and standing in the church?"

"O, yes, I understand so."

Continuing Senator Smoot referred to the law of tithing. He knew there were many members of the church who disregarded it although it was a law of the church.

Senator Dubois followed up his questioning: "Then, as an apostle, you could go out among your people and take that tithing and the people could refuse to obey also and still retain their standing?"

"I would not want to go as far as I infer your question leads. I would not want to say that a man could go from one end of the church to the other and make a special point of preaching against certain doctrines of the church and he in full fellowship, since the manifesto, but was living with a plural wife for the reason that his lawful wife was in an asylum, and through that he would be out of harmony."

WHOLESALE DRYGOODS Association Would Stop Sale From Manufacturers to Retailers.

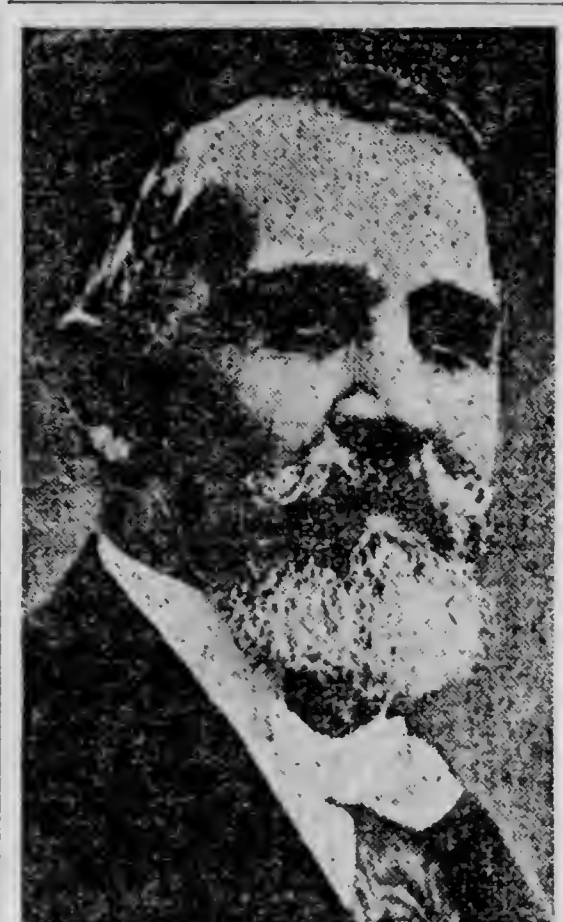

New York, Jan. 21.—At the second and closing session of the Wholesale Dry Goods association annual meeting there has been protracted discussion of the custom of the direct sales to retailers by manufacturers and commission merchants. Manufacturing representatives as well as commission merchants promised to co-operate with the association in an effort to stop the jobbers.

Much opposition was expressed toward any extension of the parcel post, and it was decided that the managers of the association should lay the views of the wholesalers before their local representatives. Widespread information of syndicates in the smaller cities whereby the local merchants pool their orders and order directly with the manufacturer also was condemned. It was decided to hold the next conference in New York. Officers were elected as follows: President, J. K. Burnham, Kansas City; first vice president, J. W. Smith, Chicago; second vice president, Edward S. Davis, St. Louis; secretary-treasurer, Douglas Dal-lan, New York; executive committee, W. N. Moore, Kansas City; Robert Goldies, Indianapolis; W. W. Wheeler, St. Joseph; M. F. T. Goll, Milwaukee; F. C. Stoppel, Detroit; George H. Forrester, Minneapolis; James M. Easter, Baltimore; and Charles W. Blodgett, Boston.

VATICAN IS SURPRISED.

Rome, Jan. 21.—It is announced at the Vatican that the authorities there are surprised at the fact that, contrary to agreement, Archbishop Chapelle, of New Orleans, has not yet forwarded his resignation as apostolic delegate to Cuba. The authorities are discussing the measures which are adopted in the case of Archbishop Chapelle.

AMICABLE SETTLEMENT Of Trouble on Pennsylvania Road Probable.

Philadelphia, Jan. 21.—Matters at issue between the Pennsylvania road and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, which have for several days past threatened a strike, are progressing towards an amicable settlement, and the consensus of opinion today on both sides is that an amicable settlement will soon be reached, probably this afternoon.

The progress made yesterday was so favorable to an amicable settlement that the best of feeling prevailed around headquarters today. Nothing definite has yet been discussed, but the men are confident that a truce will be averted.

A NEW STATE PRISON OR ADDITION NEEDED

Prison at Stillwater Is Now Crowded to the Limit.

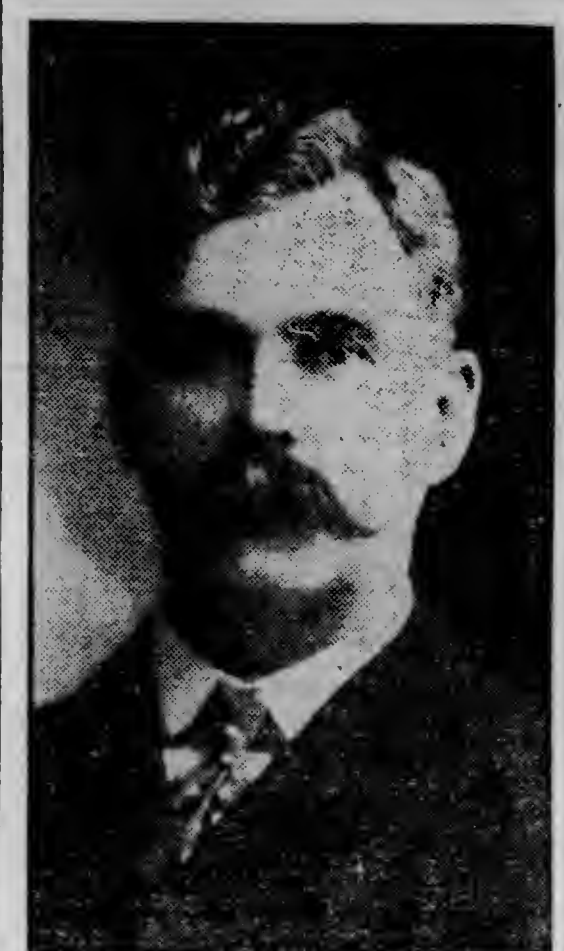

Committee on Freight Rate Abuses Ready For Business.

Sam Fullerton's Office to Be Subject of Investigation.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota state prison is getting to be too popular a bearing house and its accommodations are getting so crowded that it is said that it will soon be absolutely necessary to either build a large addition to the present penitentiary or to build a new one to be run in conjunction with the old.

A bill will be drawn up shortly covering this necessity, and while at this juncture plans are very indefinite, it is not at all improbable that the plan adopted will be to set aside part of the earnings of the present penitentiary as a fund for the erection of a new one, to be under the direction of the warden of the old one, Henry Wolfer. Mr. Wolfer is not only equipped with the experience of his long supervision over the Stillwater penitentiary, but he is said to be one of the ablest criminologists in the United States, and for this reason those back of the plan here suggested still push him for a 75 per cent will him charge of the new penitentiaries.

REP. GEORGE E. PERLEY Of Moorhead.

Mr. Perley, who was one of the leading members of the last house, will take a prominent position in the present one. He has introduced a bill taking the state university and the normal schools away from the board of control, and will be a leading factor in the fight on this issue.

If the additional one is arranged for, should a new prison be provided, of course the Stillwater people will wait it there. But equally, of course, there will be other communities in the state that will not mind having the close association with evil-doers incident upon the location of a penitentiary in their midst.

The committee on prison of the two houses met in joint session yesterday, and the board of control and warden

YARD CLERKS STEAL FREIGHT

The Chicago Police Make Some Sensational Arrests.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—After a sensational series of arrests, in which one of the accused men fainted, another hid in bed, and a third led in an exciting chase, seven employees of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway have been held to the grand jury charged with larceny.

The accused men were yard clerks, in charge of sealing freight cars in the Englewood yards.

Detectives by the railroad secured evidence that systematic pilfering had been going on for two months. One of the men accused had just purchased five acres of farming land in Michigan.

ON WAY AROUND WORLD.

San Francisco, Jan. 21.—The Hon. Sir Francis John Pakenham, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Great Britain to Sweden, has arrived here from the Orient on his way around the world via Australia. He is a nephew of the Gen. Pakenham of the British army who fell before the deadly fire of Gen. Andrew Jackson's sharpshooters while gallantly leading his troops to the battle of New Orleans in 1815. He is the uncle of the present earl of Longford.

TO ISSUE $100,000 IN BONDS.

THE SITUATION AT ST. PETERSBURG GRAVE

Authorities Will Try to Prevent Mob From Entering the City.

Russian Capital Is Now Completely In Hands of the Military.

The situation in St. Petersburg is very grave, and a crisis is expected to occur Sunday. The workingmen are determined to make a demonstration in the public square tomorrow even if they die in the tracks. The people are terror stricken, as the intentions of the mob are unknown. The authorities are making every preparation to prevent the men from assembling. A dispatch from St. Petersburg at 4:28 p. m. says all the cavalry regiments have been called in from the barracks in the surrounding districts and are concentrated at St. Petersburg. They will form an extended cordon to prevent demonstrations from approaching the palace.

Rome, Jan. 21.—In the report received at the Vatican regarding the internal situation in Russia, it is announced that the crisis is considered to be a very grave one. The Russian Catholic bishops are recommending to their flocks prudence and abstention from participation in the political movement, fearing repressive measures on the part of the anti-Catholics.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 21.—The plan of the authorities is to prevent the workingmen from entering the city proper. The industrial sections beyond the Neva, Moscow and Nevsky gate will be cut off and all the bridges will be guarded. Several batteries of artillery have been brought into the city.

MILITARY IN POSSESSION.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 21.—St. Petersburg this morning presents the appearance of a beleaguered city. The military are in complete possession. The streets are lined with troops, galloping squadrons of cavalry are seen everywhere, and the police are in full force.

TO ISSUE $100,000 IN BONDS.

San Francisco, Jan. 21.—President E. H. Harriman of the Southern Pacific has completed, it is said, arrangements to issue through New York bankers $100,000 of bonds of the Lucien cut-off of the Central Pacific.

Father Gopon, who was reported to have been kidnapped during the night, was found today at a large hotel, having gone from place to place organizing and directing everything. His dictum is that the meeting shall take place on the palace square, no matter if it results in a massacre of the men. He says they must be resolved to do or die. It is noteworthy that the leaders are going back to the French revolution for their parallels. The deputations of the mob are also being organized. The authorities are extremely nervous, realizing that blood once spilled in the present temper of the excited mob, spurred on by Socialist agitators, it is impossible to predict the end. The emperor's advisers, however, declare he must put down the agitation with firm hand and that if he yields as Louis XVI did at Versailles, all may be lost. The present resolution of the government is not to give way.

While many drunken rows have occurred and a number of men have been injured, no serious collisions have been reported up to this morning. An enormous number of arrests of known revolutionists took place during the night. An attempt will be made to close all the bakeries in order to threaten the city with famine. The workingmen are also reported to have decided to cut off St. Petersburg altogether from communication with the outside world.

Altogether the situation is most critical. Father Gopon, when apprized that the government proposed to prevent the demonstration tomorrow, issued instructions to the men that they must go to the palace square with their wives and children, "but the men must be armed," he is reported to have said. "We must first show we are peaceful. We have to win in vain the employers and to the bureaucracy. Our last hope is the emperor himself. If he refuses to see us and orders them to disperse us, then we must fight."

Father Gopon has had a guard of 400 sworn workmen to protect the emperor from harm if he will come to the palace square tomorrow.

Among the rumors afloat is one to the effect that the famous Preobrajensky guard regiment has declared it

NO VIOLENCE Has Yet Occurred In Streets of St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 21.—The strikers are continuing their agitation with unabated activity. Throughout the morning they have been parading the main streets of the center of the city and closing every industrial establishment. The agitation hitherto has been carried out with remarkable absence of actual violence. The committee of the union having issued instructions that everything be done as quietly as possible and that no personal violence be offered the police. Street traffic in the leading thoroughfares is hardly interrupted with the demonstrators filling the streets, policemen making way for passing sledges. A list of the 174 works closed as the result of yesterday's concerted measures shows that "very industry is involved, including railway construction and electrical engineers. In view of the probable failure of the electric supply for stores and offices, householders are laying in large stocks of candles and kerosene, and are excited, and the opinion is freely expressed that the government will be forced to concede the demands of the mob."

CONFIDENTIAL MAN MISSING

Affairs of Ogden and Green Estates In Great Confusion.

New York, Jan. 21.—Executors and trustees of the large estates left by William B. Ogden, Marianne A. Ogden and Andrew H. Green are reported to have found themselves unable to lay hands on records of transactions in connection with the properties during the last two years. Funds amounting to less than $200,000 are said to be unaccounted for by the books and papers on hand. Efforts to find the private secretary and confidential man of Mr. Green have been under way for a month, but without success.

Andrew H. Green whose life was ended in 1882 by a negro, who had mistaken him for John R. Platt) was trustee for the William B. Ogden estate, which owns great tracts of real estate in the upper section of the city. The estate was one of the richest in the city and Mr. Green watched it with the closest care. Mr. Green was a very cautious man, and paying out money. He held that it was costly to pay out slowly than to pay out fast and make vain efforts to recover. William B. Ogden was the president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway and later of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. He was one of the earliest masters of Chicago. In his late years he resided here. Mrs. Ogden died last September.

The Green and Ogden properties were closely allied and a great mass of correspondence, books, etc., accumulated in Mr. Green's office. These were under the closest care of the expert bookkeeper for whom the trustees are now searching. Both sets of books and papers were searched, but none was found which would give any clue to the transactions of the last two years. Unless the books and papers are found, millions of dollars worth of property may be thrown into almost inextinguishable confusion and litigation.

The missing man, who was familiar with all the books and papers, is also treasurer of a large storage and warehouse company in Harlem. He could not be located. It was learned that he had visited the offices of that concern since early in December last, while the only address the employees could give was a down-town hotel where the treasurer had not lived in a year or more.

STABBED WOMAN, CUT OWN THROAT.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Attacked by a man as she stepped out of the doorway of a saloon early today, Mrs. Mary Scanlon, 30 years old, was stabbed in the back.

Michael O'Barrett, who is said by the police to have attacked the woman, cut her own throat with a razor. He was captured after a struggle. Neither he nor the woman can recover. Jealousy is said to have caused the deed.

COMBINE TWO

Suggestion That County Build and Rent To the City.

William Craig Proposes Solution of Courthouse Question.

"I believe the solution of the courthouse question is to have the county build a combined city hall and courthouse, and rent the city departments to the city," said William P. Craig, the former manager of the old Duluth Gas & Water company.

"It is a well-known fact that the county of St. Louis has about the smallest bonded indebtedness for a county of its wealth and assessed valuation of any county in the state at least.

"The county could well afford to issue bonds for a sufficient amount to construct a handsome combined building for both the city and county offices. The city has not the money to build a new city building at this time, but it is needed. The great point is to get the city and county offices together. I believe this is the most important feature of the whole question. Anyone who keeps posted on city or county affairs knows what a saving would be effected by having the two buildings together. It would do away with the necessity of keeping duplicate copies of a number of records, and business could be transacted much more economically. Most people favor the combined building, but they have not urged it because they know the city has not the money to build it, and they would not favor any further increase in the city's bonded indebtedness. But the county could well stand such an increase, and if necessary the city could pay a rental to the county for such use of the building. The present city hall and jail could then be disposed of, and at a better price, I believe, than the city paid for it. This sum could be applied to pay a part of the cost of the new building, and might be sufficient to pay a good part of the city's share of the cost.

"This plan of having the county construct the building and the city rent a part of it was adopted in Chicago, where the city building is owned by the taxpayers of Cook county."

BOARDS OF REGISTRATION

Will Meet Tuesday and Saturday of Next Week.

Next Tuesday will be the first day of registration for the approaching municipal elections.

The dates on which the registration days fall this year are Jan. 24 and 25, or Tuesday and Saturday of next week. The date of the election is Feb. 7, or two weeks from Tuesday.

The registration at the primaries was very light, and if the total vote is to be anything approaching the normal, between 300 and 400 names will have to be recorded on each of the two remaining days of registration.

TWO MEN KILLED BY TRAIN AT YPSILANTI.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Jan. 21.—Two men were instantly killed by a Michigan Central train here today. They stepped off the westbound track on which they were walking, directly in front of a rapidly moving train on the eastbound track. A union card in the Lake Superior's union was found on one of the men, bearing the name of William Kenney.

The other man had nothing with which to identify him.

ORPHAN CHILDREN Are Taken Away to the State Institutions.

Five orphaned children were taken to state institutions in St. Paul and Owatonna this morning by H. C. Winrow, the humane agent. John and August Hanson, two boys who have been living with their father in the West End, and Ina and Anna Carlson, two sisters from one of the range towns, were taken to the state school at Owatonna.

Esmer Hyderman, a little crippled child from the range, was taken to the state hospital in St. Paul.

PAID HIS FINE

Abraham Berg's Attorney Has $1000 Ready For Court.

Alternative Was a Two Year's Term In County Jail.

Abraham Berg, who was convicted of assaulting Oscar Lundstrom while the latter was escorting to a theater a young lady whom the former had been calling on, paid a fine of $1000 in Judge Cant's room this noon, rather than take the alternative, a term of two years in the county jail.

The payment of the fine was somewhat of a surprise to the court attendants, for cases have not only been rare in this county where a fine so large as amount has been assessed, but even rarer where the fine has been paid.

After Judge Cant imposed sentence on Berg, who has been out of custody on the trial for Berg interrupted, saying: "Wait a moment." He then stepped forward to the clerk's desk and withdrawing his hand from his pocket, the attorney brought to light a big roll of bills. These he counted off by tens, twenties and hundred-dollar bills until the full amount of the fine lay in a crumpled pile before the clerk.

Berg, who is foreman at the manufactory of Christensen, Mendenhall & Graham, walked out of the court a free man.

FIVE KILLED BY INDIANS

The Bodies of Americans Are Brought Into Nogales.

Nogales, A. T., Jan. 21.—The bodies of five Americans, who were killed yesterday at Sonora, Mex., by Yaqui Indians, were brought here today. The dead men are said to have lately come from somewhere in Illinois.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—The Nogales dispatch is believed here to refer to a tragedy separate from the death of the Chicagoans, McKendzie and Coy, reported last night.

"I cannot believe this is the same case," said Robert N. DeKman, of the firm with which they were connected. Both men, McKendzie and Coy, were killed more than 20 miles from Nogales and I know enough of the conditions of travel down there to convince me that they could not have been brought to Nogales so soon."

William Chapman Potter, son-in-law of Secretary Morton, is safe, I am sure, as he was at least 20 miles from Mr. McKendzie and Coy at the time of the killing. I do not know how many men were with my partner and Dr. Coy, or whether they had any one with them. I have sent telegrams to a dozen or more places for information, but have learned nothing. The last word received in Chicago from William Chapman Potter, is contained in a letter dated Jan. 8, and telling of his plans to start from Chihuahua on a trip into the mountains to look at mining property across the Sierra Madre range. This would bring him near Bahuchehiro and about sixty miles south of the point where the massacre of McKendzie and party apparently took place.

FIGHT ON MARTIN

Confined to Only Few Persons at St. Cloud.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 21.—The fight being made on the appointment of James A. Martin as postmaster of St. Cloud, receives but little support from either the leaders or the masses of Republicans here, according to the best opinion. Alvin Eastman, editor of the Journal-Free, said yesterday:

"I have made careful and general inquiry among St. Cloud Republicans, and it is a conservative estimate that 85 per cent of them favor Mr. Martin's appointment. The opposition comes from one man who wanted to be postmaster and two or three friends of his. It is entirely personal and selfish. Mr. Martin is very popular here and our people will be more than glad to see him presiding over the postoffice."

APPOINTMENT BOARD OF VISITORS. Washington, Jan. 21.—The president has appointed the following members of the board of visitors to the naval academy for 1935: James H. Couris, clerk of the committee on appropriations of the house of representatives; Professor C. M. Pinkerton, D.S. Moines, Iowa; Joseph G. Darlington, Philadelphia; Capt. John Wilkes, Charlotte, N. C.; Dr. S. W. Stratton, director of the bureau of standards, Gen. Felix A. Agnew, Baltimore; Capt. W. H. Jacques, Little Boarshead, N. Y.

PHOTOGRAPHS

Of Lincoln and Blaine Confront Each Other.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—"Abraham Lincoln" met "James G. Blaine" yesterday in the corridors of the city hall, in the persons of Samuel Parker, an election board official, and William Henry Smith, one of Superintendent of Street Dorothy's aides. Mr. Parker's resemblance to Abraham Lincoln is striking. Mr. Smith is almost a replica of James G. Blaine.

"I declare, you are Lincoln to the life," Mr. Smith said to his venerable vis a vis.

"Well," returned Mr. Parker, "if I am Lincoln, you are surely Blaine, or his twin brother."

"Did you know Lincoln?" Mr. Smith asked.

"Knew his so well that he used to call me by his first name," answered, proudly, "Did you know Jim Blaine?"

"The once told me I might have been his twin," Smith answered.

FIRE IN DORMITORY.

Northwestern Co-Ed Averts Panic By Playing Guitar.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Miss Esther Truby found a guitar useful as a panic averter.

Miss Truby lives in Sheridan cottage, one of the co-ed dormitories at Northwestern university. When Mrs. Anne Harper, head of the house, told Miss Truby that the kitchen was burning, the young woman calmly sat down and played popular airs on her guitar.

The girls gathered to listen, and Mrs. Harper led them one at a time to the street.

The fire was discovered while all the girls were in the dining room, and the presence of mind of Miss Truby and the co-ed dormitories at Northwestern university.

The gas supply failed during the afternoon, and the housekeeper had ordered a fire built in a long disused kitchen range. The fire, it is believed, started from this stove.

CATHOLIC WORKMEN

Elect a Nebraska Man as Their President.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 21.—The session of the supreme council of Catholic Workmen of the United States, held in this city, has come to a close after extending beyond the time limit originally fixed.

By far the larger part of the business transacted was executive in character. One important action taken was to appoint a committee consisting of C. C. Kolar, Rev. John Raymond, Dr. E. E. Lorenz, to report a plan for revising assessments at the next meeting.

The following officers were chosen: Chaplain, Rev. J. Vleck, Prague, Neb.; president, E. M. Hruschka, Plattsmouth, Neb.; vice president, Matt. Popowick, Garner, Iowa; secretary, E. Moudry, Le Sueur, Minn.; treasurer, E. Moudry, Le Sueur, Minn.; physician, Dr. E. M. Lorenz, Chicago; counselor, C. C. Kolar, Le Sueur, Minn.; trustee, Rev. Mr. Kubas, Kellogg, N. D.

HEARING CONTINUED.

Bedford, Ind., Jan. 21.—Frank Evans and Elmer Browning, charged with the murder of Sarah Schaeffer, appeared today before the preliminary hearing. The cases were continued until Thursday next. Fifty witnesses have been subpoenaed and fifty more subpoenas have been issued.

BANK SUSPENSES

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 21.—The following notice was posted on the doors of the city savings bank today:

"The directors of this company have decided to close its business. They feel confident all debts will be paid in full. The company was organized in 1892 with a capital stock of $100,000. Rumors of the impending failure have been rife for several months. At the time of the organization the resources were announced as $1,143,342. Prior to that time the business was conducted as a private banking institution under the name of D. P. Locher & Son.

DINNER FOR CLAPP

To Be Given at Shoreham Hotel in Washington.

Washington, Jan. 21.—A complimentary dinner to Senator Moses E. Clapp will be given at the Shoreham hotel, Senator Nelson will preside.

In addition to the Minnesota delegation a large number of outside guests will be present, including former Gov. Merriam, J. J. McCarty, Henry A. Coste, Milton D. Purdy, H. A. Taylor, Senator P. J. McCumber, Senator J. P. Deliver, Congressman N. H. Hugen, Hober L. Hartley, A. C. Barnard, Maj. C. H. White, John J. Bohar, Henry F. Greene, George M. Hays, George W. Tullman and others to the number of an even hundred.

BRIDAL COUPLES

Forced to Sleep in Jail at Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 21.—Just wedded and starting on their honeymoon, two brides and two bridegrooms, who slept last night at the city jail, Lincoln and Omaha, were apparently none the less happy for the extraordinary experience, took a train this morning for the city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Schroeder and Mr. and Mrs. John Reimer, of Stapleton, who were married here yesterday, arrived in Lincoln last night and could not obtain rooms at the hotels. In desperation they finally went to the police station, explained their predicament, and applied for lodging over night.

BUSTLE LOST

And It Contained Several Diamond Rings.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 21.—"Lost—Home-made bustle; liberal reward, 6533 Locust, R. City."

The foregoing advertisement was inserted in yesterday's Star by Mrs. Frank Rohde, who explained why she was willing to pay liberally for the return of the "home-made bustle."

"No, it was not a family heirloom; just an ordinary home-made bustle," said Mrs. Rohde. "But it was worth about $50, for I had sewed up in it a diamond ring, a diamond stud, a diamond and turquoise ring and a moonstone ring. They were jewels belonging to my mother and myself, and well, we thought we had found a safe place for them."

MONKEYS

Trained to Pick Prunes in California.

San Jose, Cal., Jan. 21.—The proposition to train monkeys to pick the prune crop has been advanced by Martin V. Seeley, an orchardist, who resides in this city. He conceived the idea of training the animals to do such work while residents of Central America and elsewhere the said probate court will examine and adjust said claims and demands.

Orchardists in general doubt the practicality of Seeley's plan. It is not as easy as it looks, and the monkeys, excluded under the law forbidding the importation of contract labor.

EXPENSES TOO HIGH.

Yale and Harvard to Increase Tuition Fees.

New York, Jan. 21.—President Hadley, of Yale, said last night that it was now certain the price of tuition at Yale would be increased. The new schedule of prices is not yet ready for announcement.

President Hadley admitted that Yale and Harvard have been corresponding relative to the increase in tuition and the announcement of a similar step from Harvard is expected soon. At Yale there has been a deficit for two years.

A readjustment of the salaries of the Yale faculty will be made, but it is feared that any cut has been ordered.

TWELVE YEARS

In Prison For Robbery In First Degree.

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—The books were opened yesterday in the criminal end of the Ramsey county district court and doomsday was read out to a number of defendants indicted by the January grand jury.

Judge Kelly sentenced Charles M. Banks to twelve years in the state prison on a charge of first degree robbery, another indictment against Banks, charging him with assault.

Tobias J. Gibbs is the prosecuting witness in both cases.

Banks is the fellow who is believed to have set up a reign of terror in the midwest district, by the robbery of the Belt Line crossing, Merriam Park, where a number of women have been assaulted and half crazed by the operations of some unscrupulous marauder.

A NEW STATE PRISON OR ADDITION NEEDED

Wolfer were present to give their views. It was reported to the joint committee that the accommodations are too small, and that at the present ratio of increase it is necessary to take steps to arrange new accommodations. It was decided to make a trip to the penitentiary next Tuesday morning, when both committees, with the board of control, will look over the field over and determine how imperative the necessity is. A special committee will be appointed later from the two prison committees to make a bill for submission to the legislature.

The special joint committee to investigate freight rate discrimination in this state is ready for business, and it has issued a letter through its chairman, Senator A. D. Eberhart, of Marquette, calling upon all who have complaints or information to offer to appear and make their cases known.

The letter is as follows: "This committee has now organized and is holding its sessions at the railroad committee rooms of the senate at the new state capital. It is respectfully requested that the people of this state, who are interested in this matter, shall co-operate with the committee in making this investigation thorough and effective. The committee proposes, so far as it is concerned, to thoroughly sift the charges made that the transportation and express rates are excessive and that various parts of the state are unjustly discriminated against by these rates. To do this committee must be furnished with the evidence of at least complaints put in such tangible shape that the committee can upon the ships and others of the state, who are interested in seeing this question of rates and unjust discrimination fully and fairly presented to this committee, to formulate their charges, making them as specific as possible and sending them to the chairman of the committee. The committee will then take the matter up and make a thorough, careful and complete investigation of each charge."

The normal school committees of the two houses met yesterday and decided to arrange its inspection trips to the various normal schools of the state after a couple of weeks have been allowed for the committees on insane hospitals.

A state census is due this year, and Senator Beaver, of St. Cloud, will introduce a bill early next week providing for it. The bill will make the secretary of state the supervisor of the census, and he will be authorized to secure such information as may be necessary. The enumerators are to be appointed by the supervisor on recommendation of three reputable citizens in each district, and the districts are not to include more than two townships or two wards. They are to be furnished with the supplies necessary, and they are to begin their work June 1 and to finish it and have their returns in by the middle of May. The bill also provides for the printing and publishing of the result must be done by Jan. 1, 1936. Probably $50,000 to $60,000 will be asked for in the bill.

George W. Knox, of Atkin, a member of the state board of equalization appointed by ex-Governor Van Sant has not yet been confirmed, though the other recess appointments of Van Sant have been confirmed by the senate. Senator McPherson, of Atkin, had his name excepted from the list when it was confirmed yesterday. Senator A. R. Merrill, of St. Paul, objected that these exceptions should not be held up until without explanation being made, and Lieutenant-Governor Merrill stated that reports in the cases of these exceptions must be made within a reasonable time.

The introduction of the Wells and Erickson anti-bucket shop bills yesterday raised one of the issues that were prominent at the last session. A bill having been introduced against bucketshops, the anti-bucketshopers got somebody to retaliate by introducing a bill that would work havoc with business of trade and chamber of commerce as well. This is apparently going to be the situation this year. The bill that would bar boards of trade as well as bucketshops is that by Representative R. J. Wells, of Breckenridge. It provides, in addition to a prohibition of bucketshops and dealing in futures, that all contracts in violation of the law shall be void, and that money invested in them can be recovered.

Representative John G. Lund, of Minneapolis, who introduced the bill yesterday to increase the minimum price for state school lands from $5 to $10 per acre, is a land man himself. It seems a bit cruel, but there are people that say the land men are interested because by increasing the minimum they put the state out of business as a competitor to them.

There will be an investigation of the office and record of S. E. Fullerton, executive agent of the state game and

MAJOR POTTER MAKES REPORT

Commerce Through Portage Lakes Canal Decreased In 1934.

Major Charles L. Potter, government engineer in charge of the Lake Superior district, has issued his report of the commerce through the Portage Lakes canal for the season of 1934. The movement of freight through the canal shows that the season was also felt to a great extent in that waterway in decreasing the amount of business by that route as compared with other years. The total freight moved through the waterway for 1934 was 2,257,553 net tons as compared with 2,348,848 net tons in 1933. The value of the freight moved last year was $4,085,943.31, as compared with $4,073,318.56 in 1933.

The heaviest cargo reported through the canal was 762 tons of coal. The following table shows the total freight passing through the Portage Lakes canal for the past seven years, with the valuations:

Year	Tons	Valuation
1928	1,367,855	$2,554,415.70
1929	1,367,855	$2,554,415.70
1930	1,367,855	$2,554,415.70

The special joint committee to investigate freight rate discrimination in this state is ready for business, and it has issued a letter through its chairman, Senator A. D. Eberhart, of Marquette, calling upon all who have complaints or information to offer to appear and make their cases known.

The letter is as follows: "This committee has now organized and is holding its sessions at the railroad committee rooms of the senate at the new state capital. It is respectfully requested that the people of this state, who are interested in this matter, shall co-operate with the committee in making this investigation thorough and effective. The committee proposes, so far as it is concerned, to thoroughly sift the charges made that the transportation and express rates are excessive and that various parts of the state are unjustly discriminated against by these rates. To do this committee must be furnished with the evidence of at least complaints put in such tangible shape that the committee can upon the ships and others of the state, who are interested in seeing this question of rates and unjust discrimination fully and fairly presented to this committee, to formulate their charges, making them as specific as possible and sending them to the chairman of the committee. The committee will then take the matter up and make a thorough, careful and complete investigation of each charge."

The normal school committees of the two houses met yesterday and decided to arrange its inspection trips to the various normal schools of the state after a couple of weeks have been allowed for the committees on insane hospitals.

A state census is due this year, and Senator Beaver, of St. Cloud, will introduce a bill early next week providing for it. The bill will make the secretary of state the supervisor of the census, and he will be authorized to secure such information as may be necessary. The enumerators are to be appointed by the supervisor on recommendation of three reputable citizens in each district, and the districts are not to include more than two townships or two wards. They are to be furnished with the supplies necessary, and they are to begin their work June 1 and to finish it and have their returns in by the middle of May. The bill also provides for the printing and publishing of the result must be done by Jan. 1, 1936. Probably $50,000 to $60,000 will be asked for in the bill.

George W. Knox, of Atkin, a member of the state board of equalization appointed by ex-Governor Van Sant has not yet been confirmed, though the other recess appointments of Van Sant have been confirmed by the senate. Senator McPherson, of Atkin, had his name excepted from the list when it was confirmed yesterday. Senator A. R. Merrill, of St. Paul, objected that these exceptions should not be held up until without explanation being made, and Lieutenant-Governor Merrill stated that reports in the cases of these exceptions must be made within a reasonable time.

The introduction of the Wells and Erickson anti-bucket shop bills yesterday raised one of the issues that were prominent at the last session. A bill having been introduced against bucketshops, the anti-bucketshopers got somebody to retaliate by introducing a bill that would work havoc with business of trade and chamber of commerce as well. This is apparently going to be the situation this year. The bill that would bar boards of trade as well as bucketshops is that by Representative R. J. Wells, of Breckenridge. It provides, in addition to a prohibition of bucketshops and dealing in futures, that all contracts in violation of the law shall be void, and that money invested in them can be recovered.

Representative John G. Lund, of Minneapolis, who introduced the bill yesterday to increase the minimum price for state school lands from $5 to $10 per acre, is a land man himself. It seems a bit cruel, but there are people that say the land men are interested because by increasing the minimum they put the state out of business as a competitor to them.

THE HIGH SCHOOL LABOR CHALLENGE

Important For Students to Select Colleges They Will Attend.

Entrance Examinations Important Thing to Be Considered.

It is very essential that all students of the high school who intend to complete their education at one of the higher institutions of the country should select the course they intend to pursue and the schools which they expect to attend as soon as possible, preferably at the beginning of their junior year in the high school.

This is owing to the fact that practically every college and university has special requirements which the student must have before he is admitted. These requirements are becoming more specific and exacting each year and are being more positively insisted upon. For example, no student will now be admitted to the university of Minnesota until he has had four years of algebra, one year of plane geometry, and a half year of both advanced algebra and trigonometry. In general the necessary requirements consist of algebra, English, and at least two years of some foreign language other than English. Among the elective studies that go to make up the necessary amount of credits are languages, mathematics, sciences, and history.

In order to pass the entrance examinations it is not now necessary to go to that particular school that the pupil desires to attend. What is known as the "College Entrance Examination Board" has been organized and gives examinations in all the subjects mentioned above. Certain centers are designated all over the country, to which the student can go for his examination. In this district they will be under the supervision of Principal Smith in the junior high school. The board at the present time is selected from the larger colleges and a limited number of secondary schools and consists of about thirty members. Among those represented are Adelphi College, Barnard College, Bryn Mawr College, Bucknell University, Case School of Applied Sciences, Case School of Business, Cornell University, Johns Hopkins University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mount Holyoke College, Western University of Pennsylvania, Woman's College of Baltimore, New York University, Pennsylvania State University, Princeton University, University of Wisconsin, Washington and Jefferson College, Wellesley College, and Western Reserve University. From each of these schools a representative is appointed to form a committee which draws up the various sets of questions.

Last year the total number of candidates examined was 187, an increase of 157 over the year previous and 45 over 1932. The institutions to which admission was sought were: Amherst College, Brown University, Bryn Mawr, Case School of Applied Sciences, Case School of Business, Colorado College, Columbia University, Cornell University, Dartmouth College, Harvard University, Johns Hopkins University, Leland Stanford Jr., Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mount Holyoke College, New York University, Oberlin University, Pennsylvania State University, Princeton University, University of Wisconsin, Washington and Jefferson College, Wellesley College, and Western Reserve University. From each of these schools a representative is appointed to form a committee which draws up the various sets of questions.

Specific Blood Poison

This most hideous of all venereal diseases can no longer be classed as incurable. The idea that the limit of medical aid is to keep the disease dormant by persistently dosing the system with mineral poisons is an incorrect as many other ancient theories to which many of the profession cling. Such treatment not infrequently results in the virus being driven deeper into the system, where it attacks and destroys even the very bones of the sufferer. Our cure is thorough and permanent, and every symptom of the disease vanishes forever. We use harmless blood cleansing remedies heretofore unknown in the treatment of this disease.

Urethral Obstruction

It matters not how long you have suffered from urethral obstruction or how many different doctors have disappointed you, we will guarantee that our treatment will make you as well as before you were troubled with the disease. Our treatment dissolves the obstruction, leaving the urinary passage entirely free from obstruction and irritation. It also relieves any sympathetic disturbance in the bladder or kidneys.

Weakness

This disease of the functions by no means indicates general nervous decline, it is a direct result of inflammation, enlargement or excessive sensitiveness of the prostate gland brought on by early dissipation or re-

Contracted Disorders

To but partially cure a contracted disorder is almost as dangerous as to allow it to be untreated. Unless every particle of infection and inflammation is removed the probability exists that the disease will gradually work its way into the general system. Still greater is the danger of the prostate gland becoming chronically inflamed, which always brings on partial or complete loss of strength. Perhaps 25 per cent of the cases of so-called "weakness" are a direct result of some improperly treated contracted disease. In Turkey, where we have recently treated, we have effected a thorough and safe cure in every instance. There have been no relapses or undesirable developments whatever, and our patients have been cured in a shorter time than usually required in such cases.

Reflex Ailments

Often the condition appearing to be the chief disorder is only a reflex ailment resulting from some other disease. Weakness sometimes comes from varicocele or urethral obstruction; skin and bone diseases result from blood poison latent, and physical and mental decline follow long standing functional disorder. Our long experience in treating men enables us to determine the exact conditions that exist and to treat accordingly, thus removing every damaging cause and its effects.

Varicocele

Varicocele is a relaxation, knotting and twisting of the most important blood vessels of the system. It stagnates the local circulation of waste and repair. Neglect brings derangement of functions and injury to the general health. Our cures are absolutely permanent and no ill effects whatever can follow our treatment.

Operations

Some deformities and disorders render a surgical operation advisable and in such cases we offer the best services. Our record of performing an operation is absolutely painless.

Delay is Dangerous

If suffering from any of these or associated diseases, attend to your case at once by consulting us now.

TO STUDY LAW

The County Board Now
Has Copy of New Code.

Peculiar Provision Relative to the County
Attorney's Salary.

County Auditor Halden has secured for the information of the board of county commissioners the new code of laws which the commission has prepared for adoption at the present session.

The county board has for some time contemplated asking the legislature for the passage of several measures of particular interest to this county, relative to road matters, commissioners' salaries, and the feeling of county prisoners.

The board at its last meeting it was decided to hold them in abeyance until a copy of the proposed code could be examined and the board thought possible that some special legislation will be needed if the code is adopted as it now stands.

One of the provisions of the new code which has attracted considerable comment from the county officials is a clause which provides that the board of county commissioners may fix the salary of the county attorney, which is not to exceed $2000. Another clause says that the county attorney may elect his own assistant in counties of over 5,000 inhabitants at less than $1000.

The assistant county attorney's salary is fixed by law at $1500.

This arrangement is regarded as very peculiar from the fact that the county board might have it in its power to make the county attorney's salary less than his assistant's.

However, if the county attorney, providing the code is adopted, is dissatisfied with the salary fixed by the county board, he may appeal to the judges of district court, and if they increase the salary to any amount, not exceeding $2000, the figures will stand during the term of office of the county attorney making the appeal.

The present salary of the county attorney is $2500, so that the new code provides a $500 decrease in salary of that official.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The Nebraska university basketball team Friday night defeated the former champions of the Minnesota basketball team by the score of 23 to 22.

Annie Mearns, a Polish girl, was shot and instantly killed by a bullet fired by night, and Michael Youns is under arrest charged with the crime.

The holder of Whitehead's mills at Port Rowan, Ont., exploded Friday night, killing three men and three women, and seriously injuring others.

Attorney J. P. Dawley failed to provide bail in either the federal or state courts for the release of Mrs. Chadwick, who had been arrested for a charge of being a prostitute.

Three men are dead and two others critically ill as the result of an outbreak of "spotted fever" in a lumbering camp in the Adirondack region, where thirty men have been employed. The camp has been broken up and the men who have been exposed to the disease have been sent in all directions, causing great alarm.

$100 REWARD. $100. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the system and restoring the nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ANGELL RESIGNS.

Board of Regents Refuses to Accept Resignation.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 21.—The board of regents of the University of Michigan were taken completely by surprise yesterday afternoon by the formal tender of resignation by President James B. Angell. In his communication President Angell said:

"I beg to tender my resignation as president of the University of Michigan to take effect October 1. Although I have been graciously favored with health and strength, and with the belief that it would be to the advantage of the University of Michigan if you were to call a young man to the position I now occupy."

"I wish to express my sincere thanks to you and to your predecessors with whom I have been treated during my incumbency."

"Should you so desire I would be pleased to continue to give instruction in international law."

The regents, the full board being present, replied as follows:

"The board of regents of the University of Michigan respectfully decline to consider your resignation, and feel that none, young or old, could fill your place. Should you at any time desire assistance the regents will be pleased to furnish same in any form."

THERE WILL BE NO STRIKE.

Philadelphia, Jan. 21.—The Press says: "The strike of the Pullman men on the Pennsylvania railroad. The questions at issue will be settled at a conference which will be held today between General Manager Atterbury and the leaders of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. While it is impossible to quote exact authority for this absolute statement, it might be said that it comes from a source which knows the situation and what will be done."

Acts Like Oxygen.

Liquozone is not made by any poulticing drugs, nor is there any alcohol in it. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. This process has, for more than 20 years, been the constant object of scientific and chemical research.

The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is an absolutely certain germicide. The reason is that germs are vegetables, and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetable matter.

Liquozone goes into the stomach into the bowels and into the blood, to go wherever the blood goes. No germ can escape it and none can resist it. The results are inevitable for a germ disease must end when the germs are killed. Then Liquozone, acting as a wonderful tonic, quickly restores a condition of perfect health.

Diseases which have resisted medicine for years yield at once to Liquozone, and it cures diseases which medicine never cures. Half the people you meet—wherever you are—can tell you of cures that were made by it.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Two Brothers Murdered at Mine Near Rapid City.

SOUTH DAKOTA.
Rapid City—News has just been received of the murder of Cain brothers, two bachelors, who lived at Tamarack Mine, fifteen miles west of this city. The murder is a mystery. It is known that the brothers had trouble with some of their neighbors and they are suspected of the crime. The message states that the bodies have the appearance of having been clubbed to death. The men are well known in this section of the hills and own valuable mining property.

Aberdeen—The pure seed meeting under the auspices of the Northwestern railroad was largely attended. The courtroom was crowded, farmers having come long distances to attend. The principal addresses were made by Professors Chilcote and Wheeler of the State Agricultural college at Brookings. A. C. Johnson, of Winona, who was expected to deliver an address, was unable to be present. Former Mayor D. McGlashin presided and C. N. Harris was appointed chairman of an executive committee, which will have general supervision of the work in Brown county. Township committees will also be appointed. The pure seed movement is attracting much attention and it is unlikely that many bushels of poor seed will be sown the coming season.

At the annual meeting of the Tacoma Park association, the capital stock was increased from $3000 to $6000. The association conducts a chaletauqua assembly at the park, twelve miles from Aberdeen, every summer. It owns a tract of land valued at $9000, and many Aberdeen citizens have gathered up summer cottages at the park and take their families there during the hot season.

Pierre—At the annual meeting of the State Historical society, the address was delivered by Rev. J. P. Williamson, of Greenwood, one of the oldest active missionaries in the Dakotas. The society re-elected T. L. Higgins, of Cheyenne, Rev. T. M. Shanafelt, of Huron, Dr. D. W. Robinson, of Pierre, and Professor R. E. Kerr, of Brookings, directors. At a meeting of the directors, Rev. Mr. Shanafelt was selected president of the association and Professor Kerr vice president. Secretary Robinson holding at the pleasure of the directors.

Postmaster Dewell has recommended for appointment as carriers in this city Guy Kelly and Albert Hegglund, with Anthony Hengle as substitute. Reports from Leslie say that beavers are multiplying in that section under the law protecting them, and that several dams are being constructed on the smaller streams.

State Treasurer Collins has called in $400,000 of floating warrants, thus stopping interest. These warrants bore seven per cent interest, and are being taken up with an issue of four per cent revenue warrants. Two hundred thousand dollars of outstanding revenue warrants of an issue of a year ago have also been taken up.

NORTH DAKOTA.
Grand Forks—Suits have been commenced by Mrs. Lillian May Larson against her father, Henry Jopling, to recover a half interest in a farm estate valued at $4000. In her complaint Mrs. Larson says that her mother, Rebecca Jopling, died April 1, 1888, leaving the estate to Jopling and the daughter, each to receive equal shares. On Feb. 10, 1904, the plaintiff became of age. On June 7, 1904, her father took her to the office of James Barry, an attorney in Inkster, and there she was induced to sign a release of all claims against the estate of her mother. She alleges that Barry gave her to understand that she could not secure any portion of the estate anyway unless she was willing and perhaps she could secure something by attaching her signature. Not fully understanding the case, she signed the document. When Mrs. Larson became aware that she had signed away $2000 worth of land which rightfully belonged to her, she tendered her father $30 which he had given her since she signed the release. The tender was refused and suit was commenced.

Minot—Ole Knutson, a rural carrier, while driving across the Great Northern tracks at Tumbler, about thirty miles east of this city, was struck by No. 9 and literally ground to pieces. His mutilated body was gathered up in baskets and taken back to Rugby, where an inquest will be held.

One of the largest and most important mercantile deals ever made in Ward county was closed this morning when C. T. Prescott, of Forest City, Iowa, purchased the Dahl interest in the Leland department store and formed a copartnership with B. G. Turner, of the old firm of Turner & Dahl. Mr. Prescott has for years conducted one of the largest and most successful department stores in Forest City, Iowa.

Fargo—Edward Fordback is the name of an apparently demented stranger of some refinement, who was taken in custody here. He thinks he still has about $10,000,000 of his fortune left in Chicago, but the greater part of his wealth was taken from him by a man who formerly managed the Columbia theater in Minneapolis. Fordback declares the manager took his money and purchased the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads. Yesterday he was willing to take either of the roads and $1,000,000 with which to pay operating expenses for a few days, but today he said the Great Northern bridges were bad and he wanted the Northern Pacific as his share. He speaks freely of the death of Benjamin Alton, of Ord, and seems to have added there. The death of Mrs. Waldo M. Potter, for many years a Fargo resident, is reported at the home of her son, editor of the Cassington Reporter. She was 81 and her husband was formerly a well-known politician and register of the Fargo land office. Mrs. L. B. Yerxa, of Minneapolis, is one of three daughters surviving. The other daughters are Mrs. C. W. Burdick, of Lewiston, Idaho, and Mrs. W. C. Borland, of Washington, D. C.

The North Dakota Optical association elected C. G. Coyne, Mandan, president; A. G. Weller, Jamestown, treasurer; and Walter Blakesley, Grandfork, secretary.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

The Nester Estate Makes a Big Purchase of Pine.

Ontonagon—The Nester Estate has closed a contract for the purchase of 3,000,000 feet of pine on the Middle branch of the Ontonagon river, about twenty-five miles from Ontonagon. Some of the timber already cut, and the remainder will be put in during the winter. The logs will be brought to Baraga in the spring, and sawed at the Nester mill. The Nesters have plenty of pine for the Baraga mill, and it looks as if next season would be a lively one.

Dollarsville—The sawmill at Dollarsville has resumed operations after a shutdown of several months. During the period of idleness, the plant was thoroughly overhauled and new machinery was added and the mill is now in condition to turn out more lumber of a better quality than heretofore. The mill furnishes employment to upwards of 100 men.

Sault Ste. Marie—There is plenty of work at the sawmills at Sault Ste. Marie, but the firm says it is handicapped for lack of timber, which is hard to get. All the fir used comes from the Pacific coast states, but the oak grown in the central states, and of which one would think there would be plenty, is the hardest to secure.

Sigola—Over 400 men and sixty teams are employed in the lumber and cordwood industry in the vicinity of Sigola, Dickson county. Teams are even coming from every direction loaded with logs, stumps, poles and cordwood, either for the sawmill or for shipment to other points. The cordwood shipments average ten cars per day at present and will probably increase a little later to fifteen cars per day.

Hawatha—Alfred J. Butts, who resides in Hawatha township, Schuette county, received a patent for an escapement for time pieces, which, many believe, may revolutionize watchmaking. The device of the invention is to provide a watch regulating or balancing mechanism dispensing entirely with the hair or balance spring usually employed in connection with the balance wheel. The device thereby rendering the mechanism less delicate and liable to get out of repair and less expensive to repair when any attention is required. The invention consists in utilizing an oscillating movement to impart an oscillating movement to the balance mechanism. The power for the mechanism is applied to both of the escape wheels and from thence to the double escape lever or pallet to oscillate or rock the shaft from which the balance wheel segments are operated. With this arrangement the power exerted on the shaft is uniform in both directions, and in this respect the mechanism is an improvement over the ordinary escapement where the balance wheel is moved in one direction by the power of the main spring and returned by the weaker hair spring.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleaning purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system. Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. It absorbs the offensive gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best is that which is made from the most pure charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal, and other harmless anti-septics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant-tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can be done from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them. I have given out twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

HEADS THE LAST

Duluth Has Probably Lowest Death Rate
In Country.

Stands Ahead of Minneapolis and Salt Lake City.

What is probably the smallest death rate of any city in the country containing over 50,000 population is shown by the annual report of the Duluth health department for the year 1904, which has just been completed.

Some advance statistics concerning the population were published a week or two ago, and by them it was seen that the death rate would be low, but the annual report just issued shows a rate of 8.23 deaths per year to the 1009 of population.

Salt Lake City, Utah, which has a population about the same as that of Duluth, and a reputation for being one of the most healthful cities in the country, had a death rate of 10.4. Minneapolis, which has also gained a reputation throughout the country for its low death rate, reports a rate of 9.73 in 1903.

Duluth far outstrips all the Eastern cities in this respect. The large cities in the East have death rates ranging from twelve per thousand as high as twenty, while some European cities go even above that figure.

It is doubtful if there is a city in the country that has a population above 50,000 or even above 40,000 that can show a smaller death rate for the year 1904 than can Duluth. As far as contagious diseases are concerned Duluth can show a record that is unexcelled in any part of the country, and as soon as the milk ordinance is enforced it is believed that the number of deaths from tuberculosis, which is the chief cause of mortality in the city, will be greatly reduced.

Much to the surprise of those who have watched the work of the health department during the year, the expenditures for 1904 were less than those for 1903. The general opinion has been that the department was doing more work and spending more money, but the latter part of the statement is not true. In 1902 the department spent $137,189.84, while in 1904 the total expenditures were only $12,860.24. A saving of over $300 was thus effected by Health Commissioner Murray during the year, and the department has probably made the best showing in regard to contagious diseases that has been known in many years past.

The inspectors' reports are also embodied in the general report. More meat, fruit and vegetables were inspected in 1904 than in 1903, and more condemned as unfit for use. The inspectors condemned 15,000 pounds of meat in 1904, 1800 pounds of fruit and 4238 pounds of meat. In 1903 the figures were 15,070, 760 and 5387.

Notice.

An adjourned special meeting of the stockholders of the Northern Mining & Exploration company will be held at Nos. 211-213 First National Bank building, Tuesday, Jan. 23rd, 1906, at 7 o'clock P. M. and complete arrangements for sending a superintendent and a manager to take charge and continue the operations of the company's mines in Norway, and to receive subscriptions and payment for the balance of the treasury stock authorized by the board of directors to be sold.

SINGS SONGS OF SCOTLAND

Miss Jessie McLachlan,
Famous Singer, at Lyceum Monday.

Miss Jessie McLachlan's Grand Scottish Concert company will appear at the Lyceum Monday evening under the auspices of Clan Stewart, this entertainment taking the place of the usual Burns' banquet and dance. Miss McLachlan is the foremost singer of the songs of Scotland and enthralls her audiences as few singers can. The Boston Journal describes the effect she produces in the following: "The simple songs of Scotland were given with infinite feeling. Miss McLachlan drew from her audience applause such as falls to the lot of few singers. When she gave the stirring martial air 'We Hundred Pipers' the audience went wild. Men jumped on chairs, and waved their arms shouting like mad, and for seven or eight minutes the applause was absolutely terrific. There were fully 300 young people present."

With Miss McLachlan are Douglas Young, a fine Scottish tenor, John McLachlan, cellist, and R. Buchanan, pianist.

EXPORT OF PULP WOOD

Condemned By Paper Manufacturers In Canada.

Montreal, Jan. 21.—At a meeting of the paper and wood pulp manufacturers of Canada, it was unanimously resolved that in the interests of the Dominion and especially of the province of Quebec every effort should be made to secure the enactment of legislation to prohibit the export of logs and sawed lumber. A special committee was appointed for the purpose of preparing a petition to lay before parliament.

HIS DEATH IS TRAGIC

William Nettleton, Early Settler of Duluth, Killed at Spokane.

Word was received last evening from Spokane, Wash., of the death of William Nettleton, one of the earliest settlers of Duluth and Superior, and a pioneer of St. Paul. According to dispatches, Mr. Nettleton, who was 82 years of age, was walking across the Great Northern bridge at Spokane shortly before noon and suffered an epileptic attack, falling from the bridge to the river. His body was recovered 200 yards below the bridge. He is survived by a son and two daughters at St. Paul, and a widow. Mr. Nettleton was born in Ashtabula, Ohio, in 1822.

road to build a terminal there. Mr. Nettleton ran a trading store at Duluth for a number of years and had many thrilling experiences with the Indians.

Mr. Nettleton is remembered by the old settlers at the head of the lakes, and the news of his tragic death was received with general regret on their part.

He and his brother George, were the first white settlers on the site of the city of Duluth, coming here in 1848. He preempted a claim, which embraced an entire section of land in what is now the heart of the city. He gradually disposed of this land as the town grew, and invested the money in the townsite of Superior. In 1868 he left the head of the lakes for St. Paul, where he was engaged in the real estate business for a number of years, and later moved to Spokane.

His daughter, Julia Nettleton, married Alonzo J. Whitman, when the latter was one of the most prominent figures at the head of the lakes, and was looked upon as one of the future statesmen of the Northwest. She later secured a divorce from Whitman, when the latter began to dissipate his fortune.

Mr. Nettleton was 83 years at the time of his death. He is said to have accumulated quite a fortune during his lifetime, and his estate will probably be a large one.

THE ZIONIST MOVEMENT

Rabbi Mendel Silber
Delivers Lecture Upon
That Topic.

Rabbi Mendel Silber delivered a strong lecture last night at Temple Emanuel in favor of the Zionist movement. He spoke in part:

"Our forefathers continued to hope and to suffer, and their hope would at some time or other be realized, as long as they remained loyal to the faith transmitted to them by their fathers, and their loyalty to that faith never appeared to greater satisfaction than when it cost them their peace, their happiness and their life to maintain it; for their power of resistance always rose with the occasion that called it forth."

"But now a great change has come about. We have neither the strength of endurance nor the power of resistance, and the one hand we are being persecuted and proscribed and on the other our people are from day to day becoming more and more dead to the higher and truer sentiments of Judaism. How then are we going to save our people? By letting ourselves go, and passively looking on? No, indeed; we must establish a spiritual and national center in our old land, where we could proclaim our old maxims. There is no one law for the stranger and the sojourner, where we could show the world, by example rather than by precept, the mode of right living, the example of liberty, justice and humanity. Then we should no longer stand as the malcontent and abused people in the world's drama, deserving only pity, but we should appear as the triumphant victor, united as one people, waving high our old banner inscribed 'One God.'"

DEGREE FOR PRESIDENT.
Troy, N. Y., Jan. 21.—President Roosevelt, who is slated to have accepted the invitation of Williams college to attend the commencement in June, will receive the degree of LL.D. The president will reach Williams on June 20 or 21, and remain a day or two as the guest of President Henry Hopkins. He will then go to Cambridge to attend commencement at Harvard and the twenty-fifth anniversary of the graduation of his class.

REALTY MARKET IN GOOD CONDITION

Sales Are Not Brisk But the Tone of Inquiry Indicates Practical Certainty of Good Business Coming—Building Projects Continue to Develop.

The week's movement of real estate, while not strong in volume, indicates a good undertone to the market and the local real estate men are feeling optimistic over the outlook. Inquiry has been excellent at nearly all the offices this week and there are a large number of prospective purchasers figuring on offers, while many owners have been submitted terms offered by persons who intend to buy homes or for investment. Several good deals in centrally located business property are still hanging fire pending closing negotiations, some of the money having been paid.

Some important transactions in East End real estate, for improvement have also been brought to the closing point, one such deal only awaiting the return to the city of one of the parties concerned. With continued mild weather the real estate men are anticipating a good January business, much better in fact, than for the corresponding month a year ago when the weather was quite severe and few people were out looking at properties.

Several deals in acreage near this city and in outlying parts of the county have been negotiated this past week. Acreage sales of late have been running in transactions involving Handsone Residence to be built at sixteenth avenue East and Superior street for Werner Presentin.

One of the important additions to handsone East Superior street residences contemplated for the coming spring is a handsome new one planned for Werner Presentin, at the northeast corner of Seventeenth avenue East and Superior street, by Architect W. T. Brax. It will be constructed along old English lines of architecture, and will comprise three stories and a basement. The house will contain twelve rooms, with hardwood finish throughout. The servants quarters, on the third floor, will also be nicely finished with bath and all conveniences.

One of the attractive features of the new house will be the living room on the first floor, which will have dimensions of 17 by 31 feet, finished in old Brax. ## West Duluth

At its regular meeting last night the West Duluth Commercial club took action looking toward the establishment of a branch of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. in West Duluth. The club will work in conjunction with the W. C. T. U. in securing proper quarters for the boys in this part of the city.

H. H. Phelps, H. R. Patterson and J. A. Scott were appointed as a committee to confer with the W. C. T. U. in regard to the matter. All of the members appeared to favor the project. Phil Bevis, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was present and spoke of the work of the association and the need of the junior department in West Duluth. The women will take no definite action until they learn just what help they may expect from the club. A special meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held early next week to further discuss the matter.

The club last night also appointed a committee to make arrangements for the annual banquet to be held early in February. Those appointed on the committee were L. S. Neuman, Emil J. Zwart, W. B. Gatchell, William Chesney, A. H. Merriman, W. A. Smith, J. A. Scott and J. A. Scott were chosen as a committee to arrange for ladies' night to follow after the banquet.

THE CHURCHES.
Subjects of Sunday Sermons in West Duluth.

At the Plymouth Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. H. W. Johnson, will preach in the morning on the subject, "Not Ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." The evening topic will be "Parable of the Rich Fool."

Services will be held at the Westminister Presbyterian church Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. W. J. Lowrie, the pastor, will preach on the theme "A Vision and a Call." Sunday school, D. C. Eddie, superintendent, will meet at 12 o'clock.

Services will be held at the Asbury M. E. church at the usual hours. The subject of the morning sermon will be "The Sermon on the Mount." Rev. P. G. Clark is the pastor.

Rev. Arthur J. Hoag, pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church, will preach at 10:30 o'clock in the morning on the subject, "What is Your Life?" The evening theme, 7:45 o'clock, will be "Thou Shalt Not Kill." Sunday school will meet at 12 o'clock.

tieship. Prof. Dowden divides the professional life of Shakespeare into four periods: In the Workshop, In the World, In the Depths, and On the Heights. The Taming of the Shrew belongs to the workshop period and shows more definitely than any other play the method by which Shakespeare became master of his tools. While he was still an actor at the Globe theater he was given an opportunity to try his hand at changing and adapting old plays. With our clear-cut ideas of authorship and of ownership in literary productions, it is hard to realize that many of the most successful Elizabethan plays were not creations but evolutions, the working up of popular stories into plays and in working of them over by successive adapters, always with a view to making them hold the interest of the audience. Shakespeare with his wonderful insight into human nature and with his specialized knowledge of the theater-going public was given a chance to make the old stock plays more effective. According to the best Shakespearean scholars only a comparatively small part of the Taming of the Shrew was actually written by Shakespeare, but the whole play was worked over until it became, not only a masterpiece of dramatic craftsmanship, but a living and breathing whole instead of a clever mechanism.

The old play on which it was founded is still in existence, and in Rolfe's edition we are given an opportunity of comparing it with its final Shakespearean form. In 1584 a play was published anonymously entitled A Pleasant Conceited History, called The Taming of the Shrew. This old play consisted only of the induction and the taming of the shrew proper, the principal scenes between Petruchio and Katharine (or Perardo and Kate, as they are called in the old play.) The underplot, the intrigues of Bianca's lovers, was introduced later, and not by Shakespeare, according to the best authorities. That is, a second unknown writer had already worked over the play before it came into Shakespeare's hands and took its final form, probably in 1595 or 7.

"The proper treatment of a shrew was a subject of great interest to the English mind during the pre-Shakespearean ages, and the most clumsy hand of the subject would find an audience ready for him. With this good old English motif is combined a study in Italian intrigue founded on the assumption of 'Supposes,' a translation from Aristotle. In the atmosphere of subtlety we learn to value the outspoken honesty of Petruchio and Katharine, though we are at first repelled by its coarse frankness.

"Shakespeare's apprenticeship is a part of vital importance, his learning how to do a definite piece of work by learning how it had been done by others, then improving on that best, and then using his knowledge of form as a medium of expression for his heaven sealing imagination and his heart-rending insight. Adapting the phrase of Emerson we might say that he spent his years in the workshop in learning to fashion the wagon which he hitched to a star. What that training meant to Shakespeare, the man, we can dimly realize when we read his heaven sealing imagination and his heart-rending insight. # For Informal Wear

The Lingerie Petticoat

The advocates of the life strenuous and those who preach the charms and allurements of the simple life will both agree on one thing surely, and that is, that there is a time and a place for all things.

And the same will apply to the matter of clothes equally as to the way in which one chooses to spend one's days and one's energies. There are gowns and garments for the strenuous life, whether it be of the athletic or the social character, and there are likewise gowns for the simple life, for the afternoon tea in the boudoir or drawing-room, the semi-formal toilettes for home and family dinners, the comfort gowns for the resting hour, and those dainty little negligees that are quite the correct thing for breakfast, be it enjoyed in the seclusion of one's own room or at the general family breakfast table.

It is with the latter class that we shall concern ourselves this time. These dainty but effective garments that the French distinguish as robes intimes are among the most recent recruits to our wardrobe, and we are quickly learning to put each one of them to their correct daily wear.

We often smile at the deficiencies of the French language. We make capital of the fact that they use the same word to express their liking for a well-cooked leg of mutton and to describe the grande passion, love. We are wont to point out that they simply have no equivalent for our lovely word home, but in all that pertains to that home and to family life the French can teach us many things.

And not among the least of these are those dainty and eminently becoming little garments which they keep for home and family life solely. Madame is decidedly both pretentious and economical in the matter of these charming little possessions. Her silk petticoat, or some one of them, if she be lucky enough to have a repertoire in that line, is selected with an especial view to being worn with a dainty little matinee for breakfast, and even for the midday déjeuner a la fourchette.

While there is not the least hint of semblance of a fit to the little jacket or matinee, the looser and more bouffant it is the better, the skirt or petticoat, on the contrary, must fit snugly like from waist to knee. This applies even to the lingerie skirt, the top of the best of which are now cut circular, and the ruffle is cut after the same fashion. Two, three or even four ruffles are often mounted upon the foundation flounce, and a row or two of supple flexible featherbone is run in the hem. Anything and everything to make the top close and snug and the hem as flaring as possible.

For the comfort gown the very lightest and sheerest of the woolen weaves are preferred by those who do not lose sight of serviceability while pursuing style. There are exquisitely light and artistic chailles, colennies, fine meshed voiles—the coarser weaves are considered passe—of any nothing of the Swiss eliers, that are really the sense of comfort, for they stand any amount of crushing and creasing without showing it in the least. And the way in which they show up every effort at decoration, no matter how slight or elaborate it may be, is not among the lesser points that recommend them. The clever dresser often combines her best negligee and tea gowns in the one garment, and has frequent recourse to the pleise effects for this purpose. Sun pleating is to be preferred for the long garments—and they must show a train, while the accordion pleating is gradually being restricted to the little short coffee jackets and matinees.

The markedly differing modes of the First and the Second Empires are indubitably the source of inspiration for which will do duty as negligees—those caissons. In both the waistline is pushed up quite a little. In the former, indeed, it may be said to be coincident with the bust line, while in the latter it has stretched itself a few inches lower down.

TO CLEAR A HOUSE OF BEETLES. —Take a pound of powdered borax and put it into a tin with a perforated lid. Next dust the borax lightly over the floor, on the walls and in the cupboards—everywhere, in fact, where the pests are found—and they will soon disappear.

The Etiquette Of Mourning.

Fashion Decrees Shorter Periods Of Mourning Than Heretofore.

"It is not that the present generation is heartless or in any way lacking in feeling, as our elders claim, that they do not don mourning garb as often as is expected of society in general; they used," explained a leading physician the other day; "rather it is that they have come to have more rational ideas about the display of mourning. We all know that black is more or less depressing to all of us. In allegory and fable whatever was fearsome or repulsive was labeled black; and to many of sensitive nature and temperament the wearing of black and especially of crepe proved depressing and distressing to the last degree. Many a case of nervous prostration could be traced to this source; and I think that physicians are entitled to their share of commendation that they have helped materially to lighten what had become the bug-boo of mourning to many of their patients."

A due and proper respect for those who have gone before is but seemly, and is expected of society in general; but the display of mourning which was at one time thought to be fitting has now been so modified that it is often difficult to detect the badge of mourning at all.

The wearing of crepe is now entirely a matter of individual choice or preference. Many physicians forbid it altogether, but the modistes rather commend its use. It is frail, anything but durable, and in a good quality—and a cheap crepe is the apotheosis of poverty—is likely to prove expensive.

The Parisienne is somewhat spectacular in her mourning garb, that is, according to our estimate of what is correct and becoming. The mourning hat, especially for the first mourning, is very likely to be of the turban order, a shape that is becoming to young and old alike. The underbrim is faced with a white crepe, a mode which proves far less trying than the all black above the face; and being crepe of exactly the same weave and texture as the recognized mourning badge, its acceptance in the scheme of mourning is generally assured.

Over this the mourning veil is draped, an office that is best accomplished upon the wearer. En passant it were as well to remark that the latest decrees have shortened the veil considerably, and now the longest of them do not hang below the waistline in the back. The all-enveloping veil, which fell back and front, has been banished, never, let us hope, to return. The little front veil, of Tulle, tulle or brussels mesh, may have a crepe border or not—just as desired—and this is worn in the usual way. The dull-finished black cloths and worsteds, chevrons, silk-warp Henriettas and cashmeres and the dull black silks, grosgrain, poplin and the like, are considered good mourning style whether trimmed with crepe or not. Even in the first months of bereavement the Parisienne has the collar, cuffs and perhaps a plastron of white crepe in her mourning gown, a mode that lightens it up effectively, without in any way decreasing the degree of mourning indicated.

These little hemstitched sheer lawn bands which made collar and cuff sets, and which were once used exclusively to indicate widowhood, are now so universally used, even upon colored gowns, that their significance in the mourning toilette has vanished.

For the second period of mourning crepe de chine will fill in many offices. For either plain or dressy gowns the black crepe de chine is available, and the double widths meet all sartorial requirements well.

Dull suede gloves and dull matte leathers for footwear belong to the deep mourning only, although the glaze and the shiny leathers are used by those whose good taste in dress is unquestioned. The black glaze glove is undoubtedly more durable than the suede, and is considered always a mourning accompaniment.

In the matter of handbag and umbrella—little points where so many fall—plain black is imperative. Even gilt mountings or trimmings are not permissible; and the best patterns in bags now come with a dull gun metal mounting and trimming especially for mourning use. The same metal for a mounting upon the umbrella is good taste, and the ebony stick is always en regle.

The matter of jewelry in mourning is one that has been much and variously discussed of recent years. Perhaps the most liberal interpretation was that which Queen Alexandra of England issued in the court mourning instructions for the late Queen Victoria. Her Majesty indicated to the most exact degree just what was to be worn, and she included both pearls, which have long been considered acceptable in mourning, and diamonds; but excluded colored stones.

What Pleases A Man.

Generally speaking, a man likes to be told he is handsome, whether he is or not. He likes to be told he has small feet. This is a tip for wives. There is more virtue in a pair of tight shoes in keeping a man at home in the evenings than in all the Ten Commandments. It pleases a man to be asked for advice. You don't need to take it. Most men have advice to give away and they are always willing to lend it on women's errands. It pleases a man for a woman to depend on him. This is the reason why many foolish girls and two husbands apiece, while strong-minded women remain old maids.

Description of Illustrations.

THE LINGERIE PETTICOAT.

The silk skirt has not by any means pushed the washable lingerie petticoat out of the field, and with the prevailing craze of white in all departments of dress the skirt that can make innumerable visits to the cleansing tub of the laundress and renew its youth and freshness with each one of them, is appreciated as never before. The soft nainsooks and batistes are favored materials. The fit in the upper portion must be smooth and unwrinkled, while from the knee down the extreme of bouffancy is observed. The flounce is fashioned upon a circular foundation, and a rod or two of featherbone will add to its graceful swing—a special kind comes for just this purpose—and will go through the laundry just as successfully as the skirt itself.

A SUN-PLEATED TEA GOWN.

The lines which distinguish the fashions of the Second Empire are followed in this exquisite sun-pleated tea gown of pale yellow crepe de chine. The bolero-like body portion supports both the skirt and the overdress, the one ending in a graceful train in the back and the other cut out in handkerchief points and both liberally trimmed with a yellowish tint of net lace, both deep edge and narrower entire deux. A square collar, edged with lace, sets over the shoulders, the sleeves are a short plain puff with deep please ruffle, also disposed in handkerchief points, and a cascade of the deep lace edge is posed on either side of the front, from neck to hem.

A MODISH IDEA FOR A COMFORT GOWN.

Here the loose, flowing drapery which characterizes the latest of negligee garments is cleverly combined with the appearance of fit, which accentuates the grace of the tea gown. One of the new Swiss eliers in bronze green is lined with a dainty satin foulard, in which pale pearly gray, a faint yellow and an apple green are evident, and the oriental embroidery, which is liberally used for handling, shows a conventional design worked in gold silver and copper metal threads on white cloth ground. There is a deep-shouldered yoke to which the gown is pleated in empire lines back and front, the sleeve coming in an unbroken line with the fronts. A belt of the embroidery passes beneath the fulness back and front and cleverly holds the garment into the figure at the sides, hinting at, rather than revealing, the dainty curves of the waist line.

TO WEAR TO BREAKFAST.

For the seclusion of one's own bedroom or even to the family breakfast table the dainty little matinee with a handsome silk petticoat in the choice of many a Parisienne. Here the little jacket is made as bouffant as possible, a white crepe de chine with yellowish Paris lace being used. Shirred at neck and shoulder seams, rows of shirring fit it at the waistline, the soft crepe bagging prettily above the shirring. There is a pretty collar with fanciful appliques of the lace posed over the shoulders, and the sleeve is just a baggy puff shirred at the elbow, with a deep lace edged frill falling to the wrist. The petticoat is fitted with gored from waist to knee, and there a full row of shirring. A broad band of broderie anglaise appears on the outer flange, lace entre-deux and edge making a finish on suite with that of the little jacket. The under flounce has the new Faculle flounce (princess haircloth) as a foundation for the frilly fullness of the outer one.

PETTICOAT FOR THE WALKING GOWN.

The short walking skirt demands either a drop skirt of silk or else a petticoat of a cut that will consort well with the novel outlines of the mode. The shops are showing some new ones in which the close fit from hip to knee is shown, and plenty of fullness from there to the hem. These are often used in negligee in combination with a little fancy matinee of some sort. Here the skirt is carefully gored from waist to halfway below the knee, and there a full flounce is shirred on with a circular flounce of the silk beneath. Four rows of ruchings serve to hold the flounce well out and a velvet binding keeps the edge of the hem from cracking too early in its career. The fit around the waist is snug and the fullness is adjusted with pleats at either side of the placket.

SIMPLE LITTLE MORNING SACCUE.

For these dainty little sacques the wider China silks and crepes de chine are the best choice, since they allow less sewing and better cutting. There is a shallow yoke over the shoulder to which the accordion pleated portion is attached, no attempt whatsoever being made to even hint at a fitting throughout. The pleating is pulled out at the lower edge, and an entredeux of lace makes a heading for a bias frill that is scarcely edged with lace. Over the shoulders there is a very dainty yoke and berthe design of the narrow entreeux, with a frill of lace edged silk. The sleeve is somewhat of a novelty, being just three face-edged frills cut on the bias and shirred on with the insertion for a heading to each.

The second thing to get is a play so plotless that anything and everything shoddy can be checked into it.

Before McAvoy has been on the stage five minutes in this latest extravaganza he sings about a bride who, on her wedding night, amazes her husband by taking off pads, hair, an eye, some teeth and a cork leg, so that he doesn't know that any more of her is gone to bed than is left on the table. No reader of this letter can be old as to remember a time when that joke wasn't in use. In this new version it is a song entitled, "She Certainly Was a Regular Bird" and the verses describe the plucking off of her feathers. On the other hand, there is ingenious novelty in a twist given to the inevitable military ballad with a marching chorus of girls. The song is called "Bunker Hill" and the feminine soldiers wear the uniforms of Santiago Rough Riders. Instead of having a handsome tenor or baritone leader, they are marshaled grotesquely by McAvoy in a misfit continental suit, with a lumber-limbed mustache across his shoulder. The martial display ends with the scaling of a wall at the back, in the manner of stage zouave companies, except that McAvoy, instead of reaching the top, is left dangling like a cat. The curtain falls, and when it rises to run encore he is being hit by cannon fire from all directions amidst a tremendous uproar of explosions. He draws a tiny American flag from a pocket, pins it to his lapel and the bombardment ceases instantly.

In the more sportive field of amusements a hot race is under way. The runners are Joe Welch's "Haggle-Piggle" and Lew Field's "Nordland." The two actor-managers, partners once, are now rivals. Each is mounted on a high horse of extravaganza. "Nordland" got a lead in the second act, with "Haggle-Piggle" a close second, though there was a clear gap between. Klaw and Erlanger's "Newport" was a favorite entry, and seemingly in first-rate form, but it has been dented and withdrawn. The new "Haggle-Piggle" under the whip and spur of an added travesty of George Ade's football game from "The College Widow," has dashed alongside of "Nordland" and the running is neck and neck. At a very fast pace. The Veher way of getting fun out of Ade's already funny show of field sport is worth the telling. I mentioned big Marie Dressler in the second act, and she has been seen to retire from the game. She hobbles in from the field on a crutch, with her pretty companions in the telling. May Mackenzie personates a contestant who gets hurt and weeps when compelled to retire from the game. She hobbles in from the field on a crutch, with her pretty companions in the telling. ## THE WESTERN WORLD'S FAIR CITY

Portland, With a Population of 140,000, Contributes $430,000 to the Lewis and Clark Centennial—City Has Many Resources—Citizens Are Enthusiastic.

By W. E. Brindley.

Portland, Ore., Jan. 21.—A little over half a century ago, in the year 1846, Messrs. Pettygrove and Overton, respectively of Portland, Me., and Boston, Mass., stood on the banks of the Willamette river and tossed a penny into the air. Pettygrove's side came up, and the city of Portland received its name.

Where those hardy frontiersmen stood in 1846, there stands in 1905 a city of 140,000 inhabitants, a city which grows so rapidly that the census fails to keep pace with its growth. The city, which has for many years occupied a prominent place in the eyes of people all over the United States, is now more than ever the center of interest, because of the fact that at Portland there will be held this summer the Lewis and Clark centennial. The fair which will be unique in many ways, interesting in almost every way, and distinguished as the only exposition ever held west of the Rocky mountains under the patronage of the United States government.

Portland has many natural advantages which would, without the boosting of a population which contributed $430,000 toward the 1905 fair, assure the city of the future. Its excellent harbor, the only one, by the way, on the Pacific coast, located 110 miles from the sea, assures the commercial importance of the city. Portland is as far famed for the healthfulness of its climate as it is famous for its harbor. It is the healthiest city in the world, and its climate is as far famed for the healthfulness of its climate as it is famous for its harbor. It is the healthiest city in the world, and its climate is as far famed for the healthfulness of its climate as it is famous for its harbor.

The natural advantages given the city by its excellent harbor, and its situation at the head of navigation on the Columbia and Willamette rivers for ocean vessels, have until recently made its commercial activities far overshadowing those of other cities. With a country of wonderful fertility at its back, Portland ranks fifth in the United States as a seat of shipping. The shipyards of lumber are also large. Facilities for heavy transportation are first-class, the city being the terminus of three great railway systems—the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific, while the Columbia and Willamette rivers with their tributaries, provide an excellent waterway into the interior and act as a regular outlet for freight rates. The city has many of the features of a manufacturing center of more recent development, but Portland has several business advantages which are not shared by other cities. It is the healthiest city in the world, and its climate is as far famed for the healthfulness of its climate as it is famous for its harbor.

The business part of town, located mostly west of the Willamette river, is little different from that of other cities of its size, except that there are more new buildings of brick and stone. A few earlier structures, built of wood, still remain, but every year sees a number of them torn down, and modern office buildings are being erected. There are at present no skyscrapers, but six and eight story buildings are common enough. ## THE TRIALS OF THE "TROUBLE-SHOOTER"

The Difficult Task of Telephone Maintenance—How the "Wire Chief" Covers His District—Troubles Most Active in Turbulent Weather.

The telephone subscriber who is called to his instrument each morning to hear "central" murmur "testing, thank you," rarely thinks anything more about the performance than that it is a nuisance. Behind this little call however, lies an elaborate system of maintenance of which the subscriber knows only a little part. The current in telephony are extremely delicate and sensitive, and between the switchboard and the transmitter a thousand and one things may happen of the existence of which the average subscriber has never even dreamt. To secure good service it is necessary not only to provide numerous and well-trained operators, but also to see that the whole plant is in a state of readiness at all times, and because of this fact, in the upbuilding of the Bell telephone system, which covers all parts of the country, elaborate machinery has been provided to remedy defects which daily appear from time to time and to repair with the possible despatch the damages done by storm, fire and serious accident.

One of these maintenance departments of the Bell companies in its organization and operation bears a remarkable resemblance to the work of a newspaper. For the condition at all times of the wires and instruments in its territory the wire chief is responsible, just as the city editor is responsible for obtaining all the news in his city. As the city editor has his staff of reporters so the wire chief has his corps of "trouble-shooters" and inspectors whom he sends out each morning on their assignments and whose reports he receives and tabulates. He must know the location of every bit of trouble anywhere and he must promptly send a man to remedy it. Just as the city editor must know where a story is to be found and must have a man there to obtain it, the wire chief and his wire chief alike must solve the problem of covering their territories quickly and thoroughly. Each must know the location of every bit of trouble anywhere and he must promptly send a man to remedy it. Just as the city editor must know where a story is to be found and must have a man there to obtain it, the wire chief and his wire chief alike must solve the problem of covering their territories quickly and thoroughly.

Near the switchboard, where the long row of operators is busily engaged in answering the calls of subscribers, there is another department of the telephone exchange which the subscriber never sees. It is the wire chief's office, where the wire chief reigns supreme in the midst of dynamos, long racks of wires and all the complicated, bewildering paraphernalia of a telephone exchange. At his testing board sits the chief inspector, with a large map of his district close to his hand, receiving reports from the "trouble-shooters" all day long and writing the "stories" of their troubles. He has brief reports of what they have done are technically called. Each trouble-shooter carries with him a portable instrument by which he is enabled to telephone over any line securing communication with his office and thus make certain that his work is completed.

The life of the trouble-shooter in a large district is not a particularly easy one. When he is not on duty, he is a trouble, he is inspecting lines and instruments in order to forestall it, for a trouble is a trouble, and it is a trouble to forestall it. This means constant activity and in bad weather the trouble-shooter is a man of many parts. The trouble-shooter is to be found anywhere from the main street of a village to an isolated farm-house and he must be ready to go to work at a moment's notice.

Few people would care to sit on top of a pole in any kind of weather, for the wire chief's office is a place of many parts. The trouble-shooter is to be found anywhere from the main street of a village to an isolated farm-house and he must be ready to go to work at a moment's notice. ## DRINKING WATER IS NOT NECESSARY

Is Merely a Habit, and Texas Man Has Not Indulged For Ten Years.

Maj. Theodore Schlemmer thinks he has disproven the theory that drinking water is necessary to the existence of a human being. He has not taken a drink of water for many years—just how many he does not know, but it is ten or fifteen, says a Bretham, Tex., letter to the New York Sun.

He found that water did not agree with him and he quit drinking it. He also quit eating all kinds of bread at the same time.

He began to take on flesh soon after he stopped using water and bread, and is now fat and the picture of health. Although he is not a doctor, his complexion has the pink color and delicate appearance of that of a baby. His muscles are well developed and he, to all appearance he is in perfect condition.

Even in the hottest days of summer he is not troubled with thirst. He occasionally drinks a glass of beer, but it is not often that he partakes of that beverage.

He subsists principally on raw meat.

The Doctor Writes of Counterfeiters.

CHAS. H. FLETCHER, New York City.

Hyannis, Mass., May 12, 1900.

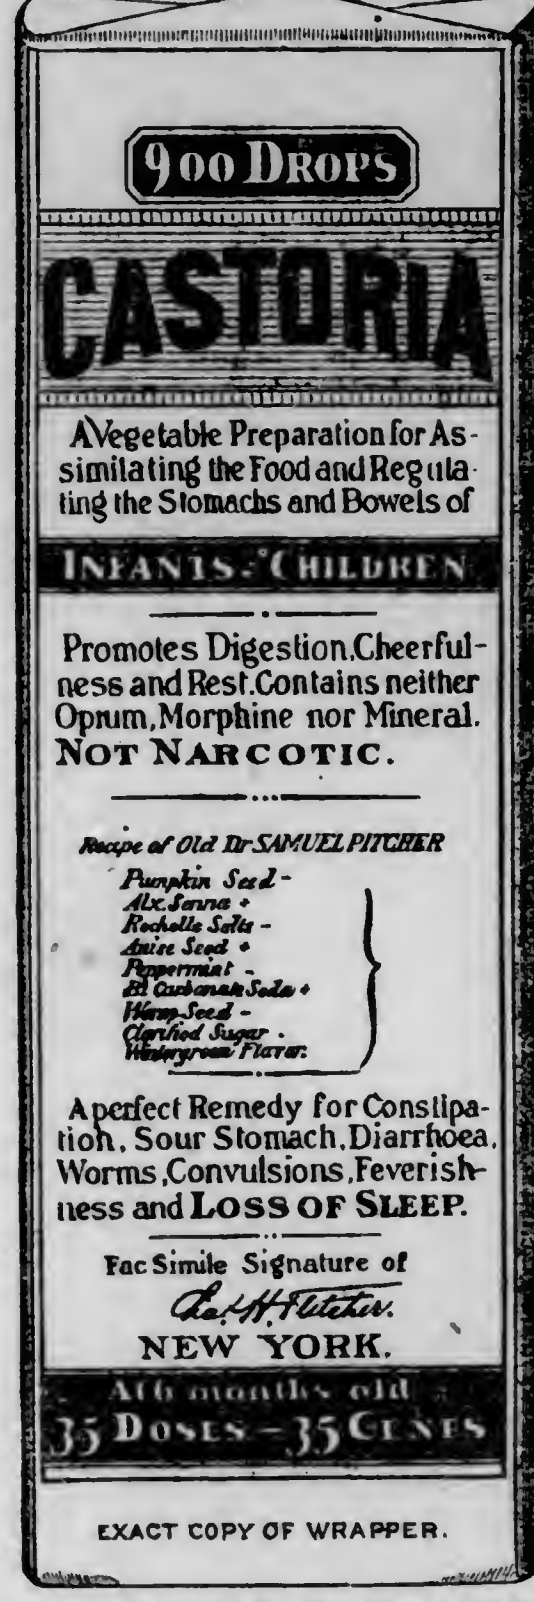

Dear Mr. Fletcher:—I wish to congratulate you on your numerous victories over counterfeiters and imitators of Castoria, and trust the time is not far distant when these inferior and dangerous mixtures will be entirely suppressed.

You are right when you say in your advertisements that it is "Experience against Experiment."

I feel it to be an outrage, and an imposition upon the parents of little children that my name should be associated with imitations of Castoria, dangerous to the health and life of these little ones who too often fight their battles for life in vain.

Let me again commend you for the high standard you have maintained in the preparation of my prescription, and I confidently believe it is due to this scrupulous integrity you are indebted for the wonderful sale of Castoria to-day, and the steady growth it has had since I gave you the details of its manufacture in my laboratory thirty-three years ago.

also believe that the less water a person drinks the longer he will live.

"One half of these long, sinewy, wiry, lank and lean fellows you see on the ranches in West Texas and in the little towns drink so little water that they hardly know what it tastes like; but these same men can outfight and outwork three of the ordinary fat water toppers."

"Late Gen. Lawton had trained himself to go for days without touching water to his lips. He could stand any amount of marching and hard work except when he was thirsty."

"He got his first knowledge of the uselessness of and injury of drinking water from his experience in the Texas frontier while serving with his cavalry troop in this state. He became so thirsty that he could not drink, and it was not long until he could go for days' running without partaking of it."

"It is a fact," said the truck-wiper, "society folks are tearing their hair in an effort to buy choice seats, while we are down here getting the whole works for nothing."

"The question is what you call classical music," said a switchman, as several boxes of melodeons crashed through the side window of a Pullman car. "It is a very old-fashioned piece of music," said another switchman; "but style's everything nowadays."

"Hear, hear, hear!" said a coach-wiper. "Hear, hear, hear!" said the first switchman. "Gave 50 cents to sit in the gallery. Ten beers and the 'Good' company struck a barren zone of over 200 feet of ground and worked for considerable time without any result whatever. It fought the water problem to a large extent for several years, which was all a heavy drain on the treasury of the company. Since the barren zone was penetrated the ore bodies that have been encountered have been of such size and value that for some time past money has been flowing into the treasury. This justifies the directors in disbursing a part of the profits among the stockholders."

The Gold King mine was the first property to be opened in the district, and with the exception of the time that the operators were passing through this barren zone the mine has been producing ore continuously. Up to the latter part of 1901, a gross ore production had been made that came within a few dollars of the one million mark.

The company has a good-sized acreage, which is considered to be among the best in the district and in all probability dividends will be paid regularly from this on.

The board of directors of the Vindicator Consolidated Gold Mining company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 cents a share, payable on Jan. 25th to holders of record on Jan. 21st. This is the twenty-seventh dividend declared by the company, the total amount is $340,000. With the payment of this, the grand total to date will be brought up to this sum of $1,255,000.

Fortunes have been made during the past few years by so many lesses that the owners of territory are now being besieged by applicants for leases, and all these men are opening up many mines during the present year. Nearly 100 lesses have stepped from underground workings into a class where they are now employing a number of men themselves, the change being made during the year 1904.

The leasing system has been the means of transition. Under it a miner working on a property has placed his surplus wages to grubstake other men, which has resulted in numerous times the other men opening up bodies of ore that have given all the partners interested a profit.

Then again, the wages paid to the miners of this district are as high as paid in any mining district in the world, and with a large number of the men now employed placing part of their earnings each month into the workings of other properties it is rapidly seen what the present year holds for them as every miner looks forward to the day when he will be a mine owner.

MELBA IN A TRAIN YARD. The Melba car arrived from St. Louis yesterday morning and when it pulled into the heart of the Alton yards, about two blocks south of Twelfth street, says the Kansas City Journal.

"The car," said the ladies who so great that it was feared for a time the diva's three-legged piano would need tuning before night. The rehearsal was scheduled to take place in the drawing room of the car.

"A few tra-la's found their way through the car ventilators and settled upon the faces of the gentlemen who were blue overall. They have known that Melba was in their midst, and when the melodious peals reached them one of the Alton workers said heartily the music was just like steel."

"Just think," said the truck-wiper, "society folks are tearing their hair in an effort to buy choice seats, while we are down here getting the whole works for nothing."

"The question is what you call classical music," said a switchman, as several boxes of melodeons crashed through the side window of a Pullman car. "It is a very old-fashioned piece of music," said another switchman; "but style's everything nowadays."

Ache all over? Feverish? Chilly? Just coming down with a hard cold? Where do you suppose it will settle?

In the throat? That means hoarseness, sore throat, tonsillitis. In the chest? Then bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption.

Do not let your cold settle. Break it up! Drive it out! Ask your doctor the best medicine for this. If he says Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, take it at once. If he has anything better, take that.

SUPPORT PLAY TIE KENT GAME

Duluth Baseball Club Will Vote For New League President.

Important Matters to Come Up at Annual Meeting.

E. H. Kent, of Grand Forks, will be the choice of the Duluth delegation for president of the Northern league for the year 1935. Mr. Kent was the first president of the old Northern league, which was the nucleus of the present Northern league.

D. J. Laxdal, who is the president of the league now, was secretary-treasurer of that association, and succeeded Kent as president when the Northern league was formed. Mr. Kent is one of the directors of the Northern league at the present time, and it is understood that the Duluth representatives will support him for the presidency.

The name of one of the Duluth directors will probably be proposed for vice-president.

The meeting will be held in Grand Forks next Saturday evening. The directors of the Duluth club will meet this evening and select one or two representatives to attend the meeting. Manager Van Praeg will undoubtedly be one of them, and one of the other directors may accompany him.

In addition to the election of officers the league directors will probably choose a circuit committee to investigate as to the best time to hold the season. A schedule committee cannot be appointed until the circuit is decided upon. It is not likely that the circuit committee will be prepared to report immediately, unless representatives are present from the two clubs that dropped out of the league last year. The members of the circuit will have to investigate and ascertain if these clubs are willing to return to the league, and if it is desirable to have them. The report will therefore have to be presented at some future meeting, which will probably be held in Duluth.

INDOOR BASEBALL TEAM OF SECOND DIVISION OF THE NAVAL RESERVE

The four bloody years at his tongue's end, the boys finally failed on them completely and they separated. Mr. Carter to become a racing official. Mr. Deetz, who had a reputation well earned, of being the best judge that ever sat in a stand, while Carter gained renown as the best figure that ever stood on a block. He had a remarkable aptitude for figures, was an excellent judge of prices, and was willing to lay against any proposition that ever came up in a racing way, once he was assured of the stability of the market prices. It was always a specialty of his to lay a price against the favorite in a race to finish in the money. Of course he lost the vast majority of those bets, but he would win one every once in a while, and when he did win, he kept it up to offset a half dozen losses. For some club players, will take a very short price against a proposition of that sort and will bet a lot.

One day at St. Louis, two summers ago, Carroll laid 1 to 10 that Little's race in which the Bennett campaign was a 4 to 5 favorite to win. The race came down to a four-horse nose finish, and Little's horse won. Here last winter he won a big bet on Maister, who was a very short-priced favorite. Carroll laid 1 to 5 Maister would not be in the money, and the Gay sprinter was left at the post.

FIGHT A DRAW.
Milwaukee, Jan. 21.—Maurice Sayara, of Milwaukee, and Aurelio Herrera, of Bakersfield, Cal., fought a fast six round draw before the Milwaukee Boxing club last night. Both boys were in the best of condition and put up one of the fastest bouts witnessed for a long time.

THE VIRGINIA CITY INDOOR BASEBALL TEAM

1—William Byrum, right field. 2—Michael Bonner, first base. 3—Walter Parker, substitute. 4—E. M. Goffrey, pitcher and captain. 5—John St. Cyr, right short and manager. 6—Frank L. Donnelly, catcher. 7—D. E. Cupper, left field. 8—Oscar Schoenleber, left field. 9—Leslie Reid, left short. 10—George Meahan, second base.

This team practically composed last year's baseball team which made such a good showing in the season's work. It defeated the Roosevelt high school indoor team last week and had a game with Hibbing for last night, but Hibbing changed the date to Jan. 27. After a series of games with range towns the team will play Duluth's All Stars.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Why Not Have State Hockey Association Next Winter?

The New Game, Ricochet, to Be Played in Duluth.

What would be the drawback to forming a Minnesota Hockey association in the state next winter? In the province of Ontario, Canada, the hockey players have a provincial association, playing for the championship of the province. The teams are divided into squads. There is an Eastern, Central and Western squad. Each squad is composed of teams from towns within a radius of 100 miles or less. They have a regular schedule, often team playing every other team in the squad. The winners of the three squads then come together in the finals for the provincial championship.

Minnesota could readily organize such an association, if the men could be found who would give the time to the work. Minneapolis and St. Paul could easily furnish a sufficient number of hockey teams for the Southern squad. They already have a league in the Twin Cities, and it only remains for Duluth and other towns in the Northern part of the state to do their share.

If Duluth had proper facilities, three or four fast teams could be organized here without difficulty. The high school team is putting up as fast an article of hockey as can be found anywhere in this country or Canada for boys of their age. Deetz at center is a wonder, and the other men on the forward line ably support him. Considering the poor facilities they have had for practice, the team is a credit to the school. Two Harbors has a fast seven and the team is well rounded on the range. If the players would get together, a six or eight club league could be formed at the head of the lakes to constitute a Northern squad. The winners in the two squads could then come together in a series of three games for the championship of the state.

The idea has been considered by some of the local players who are anxious to see the game get a better footing in Duluth, and some action of the kind is likely to be taken next year. All that is necessary is the connection of a rink suitable to hockey. A sheet of ice at least seventy-five feet by 200, is better than a rink of 100 feet by 60 feet. The other requirements for the rink, and a gallery capable of seating from 500 to 1000 people. Such a rink was under contemplation by local business men last fall, but they were late in getting the rink ready. That it will be taken up this summer seems likely, and if it is hockey is likely to prove one of the most popular winter sports in Duluth next year.

Ricochet, the new game which has attained such popularity in the Twin Cities, is likely to be seen in Duluth and Superior soon. The game is played with a stick somewhat resembling a lacrosse stick. Five men compose the team, and the game can be played either on skates, roller skates or on a gymnasium floor without skates. Several local athletes have become interested in the game, and having seen it played in the Twin Cities, and have ordered sticks which are used in the game. The regulation area is 40 by 100 yards, but it can be played on much smaller spaces, such as gymnasiums or rinks. The goal posts are six feet apart. The positions of the players are designated as goal, cover, half-back, center and rush. There are six players are the defensive men, and the two latter the offensive. The ball is placed in the center to start the game, and the rusher of the center placed over it to await the umpire's signal. The ball cannot be touched with the hands or feet, but it may be thrown, being a foul. The player may push or carry the ball with his racket. A foul score from a push or a throw counts one, and when it is carried through the goal in the racket, three. A player cannot push or run into an opponent, although he may strike his racket to knock the ball out of it. A foul forfeits a point in the score of the side whose player makes it.

Next Saturday the annual meeting of the Northern league will be held in Grand Forks, and Manager Van Praeg of the local club will attend. The meeting will be one of the most important ever held by the league and will determine whether or not it will be in existence, and if so, what clubs will constitute it.

A good story is told by Joe Cantillon, manager of the Milwaukee team, of the best speech he ever heard in his life. "It was at the close of the season," said Cantillon, "and the players were just ready to scatter for the winter. One of them stepped up to me after the last game and said: 'Joe, the gang got me into this. I'm bum on the skis, but here's a darned diamond we want to give you for bullragging us all summer. That's all.'"

AMERICAN LEAGUE UMPIRES.

Ban Johnson's official list of American league umpires for the coming season must not be mistaken for the St. Patrick's day celebration committee. They are all Irish and good men. This is the list, with the name of the league they officiated in last season:

Silk O'Loughlin	American
T. H. Connolly	American
Jack Shevlin	American

RALPH ROSE LIKE WADDELL

Debarred Michigan Athlete Eccentric and Does Odd Stunts.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 21.—Ralph Rose is the "Rube" Waddell of the athletic world.

For eccentric capers and lack of knowledge, so far as deportment is concerned, the debarred Michigan athlete is similar to the baseball pitcher, who acts as the advertising sign for the athletics of Philadelphia. In both cases, the men are tomfoolers in too sport they follow, though both had their heads turned when success came their way.

Rose stands on his reputation now. Every time he came to Detroit, he would visit certain sporting headquarters and give free exhibitions. Like Rube Waddell, Rose would divert himself of his own and vest and allow his friends to see his muscles and shower praises on him. He craved admiration and simply revelled in compliments. "Nothing pleased him more than to see someone point him out on the street."

While Rose is a wonder with the shot, he is a weakling at the wrist and elbow wrestling games. There are many Detroiters who have beaten him in these games. One 140-pound man put the big fellow's hand down three times in an elbow match. Apparently Rose's strength was centered in his massive shoulders.

Rose cut all sorts of capers here. "He was over here to show his muscles and tell of his prowess, and was always looking for compliments. Even his friends made him believe that he was the strongest man living, and that he would make the mighty 200-pounder tremble if they ever met in the ring."

Recent developments show that Rose acts similar to Waddell. The latter was always contrary to orders. Rose is also hard to control. Waddell is always exhibiting himself, and like Rose, he is glad of the opportunity to display his muscles.

It is not generally known that Rose took his trunk and personal belongings with him on his famous Eastern trip and after the meet was concluded he left New York for a visit to several friends among friends in New Jersey.

The general impression is that Rose not only knew the consequence that would attend his disobedience of the Michigan board's rule, but courted the dismissal that was sure to follow.

TED MURPHY AND NELSON

Former Manager Says He Forgives Nelson For His Folly.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—"Nelson hasn't got enough gray matter in his brain pan to know when he's hurt."

That is how Teddy Murphy, ex-manager of the champion of Hedewisch, who has arrived from the coast, characterized his former protégé and chim. "The lad can fight, but he doesn't know anything. He was the easiest thing in the world for a pair of clever people out in Frisco, who saw a plump pigeon to pluck and the softest kind of a one at that."

"I am through with him. After what he did at the suggestion of some of his big time companions I could no longer remain on friendly terms with him. He begged me to forgive and forget, and wanted the old relations to be resumed. I knew that would never be the same again, but I told him I would agree if he would break away from a woman he was entangled with and promise to cut out the drinking."

"This he would not agree to, so we parted. I have forgiven him for having

Will Stop Betting at Ball Games.

At the next meeting of the National league drastic measures will be adopted for the enforcing of the laws on the National league books, which relate to betting on games in parks in which such contests are played.

The recent developments regarding betting in Pittsburgh, as reported on the 19th, have shown conclusively that the best interests of the national game demand that this open betting be stopped.

MUFER IS PROMOTED.

Michigan Man Athletic Director at Purdue.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 21.—O. F. Cutts, the former athletic director at Purdue, has left for Seattle, Wash., where he will engage in the law business. James Mufier, trainer of the teams, and a former Michigan athlete, will be made athletic director and will have extra duties assigned.

Manager Mufier has scheduled March 11 as the date of the dual indoor meet to be held at Ann Arbor with the University of Michigan. The Purdue track men are in excellent shape particularly the long-distance runners. Purdue expects to take the mile, two-mile and half-mile runs at Ann Arbor. In two of the three events taking first and second place. The athletes have been training on the outdoor track. Indoor meets will be held with Chicago, Wisconsin and Illinois.

PERDUE ABOLISHES THANKSGIVING GAME.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 21.—The faculty of Purdue university has decided to abolish the annual Thanksgiving day football contest, and last night President Stone announced that hereafter the football season at Purdue would close on the Saturday preceding Thanksgiving.

President Stone said, "Chiefly, the faculty is of the opinion that the traditional meaning of the Thanksgiving holiday should be respected by institutions of learning."

Boyle fought for the champion St. Louis Browns in the '80s. But has been out of the game for some time. This year he goes out as an umpire in the American association.

Comparison.

Talk about your summer-time
With swimmin' holes, an' sich,
Tain't in it with the winter-time,
For then the sport is rich;
A-constin' down the slippery snow,
Your stummick on a sled,
Your heels a-sittin' up the hill
While down hill hangs yer head.
The only part 'at I don't like
Is walkin' up the hill
To go a-scootin' down agin,
Fer you never get yer fill
Of cuttin' through the frosty air
When the snow is hard an' white;
But goin' up ain't such a sight,
Tho' down hill 's out o' sight.

"Chumlet" and Her Children.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

All the children in Bentonville felt sorry for Charlie Frame. He had no brothers or sisters to play with, and he had suffered the loss of his mother when he was seven years old. His father was a stern, serious-faced man, who seldom smiled and had little to say to Charlie except when he laid down the law to him or reprimanded him for not obeying it to the letter.

Shortly after Charlie's mother's death his father took him to live with an old maiden aunt, Charlie's father's sister. This old lady never having been accustomed to children, knew little about them, and had small sympathy for their childish desires. Seldom, indeed, did the old aunt allow Charlie to go out with other children to join in their sports, saying that time was thrown away when spent in idle pastime. After her little nephew had his lessons learned for the morning's school she found plenty of work for him in the garden, the front yard and the cow-lot to keep him busy.

One morning as Charlie was preparing to clean out the manger in the cowshed he saw an old tabby cat jump out of it and run in a frightened way toward the alley. She was a fine specimen, white and clean and beautifully marked with black on her ears, paws and tail. Charlie, loving domestic animals, ran to the shed door, calling loudly: "Kitty—kitty—kitty—cat!"

The old cat paused, looked round toward Charlie, then sat down on her cold paws. Charlie went cautiously to her, holding out his hands invitingly, and said: "Come, kitty—cat, come!" When he got close enough to stroke her fur the old tabby, to his delight, rose and rubbed her arched back against his legs, purring in a most friendly manner.

"Why, you ain't afraid of me, are you, kitty?" he said, stooping and rubbing her back gently.

Pussy answered by purring some more, and arching her back into a bow. "Don't you want to be my chum, kitty?" Charlie asked, taking the willing cat in his arms and warming his cold nose in her coat. "I ain't got no chum nor playmates, and I do get lonesome, you know, since dear mamma died." Kitty, as if understanding him, nestled closer in his arms. Then, as if suddenly remembering something which required her attention she struggled loose and sprang to the ground, running off down the alley toward an abandoned old barn.

"I hope she'll come back," said Charlie, returning to his work, whistling merrily, for he was a happy disposition in spite of uncheerful environment.

"Wish I had a lot of cats and kittens and dogs and pups. I'd teach them all sorts of tricks, and we'd have such splendid times together." Just at this minute in through the door came the old kitty-cat with something round, woolly and white in her mouth. She passed right by Charlie and sprang into the manger, cuddling down in the warm hay. Charlie ran to see what it was the cat had carried in. There, lying curled up into a ball was the dearest bit of a kitten he had ever seen. "Oh, you pretty thing!" he exclaimed longingly to take it in his hands; but for fear of frightening the mother he kept a safe distance away. "My stars, but you are a beauty!" he went on, addressing the kitten. "I'm going to fix you a nice warm bed. And, you," he said, speaking to the old cat, "I am going to call you, 'Chumlet,' which means you and I are partners and that we'll raise the little baby together."

Old pussy looked at him and blinked her thanks, seeming to say "All right, young man. And I'll take a saucer of milk right now, if you please." Charlie hurried through his work, doing it in about half the usual time required, and ran into the house. Fearing his aunt's disapproval of his new-found four-footed chum he said nothing about her, but waited for an opportunity to get a saucer of milk for the hungry "Chumlet." Pretty soon his aunt took her shawl and bonnet and announced her intention of going to see a sick friend, saying that she might not return to luncheon, as it was Saturday, and Charlie would have time to fix the food on the table for his father and himself. "Look after things well, Charles, so you will have a clear conscience," his aunt had said as she departed.

Now, the first thing that Charlie's conscience prompted him to do was to carry a saucer of sweet milk to Chumlet. After his father had eaten and gone—his old aunt had not returned to luncheon—Charlie again visited the cowshed, carrying with him a dainty dinner for old Chumlet of bits of meat and eggs, with another saucer of milk. He found her lying in the midst of her noisy little family, purring to them contentedly. When she rose from the deep bed in the hay to partake of the food, Charlie saw that a fourth kitten had arrived during his absence. And what a kitten! black as ebony and as round as a ball. It was the spriest little thing, too, that Charlie had ever seen. It was tumbling about, beginning to play, although its blue eyes were just opened. "Oh, you little nigger!" exclaimed Charlie, unable to keep his hands off the cunning baby. "You are out of sight, you are. You are lucky, too, I've heard. Oh—" and Charlie opened his eyes wide and blew a long, shrill whistle—"Oh, it was Aunt Mattie that said it is good luck to have a black cat come to the house. Wonder—if it she'll let me keep 'em, since one of them is black?" Then he examined the last arrival closely. "No sir, not a speck of daylight on you," he declared. "I will call you Good Luck!"

Putting the kitten back in the nest with its sisters and brothers Charlie fell to caressing the old mother as she lapped the milk. So deeply engrossed was he with his new-found friends that he did not notice a form darken the door nor feel conscious that someone stood watching and listening to him.

"Now, Three-spot, you shall be trained for an expert mouse," he remarked to kitten No. 1. "And little Snowflake shall be your assistant. And Brownie—well, what shall Brownie be? Oh, of course, Brownie must stay at home and watch things while the hunters are out from their house. She shall be taught to jump through a hoop and roll a ball. Then cute old Good Luck! What'll he be? Why, I know—I'll give him to Aunt Mattie—if she'll have him—for a pet. Maybe she won't object, for she believes in black cats; least ways, she says they scare away all sorts of ills. Mercey me, I do hope she and papa won't make me give them up. If only dear mamma—" and Charlie's voice choked. "If only dear mamma was here I know she would allow me to have pets to ## love and play with. She would understand how lonely I get."

For a moment old Aunt Mattie stood by the door conscience-stricken. Perhaps she and her brother had both been a bit hard on Charlie. But they had not really intended it so. They were rearing him as they had been reared, along hard, practical, but conscientious lines. It had been their duty to make a hard-working, honest man of him, but perhaps their methods had some flaws in them. Another side of the problem of child-training now presented itself to her mind. So often she had deplored Charlie's mother's lack of dignity with her child, for it had been her way to be a child with him, engaging in all his infantile play and pleasure, and only remonstrating with him in a sweet, persuasive manner when the little fellow became refractory, whereas old Aunt Mattie had advised the rod and severe scoldings instead. But the gentle mother had maintained that love would conquer where harshness would fail. Suppose, after all, that poor, delicate, child-like mother had been right. Thus reasoned old Aunt Mattie.

And you, dear old Chumlet," said Charlie, his voice breaking in on Aunt Mattie's self-examination. "You are a good, loving old kitty-cat, and we'll have the greatest times every day as soon as my lessons are learned and chores done—if Aunt Mattie—"

"Don't be afraid of your old aunt, child," that lady said as she came quickly to Charlie's side and put an arm about his shoulder. "You may keep your kittens, and the old woman cat, too, and your old aunt will try to be a bit young again and occasionally take a hand at training them in good manners. Upon my soul, they are the cutest little dumplings I ever laid eyes on, anyway."

Then Charlie left the manger with its interesting occupants and resumed his work. But after a few minutes threw down his pitchfork and ran to see how his new pets were getting along. "Three, upon my honor!" And sure enough there had been added another member to the cat family during his absence from the shed.

As Charlie stood looking in the manger old Chumlet came in with another mouthful of kittens.

"Three's better'n two, any day," said Charlie; "and now we must name this tootsy-wootsy baby No. 3. He shall be called Brownie, for that's near enough to his dark grey color." Then he observed that old Chumlet was not in the nest. "Why, I'll bet there's another. Where-w-w! I'll have a whole menagerie of kittens if she keeps bringing them in by the mouthful. But I must get at the front yard or I won't get it done before noon. Let's see, Three-Spot, Snowflake and Brownie; all good names." Then off he flew; nor did he find time to return to the manger till after luncheon.

"Oh, your father—ahem—he will do as I say," replied Aunt Mattie. "Women know more in a minute about raising boys and kittens than a man knows in a hundred years; leastwise that's my way of thinking. And your papa's younger 'em, so, I'm the real head of the household. Besides, your pa's not so severe as he would let on. It's been my training that's made him act so. But I must say, child, that all my advice has been intended for the best. If I've made a few mistakes—well, I'm willing to go back and undo 'em. From now on, Charles, our home shall be governed more by love than precept. How does that strike you, child? And do you think you can love your old, cast-iron aunt a little bit?"

"I can love her a whole lot," exclaimed the happy child, throwing a pair of loving arms round the old lady's neck. "I wish mamma could see us—and—understand what has happened."

"Bless you, child," said old Aunt Mattie. And for the first time in many, many years the tears that had been sealed behind her lids peeped through and dimmed the blue eyes that looked into Charlie's brown ones. "Now, son, I shall run to the house and put away the lunch things. Then we'll fix a nice, big box in the attic for old tabby and little tabs; they'll be more comfortable in there than out here in the cow shed. Besides, it will be a handier for you to have a romp with them in a nice, warm room."

"And, Aunt Mattie, would you mind if I brought Ned Adams and some of the other boys in to see them?"

"Yes, ask in a whole party if you want to after school Monday. I'm sure you won't let it interfere with your lessons nor your chore." "I won't neglect my work, Aunt Mattie," answered Charlie, earnestly. Then after his aunt had gone to the kitchen and he had heard the door shut and singing as he had never whistled and sung before, for the minute came from a heart full of thankfulness.

"Just think, old Chumlet," he said, speaking to old kitty, who curled back in a friendly way, "she took you to bring about all this good luck to me."

So often she had deplored Charlie's mother's lack of dignity with her child, for it had been her way to be a child with him, engaging in all his infantile play and pleasure, and only remonstrating with him in a sweet, persuasive manner when the little fellow became refractory, whereas old Aunt Mattie had advised the rod and severe scoldings instead. But the gentle mother had maintained that love would conquer where harshness would fail. Suppose, after all, that poor, delicate, child-like mother had been right. Thus reasoned old Aunt Mattie.

And you, dear old Chumlet," said Charlie, his voice breaking in on Aunt Mattie's self-examination. "You are a good, loving old kitty-cat, and we'll have the greatest times every day as soon as my lessons are learned and chores done—if Aunt Mattie—"

"Don't be afraid of your old aunt, child," that lady said as she came quickly to Charlie's side and put an arm about his shoulder. "You may keep your kittens, and the old woman cat, too, and your old aunt will try to be a bit young again and occasionally take a hand at training them in good manners. Upon my soul, they are the cutest little dumplings I ever laid eyes on, anyway."

Then Charlie left the manger with its interesting occupants and resumed his work. But after a few minutes threw down his pitchfork and ran to see how his new pets were getting along. "Three, upon my honor!" And sure enough there had been added another member to the cat family during his absence from the shed.

Minnie Mouse's Misadventure.

BY "PUSH."

Minnie Mouse peered cautiously from the hole in the floor, near the dining-room door, and, finding the coast clear, scampered half way toward the dining table. There were some crumbs under the table which she coveted, but she hesitated about getting them, for, sitting in a tiny blue rocker before her and regarding her with keen interest, was Bobby Bunting the Baby. He didn't seem to be small to Minnie Mouse, who was so much more diminutive, and she stopped in alarm. She looked up at the little man towering so high in the air, and her eyes sparkled with questions while her whiskers moved so comically that Baby Bunting laughed. This assured Minnie Mouse, and, believing it to be safe, she made a dash half way to the crumbs, then stopped to look again in Bobby's face. But he still smiled and, in addition, gurgled. "Dow on, Mousie!" so she rushed to a crumb, caught it hurriedly and dashed back to the hole in the wall. As she glanced over her shoulder Bobby Bunting clapped his hands with delight. At first Minnie Mouse feared the chubby fingers intended to do her harm and plunged into the hole in terror, but on thinking it over she concluded maybe the baby meant no harm, and on seeing again her bright eyes Bobby Bunting laughed and said, "Tum on, Mousie."

You needn't tell me mice can't under-stand children, for Minnie Mouse feared no more, but came boldly out under the table and nibbled at the crumbs there. She was so little alarmed that she began kitchen. In a few moments we heard the snap of a trap, and then the noise of her struggles. She never came back to us.

"Again we lay in our nest, until hunger and thirst forced us to separate and seek relief. I have never seen my two brothers or remaining sister since. Perhaps they are dead, or it may be they have gone somewhere else, for they tell me there are other places where mice might go. Do you know of any such places, Bobby Bunting?"

"There is Drandma's," said Bobby Bunting.

But Minnie Mouse sighed. She could not conceive of what that might be or look like. So she continued:

"I think I must have been very near that place that night I was caught."

"Was oo taught?" asked Bobby Bunting.

"Yes," sighed Minnie Mouse. "I was very hungry and slipped into the other room to see if I couldn't find something to eat. On the table I found some jam and a piece of cake and ate all I desired of those. Still I was hungry and began to seek for something else. Your mamma won't let you make an entire meal of cake and jam, will she, Bobby Bunting?"

"No," gurgled Bobby Bunting; "she won't dlive me more than one piece of cake."

"That is why I wanted something else to go with my cake and jam; it is healthier," said Minnie Mouse. "I don't see what harm there is in that. A mouse can't starve, can it? What would you do if you were hungry, Bobby Bunting?"

"I would try," said Bobby Bunting. He meant cry, but he couldn't say it.

"But suppose you couldn't cry," remarked Minnie Mouse. "A mouse can't cry, and, besides, I had no mamma to bring me what I wanted to eat."

"Then I dess I would dow and dit it," said Bobby Bunting.

"That's just what I tried to do," resumed Minnie Mouse. "But it seems that grown-up men and women (and, oh, how big they do get!) don't like for us to seek food, no difference how hungry we are. I ran a little way from the cake and climbed down on the floor, and as I got near the hole in the floor into which I ran down when I was scared I saw the nicest piece of cheese lying there in full view. I tell you, it was tempting. Still, I was afraid there was a trap somewhere around, for the cheese was lying on a little platform such as I had never seen before. I had been told about traps that if you touch one they fold together and hold you tight. I wanted the cheese, and yet was afraid to poke my head in and grab it, for fear a possible trap would snap on my neck and choke me to death. Then an inspiration came to me. I thought I would touch the cheese with tail first, and if there was no trap, then I could grab and eat it. You see, I thought that if my tail was caught I might escape with my life, while, if it caught me around my neck, I would surely choke to death, as did my poor mother. So I poked my tail back on the platform. Something went snap, and a great lever came crash on my tail. Oh, how it frightened me! My heart seemed to jump into my throat, but I had really done something like that, for ever since then they tell me, because it has been burst, it makes this peculiar noise which you hear."

"Sounds like singing," said Bobby Bunting.

"Yes; they call me a singing mouse," answered Minnie. "but it is really the blood in my heart pouring out at the side that was ruptured that makes the singing. It is a very accomplished mouse that can sing, but there are singing mice, and Minnie was one of them. Bobby Bunting liked the song so well that he applauded with his chubby hands. I can't give you the words of the song, but Bobby Bunting understood them and he thought they were very good. Perhaps she sung a mournful ditty about her papa mouse who felt under the cruel claws of the cat. Anyhow, Bobby Bunting was reminded of it, for he said:

"Did oo ever dit taught, Mousie?"

Of course, he meant caught, but he couldn't say it.

"Once," answered the singing mouse. "But I have been in much terror all my life. When I was a wee baby mouse, my eyes just opened, papa used to go to his growing family with the food. One night when he was foraging we heard a terrible clatter, and papa screamed upon and caught him under his cruel paws. It was good for him if it did not happen in the day time or the fierce animal might have prolonged his torture by playing with him for an hour, letting him, all wounded as he was, think he might escape, only to be repeatedly dragged back into danger until he finally perished from exhaustion. As it was, we crouched in terror in our nest, our hearts wrung with agony while we heard the terrible cat crunching the bones of my father. Did you ever hear a lion tearing your papa to pieces?"

"No, I didn't and I don't want to," said Bobby Bunting.

"Then you can't have an idea of the agony we endured. But our entire life has been a succession of such terrors. After papa's death mamma had to seek things for us to eat, and kept us supplied for a time. But one night we heard a snap and knew she had been caught in the trap. We could hear her struggles for several moments, while we, understanding her plight, were powerless to aid her. Was your mamma ever caught in a trap, and did you ever hear her struggling in the horrible engine while you were both afraid and powerless to help her?"

"No, I never did," answered Bobby Bunting. "Oh, but eat must be had."

"We were little people, even for mice, at that time," resumed Minnie Mouse, as she sniffed and her whiskers moved in pathetic comedy. "We knew nothing of the world. It is but fair to say that by the world Minnie Mouse meant only the kitchen and the dining-room, for she had seen nothing else." We were afraid to venture from the nest and we remained there until we nearly perished from hunger and thirst. One night my sister Winnie (for being born at the same time she was named Minnie, while I was called Minnie) thought she could stand it no longer, so she crept into the

As the Worm Appeared To Billy.

"A worm is such a little mite," said Billy to his sister.

As they were walking one day, When, lo! there crawled a Mister Big Woolly Worm of awful size— His curved-up back 'most reached the skies;

His eyes like two full moons shone forth, As on he came right in their path. He would, no doubt, have run them down Had they not fled back to the town.

Now, had it been both you and I Who saw the worm that day, We would have overlooked the thing— A speck upon the way. Or had we viewed the worm at all We would have said, "How very small!" But to the frightened eyes of Billy (Which may, indeed, sound very silly) The worm was of an immense size, And filled the space 'twixt earth and skies.
